A COLUMN FOR FANCIERS.

Appended are brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers and lovers of birds, with post free prices.

"THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING." - 1/1
By W. GEO. CRESWELL, M.D.
A most useful manual, thoroughly treating of modern hygiene in bird-keeping, by the most eminent living authority on the subject.

"SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE." - 7d.
By R. H. CLARKE, M.D.,
A very useful booklet concerning this dread disease. It is the only one published, and should be found in every bird-lover's library. Dr. Clarke has given the subject very special study.

"THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY." 1½d
By J. H. PAYNE.
A Lecture reprinted from CAGE BIRDS, delivered by this leading judge and expert before the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, and pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety.

BREEDING CAGE LABELS, 1d. doz., 7 doz. 6d
A boon to all breeders. Neatly printed in sets of twelve, on perforated gummed paper. They can be torn off, and affixed to the breeding cage in a moment, and prevent all confusion. Useful alike to both small and large breeders of birds.

CARD BREEDING REGISTERS, 1d. each, 4 for 3d., 9 for 6d.
For hanging up in the birdroom. Printed on suitable stiff card, they are ruled to hold a complete record of the breeding results of six pairs of birds; invaluable for future reference, to ensure that knowledge of one's stock essential to accurate breeding.

LIVE BIRD LABELS, 24, 3d.; 50, 6d.; 100, 1/-
For use when despatching live birds on journeys by rail, or to the shows, etc. Printed in red ink and gummed on back. The simplest, neatest, and best on the market.

NOTE PAPER & POSTCARDS, 250 for 2/-; 500 for 2/6.
Until further notice we have decided to supply below cost price artistic Memorandum Forms and stout postcards, with name, address, twelve words of particulars, and blocks of any special variety of bird at half cost for cash. Carriage paid to any address in the U.K. Our latest style of note-head and postcard has been universally admired, and we will gladly send specimens to anyone enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

BLOCKS OF BIRDS, 1/6 each, 5 for 6/-, or 9 for 10/-
For inserting in advertisements and for printing memorandums blocks of all kinds of birds at above low prices can be supplied. Larger blocks to order at cheapest possible rates. These dainty little blocks immensely enhance the appearance of note paper, postcards, and advertisements.

PICTURE POSTCARDS, 1d. each; set of six, 6d.
The most delightful and appropriate postcards of Canaries, British Birds, and Hybrids on the market, executed in colours by Mr. H. Norman. Ideal for Fanciers' correspondence. All represent exact and correct show types and have accompanying descriptions. State which bird or birds are required, or whether a mixed selection is preferred.
The latest set is entitled, "Pairs Matched for Breeding"; very educational art postcards. Price 3d. set of 8.

ORNAMENTAL PLATES, 1/- & 1/6 each.
The following coloured plates of Cage Birds can be obtained mounted on stiff card and gelatined. This process makes them washable and gives them the handsome appearance and all the durability of framed plates under glass:—Bullfinch, Blackbird and Robin, Border Fancy Canary, Bullfinch Hybrids, Cinnamon Canary, Cinnamon Marked Yorkshires, Foreign Finches, Goldfinch and Bullfinch, Hybrids (popular), Lancashire and Lizards, Mules (popular), Norwich (Yellow), Parrakeets, Yorkshires. Price 1s. each. Crests, Desirable Aliens (Foreign Birds), Larks and Pipits, Norwich (Blaze of Colour), Wagtails and Stonechat. Price 1s. 6d. each.
Also a padded plate of KINGFISHER having all the appearance of a hand painting executed on ivory. A most charming ornament for brackets, occasional tables, etc. Price 1s. All are post free.
Why spend large sums on decorating the house with other pictures?

FANCIERS' PRINTING.
Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Meeting held at the Hall of Science on September 22nd, Mr. H. K. Stubbs presiding. A letter was read from Lady Doughty expressing her willingness to again open the exhibition at the Corn Exchange, on October 20th and 21st and stating that she hoped to see as good an exhibition, if not better, than last year. It is expected that several leading townspeople will assist at the opening ceremony. The special prizes offered for all classes are very good, and the cash specials are also numerous. The next meeting will be held at the Hall of Science, on October 13th, instead of the date fixed for the show as originally arranged.—MOORE AND CROWSTON, Hon Secs.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

A meeting was held on Sept. 21st, 17 members being present. The following gentlemen were elected as officers:—Chairman, Mr. F Washborne; Secretary, Mr. J. Stirrup; Assistant Secretary, Mr. J. C. Spilsbury; Treasurer, Mr. Jos. Hallam; Committee, Messrs. Dickinson, Salway, J. G. Garbutt, B. Bowden and T. F. Chamberlain. Subscription, 4/- per annum, payable half-yearly. The society is very anxious to make itself a big success, and ask bird fanciers to join and help the young fanciers to rise in the Fancy. Any fancier will be made welcome at any of the meetings. The next meeting will be held on the second Monday in October, at the Boiler Makers' Arms, Abbey Heyham, Higher Openshaw.—J. STIRRUP.

GLASGOW & W. COUNTIES N.C.

Monthly meeting held in Good Templars Hall, Ingram-street, September 5th. The president, Mr. Geo. Warlin, presided over a moderate attendance. The following were admitted to membership:—Messrs. G. Gentles (Glasgow), R. McKay and C. C. Irvine (Ayr). The club's patronage was granted to the Whitburn C.B.S., which show is to be held on December 12th. Classification for club show December 5th was extended to 85 classes. Judges for Plainheads, etc., Mr. Geo. Scaife (Fauldhouse); for Borders, Mr. Jas. Laurie (Govan); for Mules, British, and Foreign birds, Mr. Jas. Strachan (Bathgate). Medals were granted to our own club show. It was also decided to print balance-sheet at the end of the financial year, and that same be posted to members.—J. H. ADAM, Secretary.

LEITH O.S.

The monthly meetings were resumed after the summer vacations in the Liberal Club, Hope-street, on September 12th. The president, Mr. Jas. Lumsden, presided over a large attendance, and from the reports of the majority of the members the breeding season seems to have been fairly successful, and a record entry may be looked for at the approaching show on 31st October. The society have secured the use of the new hall in Duke-street belonging to South Leith Parish Church, which is in every way very suitable for a cage bird show. The following gentlemen have been chosen as judges, viz., Mr. Jas. Carson, for Scotch Fancies; Mr. A. Cochrane, Norwich, and Mr. J. W. Bruce, Borders and British. Mr. Dunn (Portobello) has kindly consented to give a washing exhibition on a date, which will be advertised in CAGE BIRDS. Next meeting 10th October.—GEORGE BROWN, Secretary.

UNITED KINGDOM LIZARD C.A.

A well-attended and enthusiastic meeting held on Sept. 20th, at Howard Arms, Glossop. It was decided that four good medals be obtained for competition amongst members, two to be competed for in the Championship Section, and two in the Novice Section, all exhibits to have attached the initial plates of the society. The following shows were selected as those at which the medals should be competed for: Oldham, Rochdale (Good Intent), Sunderland, Glossop, Nottingham, and the Crystal Palace. J. Hampshire, 7, Cowper-street, Brunswick-street, Oldham, was appointed sole maker of the Club cages; all requisites, such as paint, initial plates, etc., are also to be obtained from him. Next meeting to be held in the Textile Dining Rooms, Shaw-road, Oldham, on the afternoon of the Oldham Show, Oct. 10th, at 5. It was also decided that all subscriptions be paid on or before this date. Members are requested to be present.—GREIG and HARRISON, Joint Secretaries.

YORKS. C.C. OF SCOTLAND.

A meeting was held on September 8th, in the Co-operative Hall, Glasgow. The classification and wording of specials for competition at shows under club patronage was finally fixed and are as follows: 1, silver rose bowl and gold medal for most points; three birds only to be nominated and marked "Y.C.C. Bowl" on entry form. The bowl is to be won three times before becoming the property of the winner; 2, gold medal, given by the President, Mr. R. Eastman, for second most points; 3, special, given by Mr. W. Fortune, for third most points; 4, cheque, given by Mr. John McQueen, for most points with birds fed on his pepper. After a discussion re points to count for specials, Mr. Baird moved, and it was seconded by Mr. Hendry, that seven points count at all shows. An amendment made by Mr. Webster and seconded by Mr. Marr, to the effect that points count according to each show's awards, was lost. Mr. Baird's motion being carried. The secretary was instructed to see that judges act accordingly. As no special meeting place had been fixed, it was proposed by Mr. Penman, and seconded by Mr. Martin, that the Co-operative Hall be engaged, this being agreed to as the members considered this hall the most central. A vote of thanks to the chairman, Mr. R. B. Gibb, terminated the meeting. New members: Messrs. J. Ford (Kelty), and Mr. H. Henderson (Glasgow), making our total 36, with several others promised.—F. BOWMAN, Hon. Sec.

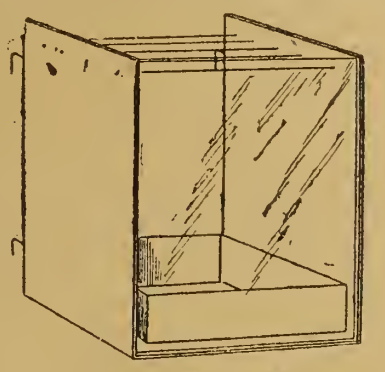
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 246.

A USEFUL BATH CAGE.

Sent by E. White, 65, Havelock Road, Brighton.

Enclosed illustrates a very convenient bath to hang on the side of a cage. It is made of wood at sides and bottom, with a groove round the front part to allow a piece of glass to slide in. It has a wire top, one wire being longer than the rest, and bent down, so as to stop the sides from spreading, or bulging out. It is very handy where a bird is kept in a living-room, as it makes a light bath and the glass stops the bird splashing water in the room. I find a square zinc bath is best for use inside this frame, though this is really immaterial.—E. WHITE.

No. 247.

A COVER FOR WATER VESSELS.

Sent by —, 18, Jennings Street, Swindon, Wilts.

The sketch I send represents a tin cover, to prevent seed-husks, etc., dropping into the water-vessel, and one that is very simple to make, and easily fixed or removed. It is made in one piece, about 3½ inches by 3 inches, cut out to the shape seen in the drawing, paying particular attention to the "lip" at the top, C, which needs to be of a size which gives a firm grip on the wires, when pushed between. The "lip," of course, has to be bent over to a suitable angle. Smooth the sides with emery-cloth. To fix it, hold the "lip" sideways between the wires, above the drinker, then turn the cover full round, and pull down to proper place. I find it very effective in preventing water from getting fouled.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

MEMBERS' shows were a great attraction on Saturday last, many visitors putting in an appearance "to see where the winners were going to come from," and perhaps to see if any were out that could beat their own picked birds at home—weighing things up a little in readiness for the open shows.

THE names of those desirous of assisting in the formation of "The Green-marked Y.C.C." mount steadily upwards in number, and in every probability a meeting will be called at one of the shows at no very distant date. As things are progressing at present, there can be no doubt but that the formation will take place at the first meeting. The bird itself is well worth catering for, and requires some organised body to look after its interests, more particularly in respect to the hens.

THE first Yorkshire Union show was held on Saturday last under the auspices of the Skelmanthorpe Society, and some real nice birds were to be seen. The surprise of the show was the cancellation of the class for clear yellows, only three entries being received, and the clear buffs came near to meeting a like fate, only five putting in an appearance. The unflighted classes were well filled and brought out a nice lot of exhibits—all there for type and quality. The hen classes had two good leaders, real gems, and I hear a good figure has already been offered for the yellow lady. A grand career is expected for both of them. The novice classes were well supported, the quality throughout being a credit to this section of the Fancy.

I AM exceedingly sorry that my remarks of a fortnight ago anent this Society's show were taken in a spirit contrary to that in which they were written. It was far from my intention to deter exhibitors from either sending birds or visiting the show, and it pleased me immensely to see a far larger number travelling to the show than was the case last year, also that the total of entries reached the same figure as previously.

BARNSLEY C.B.S. forge ahead. They now have finer meetings than they have had for some considerable time, and are arranging to hold three members' shows during the coming season. One of these is fixed for to-day (Saturday), Mr. Rapson, of Barnsley, officiating as judge. Now that this society has got a few earnest workers in its ranks, there is no doubt the membership will increase and that its own record in regard to a healthy condition of affairs will be left in the rear.

THE washing exhibition at the Wibsey O.S. headquarters was well attended, the fact of its being "Wibsey Fair" probably making a little difference in enticing visitors to the village on the hill. Mr. Ormondroyd put three birds through the mill in good style, his efforts being closely watched and thoroughly appreciated by those present. Afterwards one of the youngest, if not absolutely the youngest member of their society, put one through its facings, his style proclaiming him, however, to be no new hand at the job.

GREAT Horton and Wibsey Societies both hold evening members' shows to-day (Saturday), birds in each case to be staged at 8 o'clock, this allowing members to visit the open shows and get their birds home before going to put down their exhibits at the members' show.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

THE SHOWS.

BRADFORD (West) C.B.A.

Members' show held on September 26th at the Red Lion Hotel, Girlington. Mr. W. A. Cowgill judged. There were nine classes for champions, nine for novices, and three for champion and novice. The champions staged 46, the novices 33, making a total of 79 entries. Mr. A. Cooper won most points with four highest birds, 24 points; T. Wood, second, 15 points; Mr. J. Clark, third, 14 points. In novice classes, Wood Dobson, first, 20 points; G. A. Bennett, second, 16 points; H. Garlham, third, 11 points. Mr. A. Cooper won Mr. Hellewell's special for best bird in show with a yellow hen.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

The members held a grand show of Canaries in the Park Chapel Schools, on September 26th, when Mr. W. H. Shackleton (Bradford) judged. Entries came up well, no less than 108 birds being staged in 13 classes. A Gift Class, added to the schedule to enable the society to purchase a rose-bowl for the open show on January 30th, contained 7 entries. Some keen competition was witnessed in several classes, the quality of the exhibits being of a very high order. Some of the exhibits were not yet fairly out of the moult. The winners of most points in the champion section were Messrs. Farrar, Hill, White, Laycock and Briggs; and in the novice section, Messrs. Northrop, Warner, Crowther, Dinsdale and Burnfield. A fair number of visitors turned up, and all expressed satisfaction at the new trestles and staging, which enabled everyone to have a good view of the birds without handling them.

ST. ANDREWS.

The 16th annual Show was held on October 3rd, in ideal weather. The exhibition being the first open fixture on the East Coast, draws as a rule a grand entry, and although there was a slight decrease in the number of entries owing to the backward moulting season the quality on the whole was good. Scotch Fancies opened the programme and were forward in large numbers; in fact this section was a show in itself, some grand specimens being on view. The quality throughout was well maintained, while the number of exhibits was in advance of that of former years. This variety of Canary has taken quite a new lease of life, and where before one would scarcely get them to pay expenses, they are now a valuable asset at many shows. It is to be hoped that they will always keep their position. The awards were well distributed, but Mr. Thornton managed to keep himself in a prominent position throughout with some choice specimens, especially, a good yellow cock and his Buff piebald hen. The Edinburgh Derby winner, in new hands, we believe, came in for great admiration. Mr. Dalgleish was a close runner up on Mr. Thornton in regard to first awards, but what he lost in numbers he made up for in specials, for in this gentleman's collection turned up the cup winner in the shape of a yellow foul cock, very compactly made. This and the yellow cock were the pick of the lot. The other winners were all good, outstanding specimens of their variety, and all were carefully handled, their exhibition points being brought to the front by two well-known breeders, Messrs. McDougal and Holden, the judges who placed their awards to the satisfaction of all. Norwich and Borders were well represented, some well-known breeders having specimens forward in the Plainhead section. Some good ones were on view here, but the palm of this variety was found in the Buff cock, so beautifully put down by Mr. Chalmers. Crests and Crestbreds were fairly well represented, especially in the cock classes. That well-known Fife breeder, Mr. Reid, held sway in the Crest section, and secured both firsts, his Crest cock being forward for Hyde's special which was secured by Mr. Auchterlonie. Many in these varieties wanted a week or so to finish, being still a bit stubbed in their head gear. Borders were well represented, and here there turned up a gem in the shape of a yellow hen, the property of that well-known breeder, Mr. Patterson, of Churnside, which for type and quality was a beauty. These varieties were ably judged by Mr. McKay, and his awards were well received throughout. Unfortunately, and notwithstanding the fact that British men were well catered for, the committee were reluctantly compelled to cancel some of the classes, because of shortness of entries. However what remained were very representative of the various species, and the judge had a rather difficult task to satisfy the requirements of all the exhibitors; but after careful consideration, he managed to place the coveted cards on outstanding specimens. This section was judged by the new and genial secretary of the S.S.B. and M.C., Mr. A. W. Watson, and his awards were well received. The good management of this show has been referred to on former occasions, and it is impossible to speak too well of it. It is ideal. The hall in which the show was held is the finest, without a doubt, in Scotland for a bird show, while the committee are a genial lot. This year the secretarial reins were in the hands of a young enthusiast, Mr. A. B. McIntyre, and right well did he carry out his duties, having everything in apple-pie order, and doing his best to please one and all. We also noticed Mr. Auchterlonie bustling about as hard as ever; owing to business pressure he is unable to take as active a part as he would like, but when the show comes on he cannot help being among the workers. Mr. McIntyre was ably assisted by some sterling workers whose names unfortunately we are unable to state. The show was well patronised by visitors, and we hope to hear of the sixteenth fixture being a financial success.

Scotch Fancy and Norwich Sections.

CL. YELL. SCOT. FCY. CK. (8): 1, Thornton, grand frame, plenty of substance throughout, rare length of side, good drive, fine top end, and reachy, in excellent feather and condition, good exhibit; 2, McMilan, another lengthy bird, grand side, good position, lacks top end of winner, but good 2nd; 3, Berwick, nice quality and substance, showy specimen, inclined to raise head at times; 4, Low, good stamp, but rather slim, fine free action; 5, Auchterlonie; 6, Carmylie. YELL. PIED. (12): 1, Thornton, high strung specimen, very free in action, grandly drawn, good quality throughout, put down in lovely order; 2, Thoms, another free, stylish bird, of good substance throughout, again well shown; 3, Dalgleish, plenty of substance here, rare depth across, nice size, inclined to be a bit slow; 4, Carmylie, good all round exhibit, nice quality, good depth across, well worth its place; 5, Berwick; 6, Cook. CL. BUFF (15): 1, Curtis, good one, plenty of substance, grand top ended bird, pronounced worker, gets head well down, and drive to perfection, in fine bloom; 2, Dalgleish, another fine mover in extra good condition, grand quality throughout, nice reachy bird, fine side, shade slimer in build than winner; 3, Thornton, again fails in substance to winner, being on thin side, but fine length and very free in style; 4, Ramsay, good all round exhibit, fine action, well put down, grand class throughout; 5, Merrilees; 6, Dobson. BUFF PIED (12): 1, Delgleish, wins in perfect order, well filled up on top end, fine reach, rare drive, plenty of substance, shows to perfection; 2, McMilan, good one, a shade slimer, but extra good in style, very free and rare reach, fine length of side, stylish; 3, Hyde's cup, and local cup, Auchterlonie, another hot one for style, always on the move, free pronounced drive, plenty of length, nice top end and reach, beaten only in substance throughout, well put down; 4, Beattie, good all round, good feather; 5, Berwick; 6, Jule. GREEN OR FOUL (11): 1, 2, and specials, Dalgleish, hot one, extra good in action, very free in hand, massive top end, smartly tapered off underneath, prominently shouldered, reachy neck, gets head well down; 2, Thoms, again free and shapely; in lovely bloom, inclined to be slimmer throughout; 3, Strachan, green, fine substance and quality, rather slow at times, but showy when in position; 4, Beattie, good all round exhibit, well placed; 5, McMilan; 6, Kiell. CL. YELL. HEN (10): 1, McMilan, in grand bloom, showing at her best, grand substance, fine size for a lady, good top end and side, works freely, nice exhibit; 2, Black, good reachy bird, fine length and side and free, scarcely the depth of winner; 3, Strachan, good substance throughout, fine frame and length, will improve later on; 4, Dalgleish, showy exhibit, beaten in substance, but well up in size; 5, Ramsay; 6, Carmylie. YELL. PIED (6): 1, Carmylie, wins, massive bird, plenty of substance, good top end and reach, rather nervous at times, fine order, well put down; 2, Black, grand length, good drive, not so prominent on top as winner; 3, Brown and Whittet, fails on top end and style to winner, but a grand sided bird, good feather, etc.; 4, Watson, fails to winner only in general finish, but nice quality throughout; 5, Ness. CL. BUFF (14): 1, Keill, well up in size, plenty substance, prominent top end, fine side, good action, grand drive and gets to work freely, stylish exhibit; 2, Thornton, slimmer in build, but a beauty for style, very free, exhibit well staged; 3, Ramsay, good all round exhibit, well up in size; 4, Merrilees, well placed, good showy bird; 5, Wilson and Campbell; 6, Beattie. BUFF PIED (10): 1, Thornton, gem for quality, tight as wax, a regular mould of a Scotch, grand, well filled on back and shoulders, nice droop, well drawn underneath, very stylish, we heard it was the Edinburgh Derby winner in new hands; 2, 3, McMilan, a good one, fine top end, grand shoulder, nice free style, scarcely so good in side as winner; 3, large, plenty of substance, nice action, two good exhibits, well placed; 4, Dalgleish, free bird, but outclassed here; 5, Gibson; 6, Auchterlonie, a grand hen class this. GREEN OR FOUL (9): 1, Thornton, yell. green, sweet one, lovely style, rare action, nice substance, grand drive and side, in excellent condition; 2, Carmylie, green, tight as wax, scarcely so nervy as winner, but fine shouldered bird, good shape and tapered; 3, Low, nice one, shade slimmer got up, but well moulded, nice length and reach; 4, Ramsay, close up; 5, Dobson; 6, Cook. SELL CLASS CK. (20/-) (10): 1, Duncan; 2, Watt; 3, Thornton; 4, Shaw; 5, Keddie; 6, Danskin. HEN (20/-) (8): 1, Gibson; 2, Ramsay; 3, Carmylie; 4, Wilson and Campbell; 5, Jule; 6, Shaw. NOR. YELL. CK. VARGT. (5): 1, Chalmers, hot fed, very level in colour throughout, good stamp, nice head and frontage, shown in rattling order; 2, Douglas, a taking exhibit, short and chubby, good front and wing carriage, unsteady at times, should fine down yet, a likely exhibit; 3, Martin, stoutly made, but not so good in finish as winner, good all round exhibit; 4, Barclay, plenty of size; 5, Davidson. BUFF (7): 1, Chalmers, clear buff, grand stamp, well rounded, good head, fine level wing carriage, shows to perfection, good colour and nicely put down, shade stubbed on neck of it; 2, 3, Martin, good feathered one, little inclined to be flat on head, but all there otherwise; 3, rare bloom, shade long behind, but grandly rounded on front, nice head, and carriage, well placed; 4, Douglas, chubby one, nice stamp, in rare bloom, worth its position; 5, Barclay; 6, Douglas. YELL. HEN VARGT. (5): 1, Sharp, nice fronted bird, good size, well moulded, very level in wing, and carriage in good trim; 2, Chalmers, short and stout, nice neck and wing, carriage fails only in depth on front to winner; 3, Broadow, again nicely got up, well rounded, and good quality of feather; 4, Smart, nice feathered exhibit; 5, Dalling. BUFF (7): 1, Dickson, trifle unsteady, but grandly finished bird, lovely feather, good frontage, well put down; 2, Chalmers, head tick, grand stamp, very short and chubby, good feather, close up; 3, Martin, large one, well made, fine rounded front, beaten in finish by winner; 4, Douglas, smaller got up, shade thinner in front, good feather and finish; 5, McHale; 6, Sharp. CREST CK. (10): 1, 5, Reid, good varet, nice top piece, coming well down all round, full in centre, nicely balanced throughout, in perfect condition, wins; 2, Shillinglaw, grizzle crest, nice length of feather, well up in front and side, but rather sparse yet in centre, will improve; 3, McNaughton, good shapely crest, well up in size; 4, Buchanan, good one, nicely headed, well groomed, had the appearance unfortunately of being blind, which no doubt put it back; 5, Reid; 6, (no name). HEN (5): 1, 4, Reid, beauty, grand top and side, fine leafy feather, grand length, groomed to perfection, staged in masterly fashion; 4, good quality and substance, beaten to-day; 2, Brown, fine fronted bird, rare length of feather, rather thin at back, which spoils her appearance; 3, Ross, grizzle, plenty of size, head gear scarcely up yet, well staged. C.B. CK. (12): 1, McNaughton, good all round, good entrance, well lashed, nice length of feather, coming well down to back, grand body in lovely order, well staged; 2, Low, good lashing, nice and broad at back, good second; 3, Robertson, full fronted bird, fails in length of back, but fine stamp throughout; 4, (no name), nice all round exhibit; 5, Reid; 6, Ross. HEN (5): 1, Shillinglaw, beauty, nice cushion-headed one, grand entrance and fine lashing, condition and shape rare, well staged and groomed, a credit to owner; 2, Buchanan, another good lashed hird, trifle narrow in entrance, but all there, otherwise well placed; 3, Low, good all round, beaten on entrance, neat lash; 4, Brown, plenty of substance, well staged; 5, Robertson. NON-FED (6): 1, Bishop, green plainhead, good quality of feather and nicely moulded, fine size and substance; 2, 3, Reid, crest, nice headed bird, good feathered (surely some mistake here. Is this class not meant for plainheads only? But as schedule reads, exhibitor was quite entitled to competition); 4, Davidson, slashing plainhead, fine substance, good shaped, rather loose in feather; 5, Thomson; 6, Lawrie. SELL. VARGT. (10/-), (12): 1, Kemp; 2, McDougal; 3, Arnott; 4, Calderwood; 5, Sharp; 6, Hoggan.

The Remaining Sections.

BORD. YELL. CK. VAR. (12): 1, Baird, clear yell. about right weight, fine wing carriage, good front, well drawn and tapered, neat exhibit in fine feather; 2, Lambie and Son, yell green, just large enough, but grand quality throughout, deep rich pencilling, and a beauty for type, well staged; 3, Patterson, grand size, lovely silky feather; fine typical specimen, but rather unsteady, which no doubt put it back; 4, Mrs. Wilson, good stamp, shade stronger got up, but lovely quality of feather; 5, Barrie; 6, Whitelaw. BUFF (10): 1, Robertson, in grand bloom, feathered to perfection, fine upstanding, steady bird, good front and head, slightly crosses wings, but all there otherwise, wins; 2, Barrie, good stamp, fine taper and style, neat head and wing carriage; 3, Patterson, good feathered Cinnamon tick, nice shape and style, rather too strong in build, but well placed; 4, Cargul, neatly got up bird, fine taper and front; 5, Dunn; 6, Cousins. YELL. HEN VARGT. (6): 1, and spl., Patterson, undoubtedly the best Border in show, gem all over, correct size, lovely quality of feather, rare head, grand wing carriage, neat moulded front, staged to perfection, easiest of wins; 2, Barrie, Cinnamon mark, stronger got up, but good feather and style, not so well tapered underneath perhaps as winner; 3, Baird, good shapely hen, nice size and type, fails in finish to winners; 4, Spence, nice quality throughout, neat size and style. BUFF (16): 1, Cargill, good one, grand trim, nice headed one, fine front and style, best of carriage, shade drawn on back, but well balanced all round, neatly tapered underneath; 2, 3, Baird, 2, a variegated finished bird; 3, good, clear nice front and fine round bead, good wing carriage; 4, Robertson, again well burnished up, shown to perfection, nice size and well drawn; 5, Bruce; 6, King, a good class tbis. GREAT HORTON GOOD INTENT O.S

The third members' show for the season was held on September 26th in the club rooms. There was a moderate entry, and a good turn-up of visitors. For the four highest-starred birds Messrs. Hartley won a special, the winners of points specials being Messrs. Hartley, H. Schofield, A. Holden, A. Firth, H. Birbeck, and S. Briggs. Mr. John Dawson (Gt. Horton) judged, and gave general satisfaction.

KILMAURS.

The Kilmaurs F. and F.F.S. held their 4th annual open show on September 26th. This young society is engineered by experienced and willing workers, and is sure to come well to the front in the Fancy world. Mr. Gray makes a very capable chairman, and is well backed up by an enthusiastic committee comprising such well-known names as Messrs. J. McNaught, J. Rowan, R. Hunter, W. Gibson, J. Fleming, R. Dunlop, D. Holden, P. Gilmour, H. Lang, J. Findlay, T. Gemmill and W. Montgomerie. Unfortunately for the success of this show, the date clashed with that of the society's comparatively near neighbours Newmilns. This arrangement should and no doubt will, in future be avoided. The judges were: Canaries, Mr. D. Holden (Muirkirk); and for British Birds, Mr. P. McQuiston (Ayr). The arrangements were well carried out by the popular and capable secretary, Mr. W. Fleming, to whom is due much of the credit for the success of the show. It struck us as rather strange that, practically in the heart of the home of the Scotch Fancy, and with such a well-known judge of this variety adjudicating, the whole six classes provided were cancelled. The awards gave general satisfaction.

Critique.

NOR. YELL. CL., ETC., CK. (4): 1, and sp., McFarlane, clear, well-known winner, shown in lovely bloom; requires no description; wins easily. 2, Murray; another good clear yellow, beaten to-day in type, but of lovely quality. 3, John Johnstone; will make a good one when finished moult. 4, Carson; fine typical yellow, but on the small side. HEN and BUFF CK., both classes cancelled. BUFF HEN (5): 1, James Johnstone, clear, nice type, good and tight in feather. 2, McFarlane; another lovely clear buff, not yet quite finished moult, but will be a gem later. 3, Murray; ticked, and a rattling good one; will take same stopping when fully finished moult. VARIEG. CK. and HEN, SELL. (15/-) all cancelled. BORD. FCY. YELL. CL. ETC. CK. (6): 1, Murdock; lovely little yellow, shown in the pink of condition, grand wing, carriage, and position. 2, Findlay; grand ticked yellow, correct type, wonderful mover and well drawn. 3, McGill; nice little Border, lovely head and wing carriage. Will be heard of later. 4, McKean; nice clear yellow, lovely colour, feathered tight as wax, well staged. 5, Parker Bros. 6, Montgomerie. SKELMANTHORPE.

The opening event of the season under the Yorkshire Union rules, took place on Oct. 3rd, at Skelmanthorpe, when the schedule comprised 18 classes, eight open, eight novice, and two selling, these attracting an entry of 231 birds, exactly the same number secured by this society at their show last season. The honour of being the first judge of the season fell to the lot of Mr. T. Bennett, whose awards gave general satisfaction. One astonishing feature of the show was the failure of entries for the clear Yellow Yorkshire class, only three being received, the class having therefore to be declared void, whilst clear Buffs almost underwent the same fate, five entries only being recorded, just sufficient for the class to stand with half prize money. The remaining classes were nicely filled, ten being the lowest and seventeen the highest numbers obtained. The novice classes throughout were well patronised, and here one or two members from the newly-joined societies of the Union obtained a good share of the prizes. The room is in the Working Men's Club, and is excellently adapted for a show, being well lighted, lofty, and free from draught.

The arranging and feeding of the exhibits were carried out in A1 style by the officials, who are a good and genuine lot of fanciers, whose first thoughts are for the welfare of the birds under their care. In Messrs. John Lodge, the secretary, and H. Kaye, the assistant secretary, they have two enthusiastic hard-workers, who do their best for everything concerned. Amongst other busy fanciers, the stewards, Messrs. T. Turton and H. Appleyard, with their "assistants," Messrs. F. Taylor, L. Dyson, M. Peel, Hobson Lodge, Harry Lodge, W. Wadsworth, H. W. Gill, J. Morley, A. Kilner, and S. Morley, deserve special commendation. The exhibits were all in the hands of the railway companies on their return journey by 7.30 p.m. The members' cup for most points in open classes was won by Mr. Milton Peel. Mr. W. H. Shackleton secured the special for best bird in the show; Mr. Hobson Lodge, the miniature goblet for hottest bird fed on Ramsden's pepper; Mr. Markwell the silver medal for hottest bird fed on Sandiford's pepper.

The Open Section.

YORKS CL. YELL.: Cancelled. CL. BUFF (5): 1, Townsend, very slim, rich colour, well up in position, not yet lined down; well done, Mr. Novice, for a first time of exhibiting in open; 2, Shackleton, grand shoulders, lovely quality, well braced wings and neat tail, good condition; 3, Towers grand quality, good round back, rather stronger; 4, Jenkinson, big bird, long flights, neat folded tail, not quite clean under; vhc, Drake. NEWMILNS.

The Newmilns O.A. held their annual exhibition in the Morton Hall, on Sept. 26. The prizes in the Scotch Fancy were awarded by Messrs. William Urquhart, Senr. (Paisley) and R. Price (Barrhead), to the general satisfaction of all. The remainder of the classes were adjudicated by Mr. McKean (Muirkirk), who also gave satisfaction. The quality of the exhibits staged was exceptionally good, especially in the Scotch Fancy section, where a team of twelve from the well-known Fermila Aviary, were staged. The numbers in the Cage Bird section were considerably higher than is usual, much to the delight of the secretary, Mr. R. McDowall, he being a caterer for that section. Much praise is due to him and to the energetic committee for the staging of the cage birds, which were picturesquely arranged.

BURNLEY.

The 22nd Annual Exhibition was held on Oct 2nd and 3rd, in the Large Show Room, Weavers' Institute, Burnley. Entries came up well considering the early date, and totalled 310 in the 26 classes. They comprised some very fine specimens. We noticed many birds which in the course of a few weeks will be greatly improved, and should do their respective owners some good. The Special for Best Bird in Show was won by Mr. C. J. Ward's Redpoll Bullfinch, "Excelsior," a bird which has a great future before it. That for best unflighted Norwich was won by Mr. R. Leonard with his clear yellow a bird which had many admirers. Others in the Norwich section were won by Messrs. Clews, Godley, Adnitt and Driver, Cook and Mercer, with specimens well above the average. In the Yorkshire section the bird which took our eye most was Mr. Hodgson's yellow hen, a really charming bird. Messrs. Rhodes, Lane, Galling, Wilkinson and Braybrook also staged some grand birds in this section, which were much admired. The Novice Classes, as usual, contained several choice specimens, the most notable being the exhibits of Messrs. Venables, Lucas, Huggins, Parkinson, and Nutter. The British and Foreign Bird Section, as usual, came in for a great deal of admiration by the visitors, exceptionally fine specimens being found in Messrs. Johnson and Sons' Hawfinch, Bousfield's Wryneck, and Cheetham's Superb Tanager. The hall is a very suitable one for the purpose, and the Secretary, Mr. G. Watson, had the arrangements so well in hand that he deserves the praise of all concerned. He was ably assisted by the President, Mr. J. Haythurst, the Vice-President, Mr. J. Jowett, the Treasurer, Mr. J. Carney, and a hard-working Committee, who did everything in their power to make the show the success it undoubtedly was. The weather was exceptional for a winter show, and the attendance was very good. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

BRISTOL F.S.

The members of the Bristol Fanciers' Society held a show of current year birds at their headquarters on October 1st, when some nice quality exhibits were staged, several of which will no doubt be heard of again. Some of the members could not show owing to their birds not being sufficiently through the moult. The exhibits were nicely staged by several enthusiastic fanciers, amongst whom we particularly noticed that genuine and whole-hearted one, Mr. T. R. Ind, who had on view a nice team of his favourite Lancashires, not for competition. Mr. J. H. Payne judged.

'Cage Birds' Guide to the Shows

Paste this up in your Birdroom.

We have pleasure in submitting to Fanciers a Guide to the Shows being held during the 1908-9 season which offer classes for cage birds. The fixtures printed in heavy black type are those of societies participating in the benefits of our Guarantee Scheme. If, in spite of the pains taken to mak e this list as complete as possible, any Show should have inadvertently been omitted from it, or should any Show be arranged after its publication, we shall be pleased to include same in our supplementary lists (to be published from time to time) on receiving notification.

Shows marked (*) are under Cage Bird Union Rules: those marked (†) under the rules of the Yorkshire Union of C.B.S. As fresh shows are constantly being licensed by the Cage Bird Union, however, exhibitors should refer to the official list published monthly in "Cage Birds" for additional fixtures being held under C.B.U. rules.

A QUARTETTE of INVALUABLE BOOKS for FANCIERS.

The Stock Book post free 7d.
(Our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register.")

A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." This book is one no breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred—keep account of their strong and weak points. It contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Canary Breeding for Beginners Post free. 7d.

By Claude St. John.

A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

House's Canary Manual Post free 1/2

This is a thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, and an illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style. There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

Cage Birds 1908 Annual post free 7d.

The Standard Guide to the Cage Bird Hobby is a title bestowed upon the ANNUAL years ago. And the 1908 edition merits it more than any previous volume. Revised and brought up-to-date from cover to cover, with a lovely coloured plate and many full-page art illustrations, and crammed with valuable articles and unique and helpful features, it is the finest value for money ever offered lovers of birds. Canary, British, Hybrid and Foreign bird enthusiasts alike will find it a Complete Guide to the Fancy.

ALWAYS USE
CARTERS BIRD SEEDS.
The best for all seed-eating birds. Machine-cleaned, sweet and nutritious.
Sold everywhere. Packed by—
JAMES CARTER & Co.,
Seedsmen to H.M. the King, LONDON.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

TWITTERINGS.

Have you seen Glasgow schedule yet? Good prize-money, cups, specials etc.—(ADVT.)

Entries close at Bolton, October 12th. Send for your schedule at once.—(ADVT.)

Fanciers should send at once for Morpeth schedule. Splendid classification: no cancellation.—(ADVT.)

At the Oxford show, to be held on November 26th the cage-birds will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

I have removed from Kingston Road, Wimbledon, writes Mr. F. J. Day, to 58a, Sydenham Road North, Croydon.

At Wellingboro Show, writes our reporter, Mr. W. H. Howe won 1st in Cinnamons, and not Mr. F. Martin, as printed.

Kindly note, writes Mr. T. Harper, that I have removed from Upper Villiers Street to Adelaide Villa, Dudley Road, Wolverhampton.

I have had a record breeding season having reared 177 Borders, writes Mr. Henry Bennet, the well-known Border Fancy enthusiast, of Kelso.

The committee of the Marske and Dis. F.C., writes Mr. T. Kirby, the hon. secretary, intend holding their second show on January 16th, 1908.

Mr. J. A. Bartlett has, writes Mr. B. F. Forse, the hon. secretary, been appointed reporter to the Fancy Press for the Leyton and Dis. C.B.A.

The Grimsby C.B.S. are holding their annual open show, writes Mr. H. Emerson, the hon. secretary, on December 3rd, when Mr. J. C. Barnes will judge.

Kindly notify my change of address, writes Mr. John W. Bancroft, from Princess Drive, Marsland Road, Sale Moor, to 25, Skaife Road, Sale Moor, Cheshire.

Please note that I have been appointed secretary of the Northern B.B.M. and F.B.C., writes Mr. J. Bertram, 95, Gainsbro' Grove, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Kindly note that entries for the Morpeth Show, to be held on October 17th, writes Mr. E. Cowling, the hon. secretary, have been extended to October 13th.

Entries for the Ramsgate show, to be held on October 21st and 22nd, write Messrs. Thomas and Webster, the hon. secretaries, have been extended to October 14th.

Have you got the Red Book of the season? No. Then for goodness' sake write the secretary, the Metropolitan C.B.A. Open Show, 34, Ingelow Road, Battersea.—(ADVT.)

Entries for the Cambridge and Cambs. C.B.S. Show, to be held on October 22nd and 23rd, under C.B.U. rules, writes Mr. T. S. Moore, the hon. secretary, will close on October 13th.

The members will hold their annual show, writes Mr. Lance Hall, hon. secretary of the Pelton Fell and Dis. C.B.S., on December 26th, when Mr. Thos. Dixon (Bedlington), will judge.

Please notify my change of address from Oakham Road, to 2, Caroline Street. Kate's Hill, Dudley, Worcs., writes Mr. W. H. Raybould, breeder and exhibitor of Yorkshires and Norwich.

Kindly state that I have removed from Herbert Street, writes Mr. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Sutton-in-Ashfield and Dis. O.S., to 106, Meden Bank, near Mansfield, Notts.

There is a 2s. 6d. cash special, writes Mr. G. M. Larkman, secretary of the Northampton Good Intent Show, to be held on October 21st and 22nd, for the best bird in classes 125 and 126.

Owing to a printer's error in our schedule, writes Mr. J. Simcock, hon. secretary of the Potterics and Dis. C.B.A., our show is made to close at 6 o'clock; this should have read 9 o'clock.

The Dulwich O.S. has given a gold medal, writes Mr. F. Easterling, hon. secretary of the Battersea and Dis. C.B.A., for competition at the Battersea show for the best team of six birds shown by a novice.

The Crested Canary Club's first-year champion points' specials and the Roberts £25 silver challenge cup, writes Mr. W. Stevens, the secretary, will be competed for at the Derby show on October 24th and 26th.

The Sowerby Bridge and District C.B.S. will hold their next monthly members' show of Canaries at the Bull's Head Hotel on October 10th, writes Mr. A. E. Morton, hon. secretary, when those interested are invited to attend.

By a printer's error, the name of the sender of one of the letters published last week on "Bird-catching and the Persecution of Bird-catchers," was inadvertently omitted. The writer was Mr. H. Johnson, of East Dulwich.

Schedules of our annual show, to be held on October 28th and 29th, writes Mr. G. Dowden, hon. secretary of the Stoke Newington F.A., have been sent out; members not having received one as yet will please apply to me for same.

We are looking forward to having a good show on October 24th, writes Mr. Arthur Wake, hon. secretary of the Middlesbrough and Teeside C.B.S. Our society have gone to the expense of getting new staging, which is of the same kind as that used by Newcastle.

We again had a big loss (two years running) at Wellingborough show, writes Mr. W. Howe, the secretary. I can't make exhibitors out, and should just like to know how much they want in prizes—surely 21s. is enough for a 1s. 6d. entry fee. We are only a small society—not a dozen and a half of us. It did not make any difference Messrs. R. J. Howe and F. Howe standing down, only in the foreign classes. I am almost a downhearted secretary.

TWITTERINGS continued.

We have engaged the finest room in Harrogate in which to hold our open show, writes Mr. Geo. Hy Barnwell, hon. secretary of the Harrogate C.B.S. It is beautifully lighted and newly decorated, and is 50 ft. long by 30 ft. wide. A bumping entry will ensure a successful show.

Mr. C. A. House desires us to thank the many friends who have written expressing their sympathy with him in his bereavement. Their number is far too great for him to reply to all individually, and he therefore asks his friends to accept this appreciation of their kind thoughts and words.

Mr. Cutmore, of the Liverpool Museum, will lecture before the members of the Pendleton and Salford O.S. on October 12th, at 8 p.m., writes Mr. W. Jackson, hon. secretary, when we invite the members and friends of the Manchester societies to be present. The lecture will be illustrated by specimens.

The Walthamstow F.A. will hold their annual show on December 3rd, at the Public Baths, writes Mr. A. B. Forse, hon. secretary. Owing to repeated losses on open shows, this year's show will be for members only. Fanciers desirous of joining should do so before the next committee meeting on October 15th.

Fanciers will please note, writes Mr. Alex Macdonald, secretary of the Scotch Fancy Section of the City of Glasgow O.A. Show, to be held on October 16th and 17th, that former winners of Hyde's prize are debarred from competing for same, and that Scotch Fancy and Belgian exhibitors are eligible to compete for Mr. Queen's Special, No. 37.

We are compelled to extend entries to the morning of October 11th, writes Mr. W. Paull, hon. secretary of the Hayle and Dis. show, to be held on October 14th and 15th. We have not 20 cage-bird entries at the time of closing, and unless exhibitors support us we shall have to cancell a large number of classes. The show is being held under Cage Bird Union rules.

The Linnets supplied by W. Gore, of Gooch Street, Birmingham, are undoubtedly making a great name among contest singers, one fancier having won two rounds of a cup contest besides several other contests with a bird supplied by Mr. Gore for 4d., and another fancier has won 34 prizes this season with Linnets. Both letters are published in Mr. Gore's advertisement of British Birds in this issue.—(ADVT.)

Spalding show is to be held on January 21st, and Mr. C. A. House will again place the cards.

We hear that ten classes of cage birds are to be provided at the Glynllivon Fanciers' Show on August 2nd, 1909.

The framed pictures CAGE BIRDS sent us as special prizes, writes Mr. J. Ford, secretary Kelty and Blairadam Show, are much admired, and will be well worth winning. I wish C.B. every success.

The Nelson and Dis. Cage Bird Society, writes Mr. J. England, the hon. secretary, will hold their annual members' show at the Bull Hotel, Nelson, on December 5th, when Mr. J. Broadley (Windhill), will judge.

We have received from Messrs. Graham and Gould, of 11, Little South Street, Coventry, a copy of their 1909 price list of cages, giving the wholesale and retail prices of the goods supplied by that firm. Breeding cages are a speciality, and those requiring such will do well to obtain one of the price-lists.

The following gentlemen, writes Mr. Charles C. Edmond, junr., secretary of the Cupar and Dis. O.S., have been appointed to judge at our show on December 5th:—Messrs. J. Black (Arbroath), and J. Merrilees (Broughty Ferry), for Scotch Fancies; J. Goodfellow (Edinburgh), for Mules, British and foreign birds; Chas. Camphell (Glasgow), for Norwich; and J. Craig (Brechin), for Border Fancies. A good classification is offered with plenty of specials and medals, and a trophy shield of the Scottish B.B. and M.C. to be competed for.

"British Birds" (shilling monthly).—The October issue of this magazine contains several instructively-written articles, one being from the pen of Emma L. Turner, F.L.S., on "The Green Woodpecker versus the Starling." The article is illustrated by photographs taken by the writer. Messrs. Witherby and Ticehurst continue their observations on "The more important additions to our knowledge of British Birds since 1899," and Mr. W. H. Mullens his on "Some early British Ornithologists." There are also many interesting notes.

Members of the Northern Norwich Plainhead Club should note, writes Mr. Tulloch C. Bennet, that our show at Kelso (October 21st) has been granted the bowl contest, instead of Carlisle, so the following should appear in addition to specials already in schedule: Solid silver bowl to be competed for as per rules; 5s. cash to winner of the championship bowl; 5s. cash to novice gaining most points in bowl contest; 2s. 6d. cash to novice gaining second most points. "Novices" not to have won a 1st prize previous to season 1908.

The Year Book of the Northern Yorkshire C.C. is a model of good taste, utility, and economy, and we must congratulate those concerned in its production on attaining such a useful combination of good points. The club seems to be making satisfactory progress, and we advise lovers of the Yorkshire Canary in the North of England to apply for a copy from the hon. secretary, Mr. T. C. Crawhall, 121, St. George's Terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne, who will also be pleased to put up their names for membership. A good number of specials are up for competition at the season's shows.

Fanciers: Note!

Being desirous of making a collection of the different types of Canaries, writes Mr. Alfred Thomas, taxidermist, of 9, College Street, Gloucester, I should be glad if owners of any noted prize-winners which die, and which they do not wish to have preserved, would send the birds on to me. I would send them in return half-a-dozen photographs of the bird when "set-up."

Echoes from Glasgow.

That secretary Fleming (Glasgow Southern) is on his holidays; that he deserves them; that the Glasgow Southern Show will be the best in the history of the club; that there is much speculation re the cup winner; that Corker Hill news is quiet; that there are some gems there; that there is some stir in the "Southorn Camp" as to who has the cup winner; that the members have had a splendid season's breeding; that the cup winner may hail from Bellgrove Street; that it is whispered there is a "dark horse" in Dennistown to be trotted out yet, promising well; that we have had the same "shock" before; that this month will clear the air; that president Tennant (Govan Hill) has had bad luck; that he has lost his 1st and best in hall, Buff hen and Yellow cock; that he cannot account for the loss; that many more can't account for their losses; that Govan Hill club is prospering; that the City Show promises to be a big success; that fanciers will be pleased to learn that old judge and fancier, Mr. Alex. Millar, of Rutherglen, is keeping a little better; that his many friends wish him a speedy recovery; that friend Ward, of Shettleston, has become owner of Johnstone's of Musselhurgh, 3rd (Open Derby) cock; that the Fancy wish him good luck.—SCOTS FANCY.

Have You Your Coloured Plate?

On going over our stock recently, we found therein a varied assortment of remainders of coloured plates which had been used in past seasons. These we decided to give away in to-day's issue of CAGE BIRDS. Therefore every reader of this number should receive a Coloured Plate

We have also had compiled, as complete as possible, a Guide to the Shows due to be held during the 1908-9 season, and we anticipate this feature will prove helpful and acceptable to a very large number of our readers. It should be pasted up in the bird-room; and supplementary lists may be issued from time to time.

I much regret, writes Mr. R. P. Broome (Sutton), that owing to so many calls upon my time I have had to give up the major portion of my birds and appliances. I have the consolation of knowing they have gone to a good fancier in the person of Mr. H. E. Tringham. I hope at some future time to take up again the breeding of the fascinating Yorkshire. Will show secretaries kindly note the above to avoid expense in sending schedules.

The secretary of the Bristol F.S. Show, Mr. G. T. H. Maggs, writes that the Great Western and Midland Railway Companies have granted the privilege to all visitors to travel from any point within 60 miles, on their respective railways, to Bristol, at a single fare-and-a-quarter for the return journey (minimum fare 1s.), on showing ticket of admission to the show to the booking clerk at the station of booking.

I have removed from 9, Barry Street, writes Mr. A. E. Bishop, hon. secretary of the Worcester and Dis. C.B.S., to No. 14, Barry Street, Worcester, where I have a much more convenient bird-room. Will fanciers please note that all correspondence intended for me should be addressed here to A. E. Bishop, as a Mr. A. L. Bishop has taken my previous address, and we are both bird fanciers, although not related in any way.

Fanciers will be sorry to learn, writes Mr. G. W. MacPartling, that Mr. Hutchinson, one of the esteemed secretaries of the Newcastle C.B.S., has been ill for this last fortnight with quinsy, thus throwing the "heavy end" of getting out the schedules on to a willing comrade in Mr. Curry. Having had a relapse through his anxiety to get out and into harness on show matters, Mr. Hutchinson is only just out once more from the "torture chamber," and with care expects to be on duty at the great event.

Arrangements are now complete for the International contest between the Scottish Norwich P.C.C. and the Norwich P.C., to be held at Glasgow, and West of Scotland's show on November 13th and 14th, writes Mr. J. Brown, the hon. secretary of the former society, and members are requested to note that birds with one small mark on any part of the body must be entered in clear or ticked classes. Birds with two or more marks on different parts of the body must be entered in variegated classes.

To Readers Interested in Physical Culture.

And what right-thinking man or woman is not interested in physical culture and its bearing on their health and general well-being? To these will be of special interest the announcement that the Editor of our contemporary, "Health and Strength," has arranged a tour embracing many of the leading towns of England, during which a simple, yet eminently efficient method of keeping physically fit will be publicly demonstrated by Lieutenant J. P. Muller.

A strong point to be emphasised in the matter is Lieutenant Muller's position. He receives no fee of any kind, and one of the chief points of "My System" (as his demonstration is called) is that absolutely no apparatus of any kind is necessary. Further, whatever sum remains over after payment of the ordinary out-of-pocket expenses will be handed over to some local charity.

The next meeting is at Leeds, then Bradford and Halifax come in quick succession, and we hope our readers in the towns visited (see list) will give Lieutenant Muller's deserving efforts their support, and go and see for themselves the benefits they may derive from practising his system. The prices of admission in all places will be the same—2s., 1s., and 6d. Tickets can be obtained direct from "Health and Strength" offices (12, Burleigh Street, Strand, London, W.C.), or locally. The address of the booking office will be sent by return of post if desired Address all letters: "The Muller Tour," so as to facilitate reply. List of towns and halls:—

Oct. 12.—Leeds—Albert Hall.
Oct. 14.—Bradford—Mechanics' Institute.
Oct. 16.—Halifax—Mechanics' Hall, Crossby Street.
Oct. 20.—Birmingham—Temperance Hall.
Oct. 22.—Oldham—Unity Hall.
Oct. 24.—Liverpool—Hope Hall.
Oct. 27.—Manchester—Free Trade Hall.
Oct. 31.—Hull—Assembly Rooms.

Tell all your friends about the demonstrations, the date, and the place. Make the demonstrations known in your gymnasium or club. If you are a member of any social club or society, get the fact of the demonstrations announced at the next meeting.

THE PAPER FOR ADVERTISERS WHO WANT RESULTS.

Note this Striking testimony to the success of CAGE BIRDS as a PAYING advertising medium.

I have sold the two Linnet-Bullfinch Hybrids advertised in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. Cornelius Hoyle (Featherstone). One I have sent to Halifax, the other to Scotland. Please thank the many applicants I have been unable to reply to.

I have had a very good sale through your paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I have taken from the first issue, and consider the best paper on birdie matters on the market, writes Dr. Rogerson (Dundee). Those birds advertised last week were snapped up on Saturday afternoon. Thank you for your kindness.

I had 18 applicants for one of my offers through CAGE BIRDS, and 7 for another, doing well out of both. I have always had the best satisfaction when advertising in this paper, and have recommended it to many of my customers. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—JOHN BEATTIE (Scholes, Leeds).

Kindly thank all those who answered my advertisement re Mules, writes Mr. H. Payne (New Southgate), as I received replies from all parts of the country, and my small stock was soon disposed of. This shows the circulation and influence your valuable paper must have. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

The applications for my Cirl Bunting are much too numerous for me to reply to them all, and I shall be glad if you will kindly intimate this through your columns. Letters came from Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, to say nothing of England. What better medium than CAGE BIRDS for advertising in could you want or get?—A. G. BROWN (Weymouth).

I have much pleasure in enclosing 25s., the amount for advertising our show for this year, writes Mr. J. Ford, sec., Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A. I quickly had no less than 33 postcards for schedules, which says something, considering it was for only the first week's advertisement. I hope we shall finish with a record entry, and wish your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS every success.

Just a few lines, writes Mr. S. Drake, of Halifax, to express my satisfaction at the splendid results your paper, CAGE BIRDS, has given me this season from my advertisement. I am sure I have been well satisfied at the way customers have turned up, having had over 300 all out of the town. I have enclosed you my order book for proof of same. I have not booked any which I have sold over the counter. You will see that I have sent my rings into nearly every part of the civilised world. Two letters are enclosed, the orders in which I sent away a few hours after arrival of same, to New Zealand and South Africa. So my new ring, which has raised or embossed numbers, and is a very neat ring, has been a decided success. I shall have another improvement for next season.

THE PORTRAYAL OF PRIZE WINNERS.

Would You Like to Have a Portrait of Your Successful Bird as a Memento?

As first announced in our issue of September 19th, for the forthcoming show season we have been able to make such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS by the best available artist in the country, at the lowest possible cost. Mr. H. Norman, whose work on "Cage Birds" with pencil, pen, and brush has for some years now placed him in the position of premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended, and from this it will be seen that north, south, east, and west will be thoroughly and equally represented.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits at any of these shows should be placed at once with our Manager, who will be very pleased to communicate terms, dates, etc., to all desirous of seeing their birds pictured in the leading bird journal.

Apart from the wide publicity accorded to such sketches, there must be something particularly pleasing in the notion of having a permanent, accurate, and skilfully-drawn memento of one of your prize winners. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced.

There is one point we should like to make clear, and that is that exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds at any of the undermentioned shows conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

It will, of course, also be possible for exhibitors to make direct arangements with Mr. Norman at the show in the hour of victory, but it will ensure an earlier reproduction IF THE ORDER IS PLACED RIGHT AWAY AT THIS OFFICE.

For terms, positions, etc., apply immediately to the Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

REMEMBER: The first Show will be the City of Glasgow, on the Saturday, October 17th.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

Herewith we give the list of shows referred to above, and would again impress upon our intending clients to communicate with our Manager immediately, should they wish to see their birds portrayed on or in CAGE BIRDS this season:—

Ootober 16th.—City of Glasgow
,, 20th.—Plymouth (Western Counties).
,, 23nd.—Bristol.
,, 30th.—Manchester.
Nov. 11th.—Carlisle.
,, 14th.—Nottingham.
,, 25th.—Cardiff.
,, 27th.—Leeds.
Dec. 11th.—Gateshead.
,, 31st.—Ediuboro' (Scottish National)

You have taken a step in the right direction by arranging to have winners from all over the kingdom portrayed in CAGE BIRDS.—R. R. TORR (Plymouth).

Your new idea for sketching prize-winners at the shows I think a very good one, and I hope it will meet with the success it deserves.—R. G. JOLIFFE (Glasgow).

Other appreciative letters concerning our scheme reach us from Messrs. J. Thomas (Bugle, Cornwall), G. Leith (Portobello), E. Barker (Long Eaton), W. Nichols (Norwich), and others.

TO OUR READERS.

Despite the fact that we have this week provided no fewer than ten extra pages, owing to the great pressure of current matter, and a gratifying though unanticipated jump in our advertisements, we have had to hold over several items of interest which were in type. We shall hope to publish them all next week.

THE NEW BEEF TEA.

In Fluid Ju-Vis (the New Beef Tea), you get about double value for money as compared with the usual Fluid Beef Extracts. Fluid Ju-Vis is equally nutritious, being prepared solely from Beef, with valuable vegetable additions. It makes delicious rich gravies, or a Cup of Strong Beef Tea for a penny. Try it. — 6½d. bottles of all grocers.

Please renew my subscription to your interesting journal, CAGE BIRDS. I always read with pleasure all articles which concern birds, and particularly those written in your paper by men having a long experience in the breeding of English Canaries. By means of your journal, too, I have got into communication with several breeders in Great Britain, and I am very satisfied with our mutual transactions. Accept my wishes for the prosperity of your publication.—BARON B. DU THEIL DE LA ROCHERE (Dorogue).

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Sulky Papa.

M.W.B.—It is quite possible the two cocks being in sight of each other, and the young one coming into song, have produced a green-eyed monster in his papa's breast, so that he refuses to emulate his son's vocal efforts. But you must remember that a very large number of old cocks do not resume singing for some weeks after the young ones are well on, and it is likely this is the real explanation of your old bird's behaviour. However, you will doubtless hasten matters by hanging the two cages on the same side of the room in box cages, so that the cocks will be able to see but very little of each other. In the soft food well mix five drops of sherry for the old bird, and add to his drinking water twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week. By the way, twice a week will be sufficient to give the soft food as soon as the birds begin to come on song. Give green-food every second day, and see the cages are not exposed to draughts.

Coughing and Sneezing.

M.J.E.—The hen is either exposed to some draught or the moult had rendered her more than usually susceptible to atmospheric changes, as it very often does. The first is probably the correct theory, so first see that this cause is quite removed. Keep the cage in a comfortably warm place; add a fourth part of summer rape seed to the staple diet; discontinue the mixed seed, and the egg for the present; and in place of these give half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, and three times a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, in which mix five drops of sherry each time until the bird is recovered. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food; continue this for a fortnight.

Stock Mixture for Songster.

"Singer."—If you expect a recipe for an elaborate mixture of numerous seeds, such as you purchase in packets, you will be disappointed. No such mixture is really suitable for a stock mixture for singing birds, which usually means a bird kept continually in a small cage. The best staple diet for such birds is a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape for ordinary birds, and for German-bred birds the proportions should be two parts Canary to one part summer rape. Therefore if you want to keep a stock mixture to serve out to the birds direct, you have only to mix together any quantity of these two seeds in the proportions given. To complete the diet give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, a sprig of green-food, or bit of sweet fruit, every second day, and a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake twice a week. This simple dietary is far more serviceable and wholesome than the most elaborate and varied one you could concoct. On very rare occasions, or if the bird gets a bit roft, a few grains of Inga may be given as a pick-me-up. Similarly when green-food is unobtainable, and fruit scarce, half a teaspoonful of scalded rape may be given occasionally; and an equal quantity of egg-food, or a scrap of bread soaked in milk, and sprinkled with maw seed, may also be substituted on rare occasions for the sponge cake, but, save in exceptional cases, the latter is the better form of soft food, and also the safer.

Will They Survive?

A. B. Carter.—If the Canaries are of any ordinary variety, and not exceptionally highly bred, I have no hesitation in saying they will not only survive, but will thrive and do very well in the outdoor aviary you describe. Figuratively speaking they will not care a rap for the cold, nor turn a feather on account of it. Of course I assume you have one end of the structure, or at least a corner of it, roofed over, so as to form an open shed, to which the birds can retire at will, and roost under. If not you should see that this is done before severe weather arrives, or otherwise hang in a few small boxes with a third part of the lids sawn off and the remaining part nailed down, so that these may form covered roosting places for the birds.

Grooming a Crest.

"Crest."—To properly train and groom a crest that is horny and faulty in shape requires rather skilful handling, and you would do well to try and get an old hand at the business to give you an object lesson. You must wait until the moult is finished, so that there are no quills or sappy feathers in the crest. Then catch the bird three or four times a week, and with a small piece of sponge dipped in hot water, and squeezed as dry as possible, lightly wipe over the crest feathers for a minute or so, going evenly all way round and wiping the feathers in the direction you wish them to lie. Soak the horny feathers in warm water, if necessary, to make them lie down. Now get a fairly large camel-hair brush, warm it before the fire, and brush the crest with it, again brushing in the direction you want the feathers to lie, and go evenly all round to prevent any gaps forming. Continue this brushing until the crest is quite dry, and keep your brush warm whilst doing it. If skilfully done one week's treatment should be sufficient even for a bad crest that is really capable of improvement.

To Deal With Red Mite.

J. K. Bennett.—Yes, powders as you now know are of very little practical use in keeping down red-mites, much less exterminating them. As your cages are so badly infested, get a half-pint of methylated spirit from any druggist, dissolve in it an ounce of camphor, and with a small paint brush saturate the joints of the doors, perch ends, and any suspected crevice, with the solution every second day. Do not mind the odour, as it is perfectly harmless to the birds, and does not last many minutes. Let this suffice until the birds have finished moulting. Then move them into clean cages, and paint the dirty ones all over inside and out with the solution, using it liberally, and working it well into every joint and crevice. Repeat operation next day, and when it is dry, re-paint or distemper the insides, and paint or stain (as the case may be), and re-varnish the outsides. Treat the walls or staging where the cages have stood in same way, and you will be able to start with a clean bill.

Wanting to Sit.

E.W.—Put the hen on a diet of plain Canary, with green-food every second day, and add to each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water ten drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts, every second day for a week, as will cover a sixpence. You might also remove the hen into another cage, and place a small, snaggy little bush on the floor where she persists in sitting. If this does not cure her devise some plan of fixing a wire front lying flat about two inches off the cage floor, so that she cannot reach the floor to sit down, but has to perch on the wires. This will soon bring her to reason. Of course, you should not keep such a hen within sight or hearing of the cocks.

Continually Moulting.

L. Wright.—You must first of all satisfy yourself that none of these causes affects your bird, viz., draught, damp, extreme fluctuations of temperature, and red mites. If any one or all of these causes are present the first step must be to remove it, or them. Keep the bird in a comfortable, but not overheated, temperature, and feed and treat as follows:—Instead of present diet, which is not suitable, give as a staple a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful of hemp, and three times a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with five drops of sherry well mixed in it. Give a little green food every second day; a bath two or three times a week, being careful to avoid exposure to chill afterwards; and a regular supply of gritty sand in the cage. In the drinking water give twenty drops of Parrish's chemical food every second day, and on alternate days four drops of tincture of steel. Continue this until the feathers cease dropping out, then stop the steel, and continue with the chemical food for a fortnight longer. This should soon put the bird all right.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

D.M.—You have been giving doses of acid of more than double the necessary strength. Your surmise about a probable chill having been caught is doubtless correct, and the position of the cage in the window is most likely at the root of all the trouble. It is, in fact, one of the worst possible positions for a bird to be kept in. You should move it at once to a place in the room where the temperature is equable. Then feed and treat as advised to "L. Wright," with the exception that you should not give hemp seed; on days when you would be giving this, give green food instead. Of course, you must withhold the bread and milk, and let the sponge cake supply its place. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash, well shaken together, every second day for a week. After this give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of dandelion juice, and three each of tincture of gentian and tincture of steel.

Singing Hens in Bad Condition.

M. Crofts.—The condition of your hen is rather suggestive of red-mite attacks, so I should advise you to go over its cage very carefully, and examine every nook and crevice. If any small hole or open joint is found, scrape it out with a pin on to a sheet of white paper, and you will soon discover whether mites are in the cage or not. If you find any areas covered with tiny white powdery looking spots you may be quite sure there is a colony of red-mites hard by. Of course, if you discover any mites the cage must be thoroughly overhauled to eradicate them before any other treatment is attempted. See reply to another querist on this subject this week for method of extermination. Your feeding is not at all good. Drop it altogether, and adopt the following food and treatment for a few weeks. Keep it in a nice comfortably warm position, quite free from draughts; allow it to bathe two or three times a week; keep the cage perfectly clean, and the floor strewn with gritty sand. As a staple diet give three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and every second day give a little green-food, chickweed preferably, if you can obtain it, and on the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, well mixing with it twice each week for the next month or six weeks the following sulphur powder. Take as much flour of sulphur as will just cover a threepenny piece, and twice as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence. Well mix these together, and divide into four equal parts. Give one portion in the soft food for each dose. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and as much sulphate of soda, every second day for a week, as will cover a sixpence, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food.

More Moulting Troubles.

"Clarendon," Bilston.—I do not think there is much the matter with your Roller except that it is moulting slowly. A sudden drop in temperature may have checked it a little, and then the recent warm spell would set it off again. It will probably soon finish now. Your feeding is not quite right. Add three parts of Canary to one part of rape as a staple, and only give a very few grains of linseed at a time, and not oftener than twice a week. Well mix five drops of sherry in the egg food each time you give it, and in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water add twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give by the same means four drops of tincture of steel. As soon as the feathers cease dropping, and the bird is in tight plumage again, stop all these medicines.

Wild Seed and Sawdust.

In Doubt.—Sorry I am not enough of a botanist to name the varieties of plant to which the seeds you send belong. The only one I recognise seems to be a species of sorrel, which, in my experience, Canaries never touch in the seed stage. Whether it would be harmful to Canaries in an aviary I cannot say: I should think not. 2. If your aviary is roofed over so that the floor never gets wet, you may certainly use sawdust as a covering for it. But if it is exposed to wind or rain, I should much prefer sand as a covering, which is the best for all outdoor places of any size. If you use sawdust you must not omit a shallow box of gritty sand in one corner, from which the birds can pick what they require for digestion.

Insects and Maggots.

H. Cooke.—I am sorry I cannot determine the exact nature of the trouble. The whitish insects may be the common grey lice, which often infest Canaries; but instead of being found principally in the sand on the cage bottom, they should be found living among the feathers on the birds. But perhaps if you handle the birds to examine them you will find them there. On the other hand, if you gather your own sand from near watercourses, the insects may be conveyed with it. In either case, to get rid of them wash out the cages with a fairly strong solution of Sanitas or Jeyes' Fluid once a week until they have quite disappeared, and give the bird a bath twice a week in which a few quassia chips have been soaked. The maggots are probably the larvae of a small moth, closely allied to the common clothes moth, which is very destructive to feathers, and which will breed in the accumulations in cages, especially during the breeding season when feathers form a part of the debris. The moth, which is a small mottled greyish-brown creature, with a spread of wing of a little over half an inch, may be seen flying about in the room where it breeds. Absolute cleanliness in the cages, and the removal and immediate destruction of all accumulations of feathers and rubbish is the surest way to get rid of them and to keep them at bay. The treatment of the cages for the insects will, of course, also help to rid them of these.

Heating an Aviary.

Japan.—As your aviary appears to be built with only single wooden walls, it will, unless built in a very well-sheltered spot, probably be subject to great variations of temperature, and as it is also comparatively small I think you would be well advised to provide it with thorough good ventilation, with the inlet for fresh air near or upon the floor, and put up heating apparatus in order to be prepared for any contingency. The best and safest means of doing this is by a system of hot water pipes with the boiler and furnace situated outside, so that no fumes of combustion can enter the room to contaminate it. You could get this effected either with a slow combustion stove for heating, or an oil stove, if protected from wind and weather, at a small cost.

Brevities.

Nature of Finess (Novice).—The bird was suffering from paralysis and would be quite incurable after the first seizure. It is very probable that an overfed condition and an inordinate fatness were the predisposing causes. If others appear to be going the same way catch them and see whether their bodies appear blocked up with fat. If they do, put them on a spare plain diet, with plenty of greed food and give a saline aperient in the water three times a week for a few weeks.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Greenfinch for Exhibition.

P. E. F.—I should want to look at any Greenfinch before definitely committing myself to the "best advice" on getting it ready for show. Some Greenlos (I must whisper this) are undoubtedly improved by having a little colour-food. Given a rattling good big bird, however, with a wide, bold head, and a very wide, well-rounded chest, it can be shown with every prospect of winning a prize or two, whether it be a buff or a jonque. It is essential that an exhibition Greenfinch should be very steady. If your bird is not this, then you would do wrong to turn it into an aviary. Any cage should be as large as possible—a good sized flight cage, for instance. The show-cage should be about 12 ins. long, by 11 high, by 5½ wide, of the "Norwich club" pattern, or, preferably, with inch bow at the top, as recommended by the N.B.H. and M.C. A good moult (commenced early and quickly got over) and a free use of the bath are all that are necessary to ensure a Greenfinch having a tight-fitting, sleek jacket. Your bird would seem to be late starting the moult. For food, the most important item is a daily feed of good, sound (full kernelled) sunflower seed. This can be offered in a separate dish, or placed among the stock mixture. The latter should be made up as follows: Canary and teazle, two pints each, hemp, summer rape, charlock and linseed half a pint each. Wild seed mixture, and some good maker's special packet finch mixture, can be occasionally offered for a change, while sunflower heads (gathered from the garden) full of seed, thistle and hard-heads, seeding chickweed, groundsel and shepherd's purse should be freely given as in season. On such a menu, nicely varied any Greenfinch should flourish like the proverbial fighting cock.

A Fine Chaffinch.

F. Heal.—I should very much like to see your bird. Why not send it up to one of the London shows? You would have to enter it in the class for rare-feathered birds. The description you give reminds me strongly of a specimen exhibited last season several times as a "Chaffinch-Canary-Mule," but always "wrong-classed." You say it has a mixed "plum-colour, yellow and white back, blue top of head, with white around the face like a Goldfinch's blaze, mixed white and yellow wings and natural coloured breast." I cannot say it is of any considerable value. You should feed it as follows: Let the stock mixture be: Canary and teazle three parts each, linseed, sunflower, summer rape and charlock one part each. Maw, wild seed mixture, niger, thistle, dandelion, etc., can be given now and again, as a treat, with a mealworm or two every day or so. A little ripe fruit is often relished. Hemp is not to be overdone, a pinch now and again being the limit. Of greenfood, a sprig of any of the kinds I am so frequently recommending may be offered, though Chaffie is not as keen on it as most others of the Finches. If he will eat berries—rich-coloured, ripe, privet, black, elder, etc., give same ad libitum. A little of a first-class insectivorous food should also be frequently given; while live food, mealworms, wasp—grubs, gentles, small grubs generally, flies, etc., must be freely offered. Smashed walnuts and other nuts, are very much relished, and such oily foods are most valuable, given at the end of the moult.

Nightingale Show Cage.

A. J.—It is very difficult to describe on paper a Nightingale's show-cage. Besides, different fanciers have different ideas as to what is best. If you don't intend to make it yourself, then you will be quite safe in writing to any good cage-maker advertising in our columns, stating that you want a show-cage suitable for this species, and leaving the matter in his hands. The only kind I object to are those with food and water vessels (made of tin generally), which push in close to the floor of the cage, for then both food and water get smothered in whatever is used as the floor covering, especially if this latter be sawdust. It is then almost impossible for the bird to find any food. I like the pattern where food and water vessels swing in through openings cut into the bottom rail, and are on a level with the two bottom perches. They can still be made of tin (unbreakable). If glass vessels are used they need to fit quite tightly. A third perch should be screwed to the back of the cage, about half-way up, and be in length about half the width (front to back) of the cage. This the bird can "retire" on, and being short, it serves to keep him off the wires. When in position, the three perches form the familiar "triangle" pattern, viewed from front of cage

Siskin and Mealy Redpoll.

F.D.—A "bib" is a crowning point of excellence in a show Siskin, and is a feature a judge always looks for. At the same time it is not by any means indispensable, for one often sees Siskins in the prize money that have no bib, or only a trace of it. A bird without a bib, but of "splendid colour and size," and with "all other points" (as you describe yours) is certainly a suitable bird to exhibit. It would "play second fiddle," of course, if it met another bird with a bib, and as good in other exhibition properties. The latter you will find both pictured and described on the CAGE BIRDS Chart which had the Siskin for its subject—post free, 3d. With regard to the Mealy Redpoll, in my opinion it is neither desirable nor necessary to colour-feed this species. As its name indicates, it is naturally a greyish coloured bird, and I consider that purity of the colour of the plumage where of this tone (the breast and abdomen) ought to be a valuable asset from the show point of view. Size is a vital point with an exhibition Mealy; the bigger the bird the better its chance of success. It should have a good bib (like the Lesser Redpoll), and be heavily laced at sides of the breast and down the flanks.

The Bunting Family.

Ajax.—I think you bought your birds very reasonably indeed. Though they have not much vocal ability, the Buntings are interesting birds to keep, taken on the whole. The only "stock mixture" you will need is plain Canary seed. Few will eat any quantity of other seeds, though, now and again small oats, wild seed mixture, rape, cracked hemp, coarse oatmeal, maw, and one or two other seeds will be picked over and a few eaten, but not sufficient to warrant their inclusion in a "stock mixture." To make up a little variety in the diet, it is best to give a feed of soaked ants' eggs frequently, and live insect food (mealworms, flies, scoured gentles, small beetles, and grubs generally) according to season. Fresh (live) ants' eggs are relished exceedingly. "Shop" ants' eggs (get the best quality only) are well liked if soaked in a little new milk, drained on a cloth, and then given the birds. Many Finches, too, appreciate them when prepared in this way. It is well to mix a sprinkling of a good insectivorous food among the ants' eggs, gradually increasing the quantity, as in this way Buntings (other species, too) can be got to eat it readily; and it is very good for them. Green food these birds are not keen on, but you can always offer them a sprig of whatever you may happen to have in the place. Corn Buntings will usually eat a little "seeding green-food" (grasses, shepherd's-purse, etc.), and Reed Buntings, too.

Treatment of Linnet.

Y.R.W.—You should read the chapter on the Linnet in the "British Bird Manual," price 1s. 1d., from CAGE BIRDS office. The stock cage I prefer, and use myself, is one not less than 16 ins. long, by 12 high by 8 wide. The pattern is illustrated in the above book. The bottom rail is made very deep, and the seed drawer runs through an opening cut in this—runs from front to back of cage. There are two perches, both on a level, resting on top of this bottom-rail. It is known in the trade as a "Finch stock cage," and all up-to-date cage makers will supply it. The Linnet is best fed on the following lines; at least, this is how I feed my own, with the best of results. Contest singers have cages and methods entirely their own, and you would need to join (or attend) a singing club to gain an insight into them. It is too lengthy a subject to deal with in these query columns. A good seed mixture is: Canary three pints, teazie two pints, summer rape, chariock and linseed one pint each. A feed of hemp, maw, niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green-food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter, and ripe seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the summer. When newly caught, cracked hemp (fresh made each day) and maw seed should be freely given, with some niger as well; likewise a pan of soaked rape (dabbed as dry as possible in a cloth) should also be provided. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable variation from the ordinary stock mixture.

Management of Nuthatch.

E.W.—A very suitable cage for a Nuthatch would be one about 24 ins. high by 16 long, by 11 wide, with a piece of virginian cork in one corner, extending from floor to ceiling. The latter should be semi-circular in form, and arranged so that a "tube" is left at the back, down which the Nuthatch may pop when so disposed. An entrance hole should be arranged at the top (not over large), and another near the bottom. I strongly advise you to have two pieces of cork (or "bark," as some term it) and change them fairly frequently, thoroughly scalding the one last used with boiling water, or stoving it for a time in a fairly warm oven. This is necessary to keep down insect pests. I always fix one perch in my cages, near the bottom, on the opposite side to the cork, and have found my Nuthatches use same freely. If room is no object, then a larger cage, with bark in two corners would, of course, be an improvement. Food and water vessels should go inside. The bird is very fond of bathing, and should be allowed to freely. Its main food should be a good quality of insectivorous mixture, such as is supplied to small soft-bill birds, moistened with grated raw carrot, or finely-chopped lettuce, or other green-food. Several very good "soft-foods" will be found advertised in our columns. Suitable live-foods must also be given, according to season, and a few small nuts (cracked, if necessary) and sunflower and hemp seeds. One particular favourite I had, possessed a wonderful appetite, and very varied tastes. He liked (in addition to the above things) hard-boiled eggs, bits of cake, currants and things, all sorts of nuts, mealworms, live ants' eggs, wasp grub, gentles, flies and tiny beetles, and many kinds of fruit, peeled grapes being a "speciality."

Brevities.

Cutting Jackdaw's Tongue (A. E. Milner).—Do not be guilty of such a barbarous and unnecessary cruelty—unnecessary, because it does not help a bird to become a talker. That it does do so is only an "old woman's tale." Any wretch guilty of slitting a bird's tongue ought certainly to have his (I won't say, or her) tongue slit, too.

Ailing Magpie (P. C. Malthy).—Try the bird with a few Sparrows or mice as food. Also give it two days on saline medicine—a small teaspoonful of sulphate of soda dissolved in a breakfast-cupful of water. After washing the foot with carbolic soap and warm water, rub it gently, but thoroughly, with Zambuk (from any chemist).

Siberian Goldfinch (Avis).—The symptoms you describe are all incidental to the moulting period, and need cause you no alarm. Let him have plenty of thistle daily, and half a teaspoonful of niger seed, and the same quantity of maw seed, on alternate days. It would help him if on alternate days you stirred a small teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food into its drinking water, using a glass or pot vessel. Little fear of the "head under wing" business.

Concerning Mealworms (R. G. S.).—Evidently you are unaware of the fact that it is a very slow business, the establishment of a "mealworm-producing tin." Broadly speaking, it takes close on twelve months—that is, while the beetles lay eggs, and the eggs hatch, and the worms develop to any size. I agree with you they are expensive things to buy; my own bill for them is appalling, although I also breed them. Some such place as a bakehouse is needed to "grow" them to the best advantage, heat being absolutely essential. I had not the good fortune to be born a baker. You will, you see, have to exercise patience.

An Ailing Goldfinch (S. C.).—To be candid with you, I doubt very much whether the growths can be cured (removed) and the feathers induced to grow again. "Close to the eyes" is a nasty position. Further, many of these growths are absolutely incurable; a qualified person, such as a veterinary surgeon, would be the only one able to advise you as to this. You could do no harm, and might do good, if you gently dressed the places daily with a little boracic ointment, obtainable from a chemist.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Cockatoo and its Plumage.

Publican.—You do not give me any particulars as to age, time it has been in your possession, etc. Unless it is a very old bird it appears to be plucking its plumage; is this so? Is it troubled with parasites of any description? If there are any in its plumage you must spray it with quassia solution till they disappear. In any case, this can do no harm, as the quassia solution will make the quills, etc., very distasteful. Put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food by making its drinking water the colour of port wine with same. A little boiled maize would be helpful to this bird, every other day if it will eat it; before supplying to the bird well dust it with flour of sulphur. Note: Boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be scalded out for each occasion. Diet: Seed mixture—Canary seed, oats, dari, wheat, hemp, maize, and sunflower seeds in equal parts; well mix and keep a supply continuously in the cage, also a piece of clean cuttlefish. Also supply such ripe fruit as the bird will eat, plain biscuits, nuts (hazel, Brazil, or walnut—vary the kind from time to time), green food, such as lettuce and other wholesome salads. Persevere with the above treatment; recovery cannot be rapid in such cases, and it is quite hopeless if the birds get supplied with any slops, messes or table scraps. Confine it to the above diet, etc., and as the bird gains in conditions it will recover its plumage. In case of any appearance of constipation, make its drinking water just saline with Epsom salts for one day. Hope the bird will soon improve.

Seed-eaters for Out-doors.

H. Thornley.—I do not recollect your previous query; if it did not go astray, it was certainly answered. Only the hardiest species will survive in so small an aviary, which is really only a cage. I should not advise you to attempt to keep more than a dozen or 15 therein. You certainly must purchase the Foreigners at once; they ought to have been put out three months ago to be safe. However, I think you will be safe with the following, and you can add others in the spring: Zebra Finches, Grey Java Sparrows, Ribbon Finches or Cut-throats and British Siskins, Redpolls, Goldfinches and Bullfinches. This will give you a pleasing variety during the winter, and you can add other brighter-plumaged Foreigners in the spring. Supply separately Canary, white and spray millet seeds, rape, hemp, oats, and sunflower seeds, with a little "wild bird mixture" occasionally; also greenfood (a little apple is a good substitute during the winter), but it must not be given frosted; also regular supplies of grit, cuttlefish and water for drinking and bathing.

Parrot with Diarrhœa.

G. A. Meyer.—Should like more information re your bird; will you please inform me per return, if the bird is a newly imported one, and how long it has been in your possession? I should risk one dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (one teaspoonful in the drinking water for one day), also giving a little brandy and water (very weak) in a spoon, say twice during the day. Stop the prepared chalk and put half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food over the boiled maize, so that it is fairly distributed over the whole quantity. After giving the magnesia for the one day, well colour the drinking water with the Chemical Food for at least a month. Its voidings should be removed as quickly as possible. Let it have a liberal supply of cuttlefish to chew up; this will help check the diarrhœa. Note.—The boiled maize only keeps fresh one day, and food vessels should be scalded out on each occasion, great care being taken that no stray bits are left in cage from one day to another. On receipt of your reply I will try to help you further; give me full details as to its present condition.

On Keeping Seeds.

F. Leng.—I do not like the idea of keeping them air tight; I have always found seeds do best in zinc lined bins, or large tins with a loose fitting lid, anything sufficiently close to exclude mice. The room, cupboard, etc. in which the boxes or bins are stored should be dry and well ventilated. (1) Yes, providing they were dry when stored, but I get a month's supply at a time and keep them in a tin in a dry kitchen cupboard, and never have any spoil. If they were at all damp when put in the jars I should imagine they would soon become fusty and the same applies to seeds. (2) Apples, etc., are better stored on airy shelves whole and cut up as required. I cannot advise you as to the cut up fruit; it can be done, but it needs some process of preservation. I am totally unacquainted with the modus operandi. (3) I cannot say, It is easily tried, by keeping a small portion for a given period, by both systems. This I can say, if your storage receptacles excludes dust and mice, and your storehouse is dry and well ventilated, seed can be kept fresh and sweet for any period. (4) I do not know of any seed that really needs to be kept air tight; your receptacles can easily be dust proof and yet not necessarily air-tight.

In a Bad Way.

A. J.—I very much fear your bird is in a very bad way, but you cannot do much besides keep it quiet and warm (but not in a vitiated atmosphere). It is suffering from the effects of the voyage to this country. Most Parrots will eat sponge cake; soak a piece about an inch cube in Dinneford's Magnesia, and when partly dry supply to the bird. Give it three or four such pieces every other day, but only one piece on each occasion. Continue the chemical food in its drinking water. This cannot do harm, but do not leave it in the cage continuously. Let it have a good drink three or four times a day. Hang a piece of cuttlefish in the cage, and supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts (shelled walnuts are best), in addition to the seeds you are giving. At present give it the seeds it will eat, but make your mixture thus: 4 parts Canary seed and 1 part each hemp and cornflower. Each morning offer it a little water just chilled, into which you have put 4 drops of brandy to, say, a tablespoonful of water. In fact, the tablespoon is as good as anything to offer it in. Keep its cage very clean and remove its voidings promptly. Unless the trouble has got too firm a hold it should yield to this treatment. Report progress a week hence. In case the bird should die, do not use its cage for another bird till it has been well sterilised.

Amazon in Poor Feather.

W. Charles.—In the first place be sure the bird has no parasites. You had better spray it every other day with quassia solution, keeping it carefully out of draught till dry. Give three doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, with a two-day interval between each dose—one teaspoonful in the drinking water—and continue this for a month at least. Make the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food. Diet: A little boiled maize twice a week (this only keeps fresh one day and food vessels must be scalded out for each occasion); for the next month dust this with flowers of sulphur. Seed mixture: Canary seed, hemp, maize, wheat, dari, oats, and sunflower seeds, 3 parts Canary seed and 1 part each of the others; well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage, also a piece of clean cuttlefish. Supply at intervals ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts (shelled walnuts are best), and a little green food, as in season. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Many species of Parrots are now in the moult, and probably this is the case with you. If so, the breast feathers will appear through the down in due course. In any case the above treatment will help it into condition.

Foreign Birds Out of Doors.

H. Mowbray.—The aviary figured in "Foreign Birds for Beginners" was intended as a Finch or small Parrakeet (Budgerigar and the like) aviary; it is equally suitable for the larger birds, but of course should be of larger dimensions for these. The Rosella, for instance, is little short of 2ft. across the wings when flying, and in keeping birds out of doors in cold localities, space for exercise is half the battle over. If you could make the open flight three times the size as given in "Foreign Birds for Beginners," with the covered-in portions and shed of the same size, the arrangement should answer admirably, the front to be as near full south as you can arrange. Saffron, Zebra and Ribbon Finches, Grey Javas, Cardinals, Budgerigars, Cockatoos, Roselia and Redrump Parrakeets, would all survive the winter in your locality, and would all agree together providing they are not crowded. You must, of course, furnish the aviary with an ample supply of nesting boxes and logs; the birds will use them as night shelters, and during the worst part of the year any exposed portion of the aviary could be screened with a canvas sheet. But if the shed and covered in part are watertight, I do not think you will have any losses owing to severity of the weather, i.e., with the species named above. Note: Unless you can procure birds that have been out of doors all the summer, you must not turn them out till spring, not even your caged Budgerigars. Turn them out then; they can then be left altogether.

Foreigners with Britishers.

W. Lewis.—In the first place, Chaffinches and Blackbirds are dangerous company, and though they may remain amiable for a year or two, sooner or later you'll have to "pay the piper" for keeping them associated together. Zebra Finches are pretty, and are also certain breeders; so are Ribbon Finches and White Java Sparrows, but to meet your requirements as to bright plumage I should advise Gouldian Finches; you will find these fully dealt with in "Foreign Birds for Beginners," post-free 1/1 from this office. The only trouble is getting them acclimatised, and before this is accomplished there are often annoying losses; but you may have luck and succeed straight away. However, it would not do to put them outside at this time of year; you must wait until May, or better keep them indoors in a roomy box cage and turn them out in May. All the following are handsome and would live in your aviary:—Long-tailed Greenfinch, Ruficaudas, Diamond Finches, Common and Green Avadavats, and Grey and Gold-breasted Waxbills. You have breeding space for from 12 to 15 pairs of birds; all the above would agree together, and practically thrive on the same treatment. Put in a cock Green Singing Finch; it may mate with one of your Canaries and give you some handsome Hybrids.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (Disheartened).—Ulceration of liver and lungs, possibly of an infectious nature. It would be well to remove the other birds into fresh quarters, and thoroughly disinfect the old aviary, and particularly the floor.

Canary (H. Leech).—Chronic enlargement of liver, recent inflammation involving the lungs.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Exhibitors' Names (P. Wash).—We will give your suggestion our consideration, though we are afraid it is not one that would prove easy to put into practice.

Bermondsey and Dist. F.A. (A. Lupton).—Your notice of meeting, Oct. 6th, reached us after we had gone to press.

A Settlement (R. Secombe).—We were pleased to read the message contained in your letter.

A Service (W. E. Brooks).—Accept our best thanks.

An Unflighted Bird (J. Foster).—An unflighted bird means one that still carries the flight feathers it developed while in the nest. In our opinion this term does not cover the tail feathers—"flight" feathers cannot be held to mean "tail" feathers as well. Therefore, a bird with its first flights intact, but which has had its tail feathers extracted, is still "unflighted" in the meaning of that term.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at King's Head, Shannon-street, on October 4th, when 23 birds sang before a crowded house. Mr. H. Allen judged. Timekeeper, Mr. J. Grant. 1st and 3rd, Hardcastle; 2nd, Stead. —WILSON NAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

PENTONVILLE (London, N.).

At the Bee Hive, Cynthia-street, Pentonville-road, on Oct. 3rd and 4th, there were large gatherings of fanciers, and some very good singing was heard. Tubby and Hughes provided winning birds. Free handicap to follow, for which see CAGE BIRDS. —F. WESTMORE, Timekeeper.

FANCIERS' FESTIVITIES.

Barrow and District C.B.A.

The annual supper and social was held on September 16th, at Richard and Gardener's dining rooms, when an excellent spread was provided, which gave great satisfaction. After supper the president, Mr. J. Higgin, who occupied the chair, called upon the secretary to make the presentation. The secretary said it was a pleasure to him to make the presentation of cups won at the late young bird show, as both cups had been won by what he might say were, practically speaking, novice members. It must be very gratifying to those members to attain such honours in such a short space of time, and he hoped they would continue their efforts and win prizes in open competition outside of our own society's shows with honour to themselves and credit to the association to which they belonged. He also hoped this would encourage other young members to follow their example. Both members suitably replied, and thanked the chairman and secretary for their kind remarks and good wishes. The challenge cup for any variety of young Canary except Border Fancy was won by Mr. Fred Henderson, and the Border Fancy cup by Mr. George Large. Mr. C. W. Treadwell then entertained the company with his gramophone, which was much enjoyed. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Treadwell for his excellent entertainment, which concluded a most enjoyable evening.—J. HIGMAN, secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MEALWORMS AND SOME STRANGE BEETLES.

SIR,—Some time ago I purchased from a friend of mine some mealworms and beetles. I keep them in a stew-pot, about 12 by 12 inches, giving them dog biscuits, pea-meal, and poultry food. I am anxious to know what some insects are that are in the pot. They are something after the style of a flea, but larger, and do not jump. My friend says he has always had them, and cannot get shut of them, but he is certain they are an insect that ought not to be there. They are brown. I hope one of your readers can give me some information upon them, and say if they are harmful to the worms, also tell me how to get rid of them.

VERY ANXIOUS.

"STAMP FOR REPLY."

SIR,—In many advertisements we see the words "stamp for reply," and I maintain that when a stamp is enclosed it is the duty of the advertiser to answer your letter. I have replied to a large number of advertisements, and always enclosed a stamp, but I am sorry to say that at least half have failed to reply. This I think is very unfair, as well as a waste of money to the one who answers the said advertisements. I answered advertisements in your issue dated September 12, and one in issue September 19, enclosing a stamp in each letter, but neither have had the manners to reply. I should like to know if any of your readers have been served the same way, as I think this kind of business wants putting a stop to.

W. A. W.

[We quite agree with "W. A. W." that letters which contain a stamp for the reply should always be answered, whether the goods are sold or not. As a matter of fact, the value of the stamp is recoverable at law, providing delivery can be proved, as it remains the property of the sender; and the costs incurred would, of course, fall on the person keeping the said stamp. Had "W. A. W." sent us the address of the parties he refers to in his letter, we would have taken the matter up with them on his behalf.—EDITOR.]

BETTER CLASSIFICATION WANTED FOR BORDER FANCIES.

SIR,—I have received a few schedules this last week or so from various societies who have only provided one or two classes for the Border variety. How disheartening it must be to many breeders of this prime favourite of the North to find on opening their schedules that there are only one or two classes (showing clear or ticked, yellow or buff, cock or hen, in one class)! I feel confident that if more classes were provided, there would be more exhibits, as this bird is bred more extensively now. Judging from the reports of last season's shows, the Border Fancy, in my opinion, is as popular as any other variety. In conclusion I thank you for the publication of the above, and trust that societies will cater more as regards classes for this variety 'ere the season is over.

ALTRINCHAM.

SIR,—It is very poor encouragement to find only one, or perhaps two, classes provided for the above variety. If societies wish to make money they must spend money, and give fanciers a chance of proving to them that the Border is nearly as popular as any other Canary. Buffs and yellows should not be shown together, in my opinion.

F. WARDLEWORTH.

THE STAGING OF BRITISH BIRDS.

SIR,—We have now entered upon another show season. How would it be if every exhibitor, when sending out birds, would adopt a uniform style of shell gravel and seed mixture for the floor of their show boxes, and a uniform water tin? I attended a good many shows last season, and no matter what show I went to you would always hear the grumble: "Oh, look at the floor of the cage; see the hardheads, see the sunflower, etc., etc." If it was not that, it was: "No wonder that bird wins; see the special kind of water tin." I am certain, though some exhibitors did decorate the floor of their cage or had a special tin, it had no influence on the person who was judging, but there are some people who must grumble, especially those who can't take a beating. Now, Mr. Editor, I would ask the principal Scottish British bird exhibitors, when sending out their exhibits this season, to adopt the above suggestion, and so put "paid" to this class of grumbler. I would mention that the ordinary penny water tin, enamelled or varnished black outside and white inside, would do, and it would give the show bench a smarter appearance to see a nice black tin on all the cages. I would also suggest that exhibitors refrain from putting their initials on the cages. I was judging at a show last season, and I noticed a prominent exhibitor had his initials on all his boxes.

Bathgate. JAMES LIVINGSTONE.

A CAPTIVE CUCKOO.

SIR,—It may be of interest to your readers to know that we have on exhibition at this address, 247, Argyle Street, Glasgow, a Cuckoo which has now been in our possession for over four months. He is very tame, will sit on your finger and eat from your mouth. "All sorts and conditions of men" have called to see him, from a "Sir" to a messenger boy, and various Glasgow fanciers are very interested in his progress. The following is what he gets daily in the food line: Two hard boiled eggs, about a quarter-lb. of insectivorous food, a bit of banana and 50 mealworms, morning, noon, and night.

AND. WILSON.

WHEN IS A CLEAR NOT A CLEAR?

And what is a Tick?

SIR,—When I sent in the report of the meeting of the Sunderland C.B.A. and the decision they had arrived at in regard to the question of "When is a Clear not a Clear," I had not the slightest intention of entering into any controversy upon the subject. However, I have no objection to replying to Mr. Woollard's letter of September 26. To begin with, I would like to say that I have no objection to Mr. Woollard's having an opinion of his own; I think he is perfectly entitled to it. So am I to mine, and while Mr. Woollard is prepared to defend his own opinion, so also am I prepared to defend mine. He agrees that some birds will sit and mope all day long after being handled, but he doesn't agree that they should have a prize card to mope behind. Now, Sir, Mr. Woollard has either misunderstood my letter, or he has purposely construed it to suit his own purpose, for in my letter I distinctly stated that no judge who knew his business would handle a bird until he had definitely decided upon its position in the prize list. Mr. Woollard will know perfectly well that birds are constituted like many other living things; some are naturally of a very nervous temperament, while others are just the opposite—morose and sulky. I have seen birds including "young birds," and I have no doubt that Mr. Woollard has, too, that were so very nervous that every time they were handled and then returned to their cages, they would sit either on the cage bottom or on the perch in something very like a fainting fit, and their owners have had to take a mouthful of water and blow it on to the birds in order to bring them round. Mr. Woollard will also know that there are some birds which, after being handled will make practically no attempt to plume themselves at all, especially about the thighs, where pluming is most essential to a bird which has been handled while being searched for a "tick," more especially when the bird has been searched by strange hands and under strange circumstances, such as a show room, for Mr. Woollard should remember that all judges do not think it necessary that birds should be handled, which makes it worse for the bird when the time comes that it has to be handled. I can name at least two well-known Norwich judges who do not handle the exhibits which come under them, except under exceptional circumstances. Mr. Woollard should also remember that some societies give classes for unflighted clear birds, and he will probably admit that these classes do not contain any "old have beens." Yet these young birds are just as liable to these fits of nervousness or sulkiness, as the case may be, as the old stagers, or, as Mr. Woollard terms them, "old have beens"—in all probability more so, seeing that the young birds have not had the same experience as the older ones. If Mr. Woollard admits these things, as in all likelihood he will do, he simply proves that my statement that the handing of birds was now and then responsible for the "our choice for first," etc., which one sometimes reads in the Fancy Press, was quite correct, for as I stated before, no judge who knew his business would handle a bird before he had decided upon its position in the prize list. Surely when Mr. Woollard stated that he would handle every bird that came under him, he did not mean us to suppose that he would handle them first and judge them afterwards? For my own part I do not think that a judge has any right to say what he would do—that is, in his capacity as a judge. I think it is the duty of a judge to judge according to the wording of the schedule, and I know perfectly well that if our schedules state that birds have not to be handled, neither Mr. Woollard nor any other judge will be allowed to handle them, for we consider the wording of a schedule is tantamount to a promise to exhibitors. Of course, if a judge suspected fraud he would be at perfect liberty to handle the bird, but not otherwise. Regarding the buying and selling of the "old have beens," I have nothing to do with this, for up to the present I have not been guilty of doing either. I consider that this matter had no right to be introduced into the discussion, as it is quite foreign to the question at issue, and I think that by introducing it into the controversy, Mr. Woollard has made a deliberate attempt to turn the question into another channel. In reference to Mr. Woollard's insinuation that I must think that judges have very dirty hands, he must surely know that my letter contained no such statement. In fact, if my letter had appeared in full, it would have been found that I laid particular emphasis upon the fact that to handle a bird successfully, in order to keep it as clean as possible and ruffle the plumage as little as possible, it is absolutely necessary that the hands shall be perfectly dry and free from moisture That was my point (and I think the Editor will confirm this). That disposes of another of Mr. Woollard's arguments. Mr. Woollard says I seem to think that it is very simple to make a "ticked" bird into a "clear." Frankly, I do. Surely Mr. Woollard does not suppose that I was alluding to birds which had a very dark underflue or a large number of dark feathers at the thigh? Or did he only suppose that in order to be able to cast the slur at me about having to be careful or I would be found out? The above, Sir, are the birds which go into the ticked classes, as there are too many feathers to pull out without fear of detection. The birds I alluded to were those with only two or three dark feathers at the thigh; these are the birds that are made into clears and shown in clear classes. I remember seeing a bird belonging to a well-known exhibitor which was disqualified for having a dark feather on the thigh, and when the exhibitor heard of it he merely remarked: "I thought I had got them all out." Now, Sir, Mr. Woollard, as an old fancier, must know that this sort of thing is of common occurrence. Then why not allow thigh-ticked birds to compete in clear classes, and do away with such trickery, seeing that many of these birds are shown as clears whether it is allowed or not? It does not interfere either with the disposing of your birds or the breeding of them, and it would certainly do away with the handling of short-feathered varieties, such as Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders. For my own part I certainly do not think it is in the interests of exhibitors that their birds should be handled (although Mr. Woollard thinks otherwise), for a man who sends a bird to a show certainly does not do so hoping that his bird may be handled so that he can win a prize. He sends his bird out to be judged, not handled, Mr. Woollard, and if a judge is engaged upon a class of Norwich in which he wants shape, quality, colour, and tightness of feather, he does not need to take the birds out of their cages to look for these points. A man expects his birds to be judged upon the perch, not in the hands. Now, Sir, in reference to the decision of the Sunderland C.B.A. to allow thigh-ticked birds to appear in clear classes, I would like to point out to Mr. Woollard that our members were by no means "led away" by me, as he seems to think, for there are several old, experienced fanciers in the society who are in the habit of carefully considering any question of importance before finally giving their decision. The unanimous decision arrived at simply meant that our members were all of the same opinion, therefore Mr. Woollard has nothing to be surprised at. He may be surprised to learn, however, that another large and influential Northern Society has unanimously decided to adopt the same classes. This is South Shields, who have worded their schedule accordingly. This simply proves that Sunderland does not stand alone, and Mr. Woollard may be further surprised when the other societies hold their meetings. Now, Sir, I hope that Mr. Woollard does not imagine that I consider a thigh-ticked bird is a clear one, for I do not, but I do not think the difference is so great that the two birds should not be allowed to compete against each other. That is why I am (and many others besides myself) of the opinion that the class should read: "Clear or Invisible Ticked," especially as we recognise the fact that the two birds do compete against each other, whether they are allowed to or not, and despite all the handling, for a judge cannot always find what he is looking for. So why handle them at all? I consider the drawing which appeared in CAGE BIRDS last week is a grand argument in my favour, and Mr. Woollard would do well to carefully consider it. If Mr. Woollard has any great objections to clear and thigh-ticked birds competing together, I and many others would be very pleased to hear them. But I would like him to state them in a friendly manner and without trying to cast a slur upon anyone. A man who throws mud about should always remember that two can play at that game, and I should be very sorry to see a friendly discussion end up in a personal wrangle.

WM. REID.

[The sentence Mr. Reid refers to did actually appear in his last letter. We must admit it did not strike us that anyone would construe his remark as printed into an insinuation that our judges were in the habit of handling birds when their hands were in a "very dirty" condition.—EDITOR.]

A NEW CLASS FOR MULES.

SIR,—Permit me to call the attention of exhibitors to a new departure in the classification for Hybrids in connection with the Newcastle-on-Tyne show schedule. Mule-breeding is now so popular that almost every Canary breeder tries a pair of birds for Mules, and many Mules are bred with a light feather, or a few, or not light enough for a variegated class, so that there is no inducement for their appearance on the bench. Mr. Thos. Robson has therefore guaranteed a class for foul dark, or more than half dark Mule. As schedules can only expand in accordance with the amount of support given, it is to be hoped Mule-breeders will take advantage of this opportunity, as even this class will stand further division should results warrant it.

BUDGERIGAR AND PARRAKEET.

SIR,—Could any reader please let me know through the columns of your valuable paper if a Budgerigar and a Parrakeet are one and the same bird, or two different species? I saw two Parrakeets in a cage for the first time recently, and I have a coloured plate of the Budgerigar and they both look the same.

NOVICE BIRD LOVER.

[Our correspondent is evidently unaware of the fact that "Parrakeet" is a term applied to the smaller kinds of Parrots, especially those with long tails, and not solely to one particular species. Thus the Budgerigar is a Parrakeet (other names for it being the Shell Parrakeet and the Undulated Grass Parrakeet) but there are also many other Parrakeets, for instance, the Ring-necked Parrakeet, Rosella Parrakeet, etc. To put the matter another way, the term "Parrakeet" is not correct as the name of any bird; it is necessary to state what kind of Parrakeet before one can gather the exact species. Thus, in our correspondent's case the birds were Shell Parrakeets, more commonly known as Budgerigars.—EDITOR.]

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF IRELAND.

SIR,—In reference to the letter appearing in your issue on the 26th September under the signature of Messrs. Carroll and Orr, I beg to state that I am not the Carroll referred to. I did exhibit at the last show of the Y.C.C. of Ireland, but being the only Carroll in the catalogue I wish to state I have never had any correspondence in CAGE BIRDS relating to the club.

JOHN CARROLL.

SIR,—As chairman of the annual general meeting on September 4, I regret that a duty is enforced upon me to make some remarks on letters published in CAGE BIRDS, from Messrs. Carroll and Orr and also from Mr. Rooney. I sincerely wish it were not necessary. If Messrs. Carroll and Orr wish the members to believe they are "Innocents Abroad" when they state that it was an act of generosity on the part of Messrs. Sholedice, Cloke, etc. (who were elected by a great majority) to stand by for the "purpose of infusing new blood into the committee," they must think the members are a very credulous lot! If that is their real opinion, I should have thought it would have been strong inducement to them to "take off their coats," and accept cheerfully the mandate of the members who wish them to be on the committee, particularly has they say they were resolved to "justify the confidence placed in them. What has happened since to cause their resignation I do not know, but trust they will reconsider the matter and "swim in." Mr. Rooney's letter is of another sort. I quite agree with him in much he has written anent the laxity of the powers that be concerning the rules of the Society. That they are not acted upon in their entirety I am convinced; but herctofore, having no voice in the various matters I was dumb. Now, as an elected V.P. for this year, I hope to get in a few words in favour of overhauling these rules, and having better attention paid to them. Mr. Rooney, in the third sentence of his letter says:—"Had Mr. Sholedice and his friends taken the general body of the members into their confidence, it might have led to washing much dirty linen." Well, this latter process always bears a two-fold construction, either that soiled linen might be made clean, or clean water made dirty—which does he mean? I do not know what he has in his mind. When Mr. Rooney comes to the votes for chairman, and my declaring Mr. Devitt as elected chairman, he quite overlooks the fact that it was so declared by me subject to correction, and the summary of votes by each scrutineer was also signed by me, subject to correction, and that correction, if any, would be made at the adjourned meeting on that day week. At the adjourned meeting a correction, as stated by Mr. Rooney (one of the scrutineers) was made after carefully going through all the voting papers, and I did very reluctantly decide for Mr. Cloke. I was very sorry to be in the position of having to decide between two esteemed members, but having a great doubt as to the probability of Mr. Devitt's acceptance of the chair, I gave my vote for Mr. Cloke, and I hope that neither I nor any member will regret my having done so; at the same time it would have been far more agreeable to me if the votes by the members had determined the matter. Respecting the voting papers sent in by members who were in arrears, I decided against them, according to rule 3, and such decision was not approved by some members present, and had I "sat tight" the meeting must have ended. But that matter was amicably arranged by members guaranteeing some arrears, other arrears to be paid before the adjourned meeting. Had these not been paid, the voting papers of such members were to be withdrawn; consequently the results of the voting would be affected; hence my signing the papers, etc., subject to correction; happily there was no need for any correction, as far as these four or five votes were concerned. As to the auditor, I can assure Mr. Rooney that the auditor's certificate was given in writing to the duly-audited balance sheets; but rule 5 does not require that. I have not seen a printed copy of it.

GRATTAN BRAY.

WILL MULES BREED?

SIR,—A correspondent writes last week in your valuable paper concerning the above, and seeing he lives in the Falkirk district, he can see the "new breed of feathers," as he terms them, any Sunday if he goes to Mr. John Shields, Strathloanhead, Avonbridge. Your correspondent perhaps can tell me this, through your valuable paper: If he paired up a pair of Canaries at the beginning of the season, and the hen laid, but the cock died during incubation of first nest, would all the rest of the eggs she laid during that season be fertile? If that can be, then there might be a doubt whether the cock Mule is the father of the youngsters. If he answers yes to that question, then I think fanciers will not require many cock birds throughout the breeding season. He advises me to run them out to a show. I wonder what class he would show them in? As I do not know much about breeding Canaries, your correspondent might oblige me by answering the above question, and if he says the eggs cannot be fertilised for all the season, then the cock Goldfinch Mule must be the father of the youngsters. But they don't show any Goldfinch; they are just like Canaries. The first two are heavily variegated, the other has turned out almost a clear buff, with a cinnamon mark on wing and head.

THE MONGREL.

(A cock Canary which died while the hen Canary was sitting on her first batch of eggs, could not possibly be responsible for the fertilization of all the rest of the eggs she laid during that season. At the same time, it is puzzling that a Goldfinch Mule should fertilise eggs the young from which turn out to exactly resemble pure Canaries. Further, the fact that all three have light plumage—one Cinnamon mark—points strongly to their being Canaries in reality. It would be interesting to know what were the markings of the cock and hen Canaries. If Mr. Shields keeps these young birds until next season, and they then successfully breed, he can be certain they are really pure Canaries, and not "mongrels" sired by a Mule.—EDITOR.)

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS.

By C. P. ARTHUR.

(with additional notes by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., and W. Laskey).

The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockatoels is recognized as one of the most profitable and pleasure giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. In this thoroughly practical handbook an eminent authority and highly successful breeder of these two species gives very full details upon

How to Keep, Feed, Breed, Tame and Teach to Talk.

A handbook which should be on every bird-lover's book shelf. Two full-page illustrations.

The problem of the heating of bird-rooms, aviaries, etc., will soon be with us, and bird lovers in need of a reasonably priced yet highly efficient heating apparatus should not overlook the claims of Clarke's "Syphon" stove. This patent hygienic apparatus diffuses the heat evenly, and it is absolutely pure—no fumes or smell can pass into the apartment in which it is used, and there is no dirt, and no danger. Further, it is claimed to be the most economical heating apparatus known. Testimonials, speaking highly of its suitability for bird-rooms, have been received by the makers from many well-known fanciers, who have thoroughly tested it. Readers should send for the illustrated price-list, post free on application to Messrs. Clark and Co., Compton Works, Canonbury Road, Highbury, London, N.

HOW BIRDS MAY "EAT," SLEEP AND BE MERRY.

SIR,—I have kept birds ever since I left school and consider it a most delightful hobby —not cruel, for it has been proved that birds in captivity live twice as long as in their natural state. In this week's CAGE BIRDS I see mentioned about some birds being worried, tortured, etc., by red-mite. I am willing to give five shillings for every red-mite found on my birds. My remedy for this is, every bird has two cages every week. They are changed about, and the cages plunged in boiling water—a simple and sure cure for all insect life. I have seen birds roughly handled, and in people's houses not being treated properly, but not for cruelty—simply out of ignorance of a few simple rules (pity everybody does not know of and be guided by CAGE BIRDS). I will explain how most birds are ill-treated. Many persons, like most mothers with their children, stuff them until they can hardly breathe, and bring on all sorts of complaints. My "tips" are: Keep them clean in every respect, with plenty of clean water, avoid over-feeding, keep birds hung at least a foot below the top of windows, avoid draughts, change their food to a more nourishing diet when moulting. Then they will be able, like King Henry the Eighth, to eat, sleep and be merry. I have just recently lost a Linnet 15 years old, a lovely songster, and a Blackbird that my father taught with the clarionet to pipe distinctly, "Pop goes the weasel"—not the whole song through. I do not object to being awakened by the song of the birds, as I saw from your paper, a few weeks ago, someone took their neighbour to court about. My objections of a night and morning are to the horrid howlings of cats, which I think are more of a nuisance than all the feathered creation put together. The Blackbird died in a fit, simply through my father and mother taking such an interest in him, and giving him everything to eat that they had themselves. So readers, avoid this error, and feed your birds according to CAGE BIRDS' instructions if you value their life. G. HARDY.

THE SHOWS.

PETERBOROUGH.

The fourth annual exhibition in connection with the Peterborough C.B.A. was held on October 7th and 8th, under C.B.U. rules. The Corn Exchange, wherein the exhibits were staged, is most suitable, possessing good light, and being spacious, centrally situated, free from draughts, and well ventilated. The exhibition was opened by T. J. Slater, Esq. (Mayor of Peterborough). The Deputy-Mayor, T. C. Lamplugh, supported. The birds were nicely staged, and showed to great advantage. Taking into account that the show was a £5 limit, and the season so young, it was rather surprising to see so many birds of exceptional merit on view. Some good ones stood cardless, on account of not being fit. Norwich Plainheads "opened the hall," and in the 10 classes provided for the "thick and chubby ones," 141 birds faced the judge, making selection a rather difficult matter, so near were many of the exhibits to each other in point of merit. Yorkshires did not turn up at all well, six out of the 10 classes having to be cancelled, which was extremely disappointing. Amongst the Cinnamons were one or two fine specimens, while Crest and Crest-breds provided a fair show. The British were fairly strong, a fact which gave pleasure to those who favour our national songsters. Entries totalled 344, against 586 last year, a most disappointing drop for the society. Special for best Canary in show went to Mr. Williams with his cinnamon-marked Buff Yorkshire hen. That for best, other than Canary, went to Mr. A. C. Brotherhood, his lightly-marked Goldie-Can. Mule doing the trick. The president of the society is Mr. S. H. Mays, and vice-presidents Messrs. Heath and Clarke, a trio of excellent officials. The stewards were Messrs. Dawson, Barley, Smith, Popple, Rowles, Watts, Abbott, and Cocks, and each and every one put in good work, and kept the ball rolling in fine style. The hon. sec. and treasurer, Mr. Henry Lilley, is the right man in the right place, capable, courteous and obliging, and ever on the move. The exertions he put forth certainly deserved a bumping entry. The members' specials were as follows:—Best in show, H. Popple, with a grand clear Buff Norwich unflighted; 2nd best, S. H. Mays; 3rd and 4th best, S. L. Cocks; best Nor., H. Popple; Foreign, S. L. Cocks; Yorks., A. Watts; Brit., S. H. Mays; Mule or Hybrid, A. Rowles. The judges were Messrs. J. Robson (Can.), J. Wilcock (Yorks.), and W. E. Lowne (Brit.). All are well-known throughout the Fancy, and the judging was over in good time, and cards up quickly, while the awards seemed to please.

The Canary Classes.

ADMIRAL DUNCAN (Nottingham).

The twenty-ninth annual open Show was held on October 3rd, in the large Club Room at the Admiral Duncan. We found a grand display of the feathered tribe, and although the entries did not come quite up to expectations (no doubt the early date had something to do with this), the quality of the exhibits well made up for this; 130 birds were entered and only 1 was absent. The Norwich and Crests made a fine display. There were also several very nice mules and British birds. The committee and the secretary, Mr. Wm. Healey, who is deserving of great credit, are all true fanciers and therefore had the exhibits well staged at a nice height, so that they could be seen without the necessity of much handling of cages, which is a good arrangement. The stewards, Messrs. Drake, Walmsley, H. Beardall and T. Harrison, deserve the greatest praise. Mr. T. Barker awarded the prizes and gave general satisfaction.

CL. YELL. NOR (5): 1, Pitt; grand head, neck and chest, fine quality of feather, rare size—some thought it a hen. 2, Smith; similar to first, but colour, nicely braced wings and tail, close up. 3, Sharp; good bird, shade flat in head and rather longer, good colour and quality. vhc, Butler; grand bird when ready. hc, Brefitt. BATH AND DISTRICT F.A.

The Bath and District Fanciers' Association held their annual members' show of young birds in the Corn Market on September 24th. The exhibits were nicely staged in a room to themselves, and were well cared for by a few enthusiastic fanciers. The entry was not so large as it would have been had the show been held a little later, as several of the members could not show through their birds not having finished moulting. The quality was first-class, several really nice birds being staged, and they should do well later on. The hen which won in the Buff Norwich class, and secured the special for best Canary in the show, is a gem, and as the owner is a novice he is to be heartily congratulated on his success. The awards were made by Mr. J. H. Payne.

GOSPORT.

This show was held in the Connaught Drill Hall on September 23rd, and was generally very successful, but the entries in our section were only moderate, although up to the local average. If numbers were poor the quality was not, and some very creditable specimens were staged. Mr. F. C. Harvey made a most able and courteous secretary, and received most loyal support from his assistants, Messrs. Cooper and Brown, whilst the committee attended well to the needs of the exhibits. Mr. C. A. House judged.

CREST (4): 1, 2, 3, vhc, spl, Smith, 1st nicely radiated, well-drooped green, lovely colour and quality; 2nd, variegated, nice centre and droop, when finished a better bird than 1st, but not ready to-day; 3rd, nice-bodied, even-marked, shorter in crest. CREST-BRED (4): 1, 3, Smith, an limeuse variegated, grand shape, and plenty of feather; 3rd, good head and feather, looked seedy; 2, vhc, Hinds, nice shape and feather, hardly so stout. SELL., 10/- (5): 1, Harris; 2, vhc, hc, Smith; 3, Hinds.

DALKEITH.

The Dalkeith and Dist. C.C. held their annual exhibition of young birds on Oct. 3rd, in the Foresters' Hall. This hall is an ideal one for a cage bird show, being well lighted from the top and clean. Cage birds were tastefully arranged in a square in the centre of the hall, the back of the staging being all covered in, which entirely kept out any draught. Entries totalled up to 285, being about the same number as that of last season. Quality throughout the show was well maintained. The winning Scotch Fancy yellow cock, which secured the coveted gold medal for best Scotch Fancy in the hall, was well staged by one of our best breeders, Mr. Johnstone. Another very taking exhibit was the 1st and spl. Buff Pied cock belonging to Mr. J. King. Borders were here staged in strong force, and must have given some trouble to the judge to find the winner. Taken all over, the birds in these classes were not so well through the moult as one could have wished, which may account for some of them changing places later on. The gold medal in the Border section was again won by Messrs. A. and J. Thomson, with a clear Buff cock. The special winner and runner-up to medal winner was Mr. J. Ewings' 1st Buff Variegated cock. The Norwich classes contained some really grand specimens, and the gold medal winner here turned up in a good yellow cock, belonging to Mr. A. Gardiner. The President is Mr. W. B. Smart, the Hon. Secretary, Mr. J. Ewing, to whom is due much of the success of the show, and the Committee consists of the following well-known fanciers: Messrs. J. Hamilton, W. McAdam, A. J. Thomson, J. Briggs, J. Carson, and J. H. Beveridge, etc. Before closing the exhibition Mr. W. B. Smart presented the successful gold medal winners with their handsome specials, congratulating them on being the happy owners of such promising birds, and he hoped future wins were yet in store for them. The Scotch Fancies were ably judged by Mr. J. Dalgleish (Leith), while Mr. A. Gilchrist (Coldstream) gave general satisfaction in the Border classes. The Norwich and the British birds were well handled by the well-known "Auld Reekie" fancier, Mr. T. Knight, and his awards were well received.

DULWICH O.S.

An interesting evening show was held at headquarters on September 23rd. The quality of the exhibits is a forerunner of what is to be at the forthcoming annual show when the members' classes will indeed be a warm lot. The Linnet 1st and special, shown by Mr. F. Bisley, will take a lot of beating this season, as will Mr. Slade's beautiful Crest "Beauty," the winner of the special for best in show

NOR. CHAMPION: 1, 2, 3, Woolhouse; grand trio not yet at their best. NOVICE: 1, 2, Foster; two grand specimens; 3, Mrs. Mazzoni; another gem. YORKS.: Messrs. KINGS HEATH AND MOSELEY.

The King's Heath and Moseley F. and F.S. held their annual Young Stock Show on Oct. 3rd last, at the Red Lion Hotel, Vicarage-road. The two classes for Yorkshires were very well supported, and contained several birds of much more than ordinary merit. There was a keen fight for possession of the Challenge Cup, between Messrs. Richardson and Paddock, the latter eventually taking the trophy with his clear Buff over the former's eye-marked of the same colour. The arrangements had been admirably carried out by the Secretary, Mr. H. E. Patterson. Mr. A. J. Goodwin judged, and gave general satisfaction

YORKS. CL.: 1st and reserve, Paddock, leader Buff, good length, A1 quality, well filled-up neck and shoulders, good back and wings, nicely folded tail; res., another Buff of beautiful proportions, feather of lovely quality; both very steady, and showed nicely; 2nd and vhc, Richardson; 2nd, yellow of correct stamp, nice level colour throughout, grand quality of feather, good back and wings; 3rd, Burke, Buff, built on strong lines, nice head and neck, A1 quality of feather, bit pale in colour; vhc, hc, Pugh. TKD., ETC.: 1, special, and vhc, Richardson; leader Buff marked both eyes, grand length and position, nice wings and tail, good quality of feather, a taking exhibit; 2nd, Burke, ticked yellow of great length, well up on leg, good head and neck, and nice position; 3rd, res., Pugh, 3rd, wing-marked Buff, nice quality of feather, good length, well-filled-up neck and shoulders; res., ticked yellow of good length; vhc, hc, Paddock

LONGTON.

First annual exhibition held in the Town Hall on Oct. 3rd. The room is a capital one for the purpose. Entries came up very well, only a few classes having to be cancelled, and the quality throughout was really fine. The Norwich classes contained many exhibits of exceptional merit, and many of them are certain to be heard of again. The special for best Norwich fell to Mr. Whetstone's unflighted buff, which well deserved the honour. Several claims were made for this bird, the catalogue price being £10 10, and it eventually changed hands at £11 5s., its owner being most reluctant to part with it even at that. We believe this is a record price for a Norwich in the Potteries district. Another notable sale was the winning unflighted yellow, which was only catalogued at £2 10s., but which realised £5 15s. We wish the plucky purchaser the success he deserves. Quite a number of good birds were far from ready yet, and so could not do themselves justice. This remark applies throughout the classes. Yorkshires were a nice lot, the winners being well selected; but some of those behind will be to the front when properly fit. Mules were few in numbers, but quality was all there, several well-known winners being staged. British birds turned up well, and contained several birds which could hold their own in any company. The Foreign bird class was well filled, and proved very attractive to visitors. The show was most ably managed. Mr. E. Tams, the hon. secretary, deserves great credit for the way in which the arrangements were carried out. He received very valuable assistance from a strong hard-working committee, who spared no efforts to make the show a thorough success. Those comprising the committee were as follows: Messrs. H. Tams, C. Birks, J. Edwards, J. Davis, A. Hallam, C. Hodson, J. Seirs, Eccleston, Boyle, J. Rowley, H. Perrins, T. Hallam, T. Bold, G. Walters, H. Oakes, C. Hayes and C. Plant. Hyde's special was won by Mr. C. Birks. The awards were made by Mr. J. H. Roe.

The Canary Classes.

MONTREAL C.B.A.

The young bird show of the above association was held on September 14th in their hall, 3, Craig-street East. There were over one hundred exhibits staged, and some very promising youngsters of the different varieties faced the judges for the first time. Mr. Jas. Sonne and Mr. A. Lindsay judged the Scotch fancies and Yorkshires, Mr. F. Weichbolt and F. H. Brooks judging the Norwich, Crests, Lancashires, Borders, Lizards, Mules and Germans.

SCOTCH FANCIES: 1, C. McGregor; 2, 3, J. Ainslie. YORKS.: 1, 2, J. Moore; 3, J. Ainslie. NOR.: 1, 2, R. Vincent; 3, J. Ainslie. LANCS.: 1, J. Moore. LIZARDS: 1, 2, 3, A. Lindsay. MULES: 1, 2, 3, J. Ainslie. GERMAN: 1, 2, D. Bruce; 3, J. Ainslie.—D. BRUCE, Hon. Sec.

ST. HELEN'S O.S.

The members' show was held in the spacious club room of the George Inn, Water-street, on September 26th, when close on 60 birds were staged. All the birds were in full view facing a good light. The quality was A1. Judging commenced at 11 o'clock, by Mr. J. Chisnall (St. Helens), who gave great satisfaction. Chief amongst the awards was a Yorkshire Buff belonging to Mr. Dickenson, that the judge bestowed great praise on, in fact pronounced the best finished bird in the show. Mr. Gibbie came next and took six firsts out of twelve birds. From all appearances he is one of our coming men, as he seems to bestow both care and great attention on his birds. Another to do remarkably well was Mr. Grice, who took five firsts. Amongst his winners were some typical birds that with care and a little more attention will be heard of again. He also took special prize for most points gained at the show. In the Crested classes two or three birds of a handsome class, belonging to Mr. Lomax, were to the front. He took two firsts and a third with three of them. Mr. Beskett, our worthy chairman, had several birds there.—A. GODDARD.

CLAPHAM.

The members of the Clapham and District Association, and indeed, all concerned, are to be congratulated upon the result of their annual exhibition held in the Avondale Hall, Clapham, on October 1st and 2nd. We have had scarcely time to realise that the moulting season has been with us ere the London show season opens with a splendid success by this Association. When the early date at which the show was held is taken into consideration, the entry was excellent, and the display of quality equally so. As a venue for a show, the Avondale Hall is about as good as anything conceivable. Plenty of light, lofty, well-ventilated, and free from draughts. It was eminently suited to the purpose. Moreover the general tidiness of the hall had been improved upon by a display of plants, etc., which lent a charm to the whole. The list of specials offered, was a long one, including many valuable prizes, not the least of which was the silver cup, presented by Mr. Hayward, for most points throughout the show. This valuable trophy was won by Mr. C. T. Maxwell. P. M. Thornton, Esq., M.P., is the society's president, and the list of officers is an influential one, with Mr. W. H. Vale as an excellent chairman and Mr. Stephen H. W. Baker, hon. secretary. The latter gentleman deserves praise for the extremely able manner in which he carried out his duties, having a thorough grasp of matters of detail, and a kindly answer to any inquiry. The working committee were Messrs. Askew, Brighty, Clark, Carter, Cutting, Francis, Frostick, Honeysett, Maxwell, Newley, Priest, Sandy, Sexton, Thorpe, Vale and Yeoman. Most of these gentlemen worked throughout the night prior to the show. Masters, Clark, Askew, and Hathaway, all of them young fanciers and sons of fanciers, were most useful in the work of preparing for the show, and last, but by no means least, Mrs. Brighty did excellent service, being instrumental in the sale of admission tickets, the result of which was to bring up the gate receipts to a substantial amount. With regard to the exhibits themselves, the quality was high throughout, Norwich Plainheads provided the strongest section in the show, and although many of the birds were not yet at their best, there were many of great promise. The probabilities are, however, that in a week or two's time the positions of some of the winners will be reversed. In the clear classes Messrs. Rennie, A. J. Kilby, Ellis, Martin, Hopkins and Allsopp and Spinner staged some rattling exhibits. Type and quality were, however, most conspicuous in the ticks, etc., Messrs. Hodder, Rennie, Rippon, Sheldon, Graves, and Hopkins and Allsopp being well to the fore. Yorkshires were not numerous, but the quality was good. The open Norwich classes contained some capital exhibits, and Yorkshires came up better than the champions as regards numbers. Borders were nice classes with some smart birds amongst them, and Crests and Crest-breds were excellent in quality.

The Hybrid section was nicely filled, and some very smart exhibits were on view, including a said-to-be example of the Siskin-Bullfinch mating. The British bird classes were really exceptionally good, and contained some high-class exhibits, especially so the Bramblefinch and Goldfinch classes. The fixture is full early for Britishers, but there were some very forward birds staged, several of the Goldies being almost in full colour, while the Hawfinches seemed very forward. The insectivorous classes were very attractive, while of the Foreign section, it must be said that it was simply superb. A magnificent team was staged by Mr. C. T. Maxwell, his King Bird of Paradise being the centre of an admiring crowd of visitors. All the exhibits were packed and dispatched well before midnight, and the staging taken down, although the show closed only a little before 10 p.m. The judges were Messrs. J. Robson and A. Silver.

The Open Section.

OPEN CHAMPION SECTION.—NOR. CL. YELL. (9): 1, Rennie, plenty of size, grand quality of feather, very pleasing in colour, splendid quality body feather; 2, Kilby, deeper colour, lovely glossy feather, just a shade inclined to flatness on bead; 3, Ellis, nice type and quality, very nice; vhc, Hodder; hc, Richardson; c, Rippon. BUFF (15): 1, Martin, chubby body, nice feather, perhaps a trifle free in feather; 2, Hopkins and Allsopp, "The Temptress," very natty and compact, grand close feather; 3, Spinner, grand boxy feather, rich in undercolour, gets a trifle too upright when moving; vhc, Richardson, Lewis and Dymond; hc, Woolhouse, Rippon, C. Francis. TK., ETC. (10): 1, Hodder, 3-pointed buff, topper, grand type, level back, well filled in neck, neat head and clean at chest and thighs, good undercolour, well across perch, with rattling carriage; 2, Rennie, somewhat similar bird as to markings, good all through; 3, Rippon, ticked, full of quality, scarcely so stout, but good; vhc, Harris; hc, Francis; c, Rippon. UNFLIG. (26): 1, Sheldon, buff, a beauty for type and quality, well filled neck, good back, clean chest, neat head, rich undercolour; 2, Hopkins and Allsopp, yellow, nice quality; 3, Craves, ticked buff, good quality; vhc, Bellamy, Ellis; hc, Kilby, Rennie; c, Moore, Richardson. YORKS CL. YELL (3): 1, Easterling, slashing yellow, bolts up like a rocket, not yet quite fit for tubbing, which will improve it; 2 and 3, Cutting, nice, but scarcely the quality of winner. BUFF (5): 1, Easterling, lovely bloomy feather, nice undercolour, rare style, good back, neck, etc., well up; 2, Smith, another lovely feathered bird, hardly so good behind leg as winner; 3, Mabey, we missed noting by accident; vhc, Elsmore; hc, Rennie. TKD., ETC. (10): 1, Easterling, ticked yellow, grand position, rich quality, smart bird, hardly finished tail, hardly so good behind leg as winner; 3, Smith, variegated, full of quality and style, well cleaned out; vhc, Mabey; hc, Elsmore; c, Davis. UNFLIG (8): 1, Davis, buff, very finely drawn, lovely feather, sweet head, a beauty; 2, Easterling, grand pose, hardly so fine drawn as leader, but well after it; 3, Elsmore, yellow, lovely quality, nice position; vhc, Smith; hc, Davis; c, Walsh. CRESTS (13): 1, Slade, "Beauty" by name and by nature, variegated, massive crest of fine formation, richly veined leafy feather, good centre and back, and will be better yet; 2, King, heavily variegated, another lovely bird, nice vein, hardly so rich as winner, good formation—two rare birds these; 3, Lazarus, clear body, dark crest, very leafy, dense, and veiny, trifle horned at back, else a gem; vhc, Broad, good enough to win at plenty of shows; hc, Peters; c, Mugford. C.B. (5): 1, King, variegated, grand skull, fine length, trim back; 2, Peters, clear, fine body, noble head, beaten in length of feather; 3, Lawton Platt, green, handles well; vhc, Gale; hc, Slade. BORD. FCV CL., ETC. (13): 1 and 3, Brownlie, leader very dainty jaunty yellow, well packed, close and shiny, a little swelt; 2, Roberts, ticked buff, sweetly pretty, but not quite the brand of winner; vhc, Wardleworth, Saytch; hc, Morgan; c, Wardelworth. A.O.V. (7): 1 and 3, Cohhy, leader evenly marked, of very sweet build and carriage, had the pull in markings, 3rd, stylish yellow green; 2, Brownlie, we liked for shape and carriage, but not quite the winner's equal in markings; vhc, c, Brownlie; hc, Roberts. A.O.V. CAN. (7): 1, Baker, very nice yellow Hulgian; 2, Bexson, jonque cinnamon, of nice colour; 3, Martin, no note; vhc, Baker; hc, King; c, Smith.

OPEN NOVICE CLASSES.—NOR. CL. YELL. (12): 1, Lovegrove, plenty of chest, good quality, drops tail occasionally; 2, Lee and Kearney, even all through, grand quality; 3, Bevan, typical Norwich all over, just a bit browsy in feather, probably the result of insufficient rinsing; vhc, Brookes; hc, Harper; c, Inch. BUFF (16): 1, Thomas, beautiful silky feather, rich undercolour and mealy top, good chest, head and neck; good Norwich; 2, Dixon, tight in feather, hardly so stout, rich undercolour; 3, Lovegrove, grand quality and bloom, just a trifle pinched; vhc, Bevan; hc, Lee and Kearney; c, Harper. TKD., ETC (11): 1, Harper, good shape; 2, Lee and Kearney, variegated; 3, Cox, nice; vhc, Gerry and Davis; hc, Priest; c, Watcham. UNFLIG. (31). 1, Lovegrove, ticked yellow, rare colour, type and quality, good one; 2, Thomas, yellow, not quite the quality of winner, or so typical, rare colour, just a trifle slack at present; 3, Beavan, ticked buff, of good type and quality; vhc, Bellinger, Luff; hc, Bellington Brooks, Burgess, Foster; c, Cook. Bevan. YORKS CL. YELL. (10): 1, Brooks, stands well, nice quality; 2, Ayers, good whip; 3, Whiteman, well upon leg; vhc, Thorpe; hc, Devins; c, Warley. BUFF: 1, Warley, lovely quality and position, sweet bird; 2, Buckingham, neat and nice; 3, Devins, neat; vhc, Mole; hc, Bedford. TKD., ETC. (13): 1, Warley, buff, rare carriage and whip, when wound up ought to be nice; 2, Forse, beautiful cinnamon ticked, stands at a lovely angle, sweet head, nice feather, good one; 3, Devins, very fine quality, nice pose, but a little "necky"; vhc, Haines; hc, Simpson; c, Buckingham. UNFLIG. (16): 1, Askew, stylish yellow, good quality clean front and thighs, nicely folded tail; 2, Warley, bit longer, nice style; 3, Adams, quick mover, full of life; vhc, Brooks; hc, Forse; c, Morrison.

Hybrids, British and Foreign.

HYBRID, LIGHT (10): 1, 3, Lees, leader almost clear jonque, grizzled on both wings, excellent face and body colour, good size and shape, fine bird, but not lit yet in region of neck; 3, lightly-varieg., Linnet-Can., nice quality, stylish, well-built and shapely; 2, Hopkins and Allsopp, "Sunset," the well-known buff Goldie-Can., mkd. eyes and wings, in grand form, rich colour, exquisite quality, like wax, big, stylish bird, some thought unlucky to be defeated; vhc, Goodall, most promising, even-mkd Goldie-Can., only a baby, should do well next season; hc, Williams; c Caines. DARK GOLDIE OR LINNET (9): 1, Caines, good natural-coloured jonque Linnet-Can., fine quality, tight feather, slim in build; 2, vhc, Horsey, nice hot-coloured buff of same persuasion, good carriage and condition, excellent size and build; 3, c, Mrs. Kirkin, another good exhibit for condition and quality; vhc, hc, Cooper, latter a nice cinnamon-feathered Linnet Mule. A.O.V. DARK (14): 1, Lees, real good buff Greenie-Can., fine size and shape, all quality, rich tone of colour; 2, Lea, rattling big buff Siskin-Can., wonderful size, plenty of colour, nicely marked, good shape, needs tightening up a little, when it should want beating; 3, Gerry and Davis, another buff Greenie-Can., loses in size only, fine colour and quality, very shapely and stylish; vhc, Maxwell, grand jonque Siskin-Can., will improve yet; vhc, Best; hc, Botting; c, Parsons, one of the best cinnamon-feathered Greenfinch-Cans. we have seen, very big and shapely, lovely shade of colour, hard lines, only fault one or two tail feathers not quite full length. BULLFINCH HYB. (5): 1, 2, Mrs. Askham, cock and hen, Canary-Bullies, leader beauty for size, shape and colour, latter wonderful size and build, both in nice trim, a credit to the exhibitor; 3, vhc, Cunnell, former a really nice Goldie-Bullie, big, and of good shape, fine colour and quality, latter stated to be a "Siskin-Bullfinch," but we could not identify it as such, in fact we made it a "baby" Goldie-Bullie, an exceptionally light coloured one, time will show whether this is so or not, we believe it was bred in an aviary containing several species of birds. A.O.V. (3): 1, Cooper, very smart Chaffinch-Bramblefinch, excellent shape and style, full of colour, shows parentage distinctly, well shaped; 2, Vale Twite-Greenfinch, also a bird of good size and built, in very nice condition, a bit of a puzzler to fix its parentage; 3, Askew, promising Linnet-Greenfinch, not yet at home in a cage.

GOLDFINCH (14), some very forward birds in this class: 1, Maxwell; large Finch, massive skull and big square blaze, beautifully buttoned, and well browned on the breast, will deepen a little in colour later. 2, Botting; another grand bird splendid face and good body, colour throughout, shows itself well, but just loses to the winner in buttons and depth of yellow in flights. 3, hc, Prior; former a very nice Finch, loses in head properties to-day, but is better in buttons than second, will improve. vhc, Smith; a nice style of Finch, good blaze and buttons. c, Prosser; good stamp, wants a little longer to fine down. BULLFINCH (3): 1, Askew; typical Britisher, nice cap and breast colour. No other awards given. The winner in the members' class could have won here. LINNET (16), good class, and contained some fine specimens: 1, Longden; good size and beautifully pencilled, nice colour throughout but spends too much time on the cage bottom. 2, Wickham; richer in colour, good size, and very steady, but fails in pencilling, otherwise a nice exhibit. 3, Maxwell; grand stamp of Linnet in high condition, splendid markings on throat, well pencilled, rich brown through, and shows himself well, might have changed places with first. vhc, Gunnell; big Linnet, well pencilled, but light in colour yet. vhc, Pankhurst; similar type. h.c., Clark; very nice Linnet, good size and well pencilled, very steady. hc, Bizley, nice stamp. c, Robbins, Vale. SISKIN, ETC. (18): 1, Howe; Mealy Redpoll, moderate size, but very nicely marked, good quality, very steady. 2, Botting; rich coloured, well marked Twite; good size, very steady and in fine trim, pressed hard to win. 3, Frances; Siskin, good size, well laced cap, nice markings, and colour. vhc, Cutting; large Twite, nice markings, will no doubt deepen in colour. vhc, Frostick; Sweet little Redpoll, nicely marked and in great condition. vhc, Moore; another fine Redpoll. hc, Longden. Pankhurst, Frances. c, Ennis. BRAMBLEFINCH (25), a very hot lot, must have given the judge some work to sort them out: 1, Longden; rare big Bramble, beautifully spangled on back and well marked on sides, not quite up in colour yet, biggest in the class, nice condition. 2, Hurst; another clinker, better in breast colouring, but hardly as good in thigh marks, but pressed hard. 3, Carter; capital spangling, full of condition, medium size and very steady. vhc (2), Chick; splendid colour, both about equal in all points except thigh marks, one has a slight advantage in this, good birds. vhc, Maxwell, Prosser, Frostick. hc, (2), Prior, Francis. c, Askew, Cadic, Hathaway, and Howe. CHAFFINCH (10): 1, Frostick; hot coloured Chaffinch, medium size, very forward and as steady as a rock. Claimed at catalogue price. 2, Gerry and Davis; larger than winner, but beaten in colour, good, smart bird. 3, Young; another good stamp of bird, pale in colour yet. vhc, Wickham; nice type, will improve. hc, Maxwell. c, Sear. GREENFINCH (8): 1, Maxwell; monster for size, good colour and shows himself well; colour fed. 2, Prior; lovely natural coloured Greenie, loses in size to winner, capital colour, very bright in yellow of flights and tail. 3, hc, Francis; former a good Greenie, just loses in size and colour, in splendid condition. vhc, Cadic. HAWFINCH (7): 1, Hurst; a gem, perfect bib, stands well, perhaps a shade pale in colour. 2, Simpson; good type richer in colour than winner, but does not show itself to the same advantage. 3, vhc, Maxwell; hot coloured bird, loses in size, very steady. vhc, larger bird, but not yet ready. c, Howe. A.S. BUNTINGS (7): 1, Chick; Cornbunting, a real topper, very rich in colour and good markings, capital size; 2, vhc, c, Maxwell; moderate Cirl Bunting, rather pale in yellow head markings, rather lucky. vhc, yellow Bunting, good natural colour. 3, Sandy; yellow Bunting, rich colour (fed), good head and cheek markings, well pencilled back, good size, very steady, hard lines. c, Francis. BEN SEEDEATERS (10). 1, 2, Chick; former a sweet little Siskin, beautifully pencilled, in perfect order, grand Hawfinch follows, nice size, good bib and fine colour throughout. 3, Sandy; another Hawfinch in fine condition, very steady, a shade smaller, perhaps. vhc, Frostick; very fine and large Hawfinch, hardly fit yet. vhc, Gunnell. vhc, Howe. BLACKBIRD, ETC. (9): 1, Price; lovely Thrush, very distinct in spots, grand size, and rich colour, very steady, wins well. 2, Lugg; nicely spotted Starling, plenty of sheen, stands well. 3, Frostick; another fine Thrush, shown in first-class order, beaten only in size. vhc, Withers Bros.; another excellent Thrush. hc, Askew. hc, Howe. c, Fleming. NIGHTINGALE OR BLACKCAP (9): 1, Francis; a splendid Gale, rich colour, fine size, stands well, wins easily. 2, Hathaway; sweet little Blackcap, fine silky plumage, good cap, very steady. 3, Burrows; 'Gale very good bird, just loses in size and colour to winner, nice condition. vhc, hc, Frostick; two good 'Gales, hardly ready yet. c, Maxwell. (Some of the exhibits in the class and in the other Insectivorous classes use food tins fixed on the cage bottom and cover the bottom with fine sawdust so that it is utterly impossible to keep the sawdust out of the food. We understand Mr. Howe's bird died during the show, possibly through the sawdust out of the food. Exhibitors would do well to use food and water pots well off the cage bottom, or discontinue the use of sawdust). LARK OR PIPIT (7), all Tree Pipits but one, a Skylark, bred by the exhibitor himself last season: 1, Quantrell; Tree Pipit, are size and rich in colour and markings, beautifully shown. 2, R. J. Howe; same species, another nice bird for size and colour. 3, Withers Bros.; similar stamp of bird. vhc, Maxwell. c, Askew; "home-bred" Skylark. MAGPIE, ETC.: 1, 2, Maxwell; the well-known Chough and Magpie, both old winners, and looking fit to do battle anywhere. 3, Quantrell; Magpie, nice and clear in whites, plenty of sheen, loses only in size. c, Vale Magpie, not yet fit, will press winners hard when ready. INSECTIV. SMALL (11): 1, 2, hc, (2) Maxwell; grand team. 1st the old champion yellow Wagtail, fed to perfection and as steady as a rock. 2nd, capital black Redstart, very fine colour, good size, stands well. hc, grey Wagtail and Redstart respectively, all shown in Mr. M.'s usual style.

2, vhc, Howe; former a sweet Treecreeper, quite at home on the baize cage lining, latter a fine blue-headed Wagtail, good white eye marks, nice size and colour (natural). c, Gardner. LARGE (6): 1, R. J. Howe; fine big Waxwing, very taking exhibit, grand wing and tail tippings; much admired. 2, Maxwell; nice Wryneck, well pencilled on breast and well coloured and marked on back, nicely shown. 3, Francis; fine Fieldfare, very steady, rich colour; Chick; another, grand Fieldfare, but not so large. This class also contained a well-marked Mistel Thrush and a lovely young Hoopoe, the latter attracting much interest, and many inquiries as to what it was, and why it stood cardless.

PARROTS, ETC. (9): 1, 2, Maxwell, two very rare exhibits, Masked Lovebird leading, followed by a Black-throated Lorrikeet, both beautiful birds, in simply faultless condition; 3, vhc (2) Cooper, former magnificent Blue and Gold Macaw, a grand fellow, quite a favourite with visitors, especially children with desires to have their fingers amputated, his companions were a splendid Black-headed Caique and Barnard Parrakeet; c, Box. WAXBILL, ETC. (16): 1, 2, vhc, Maxwell, a practically unknown Grosbeak, catalogued as a "Gaboon Blue-billed Weaver," though its real identity, we believe is uncertain, general scheme of colour, black, with a bright red face and front, and a beak shaded bluish, attractive looking, but none too tight in plumage, and many thought rarity should not have placed it over the exquisite pair of Violet-eared Waxbills which came second, truly living gems, anything more resplendent in the way of beautiful colouring is difficult to imagine; vhc, came a very fine pair of Melba Waxbills; 3, Watts, charming Queen Whydah, in full dress, and a most attractive exhibit, well staged; hc, Mrs. Galloway, sweetly pretty Olive Cuban Finch, a tiny gem; c (2), Mrs. Hodgkins, very nice Aurora Finches and Paradise Whydah. A splendid class this, many good birds having to be content with nothing, Mrs. Galloway's rare Black-faced Serin Finch undergoing the unusual experience of standing cardless. A.S. INSECTIV (6): 1, 2, 3, Maxwell, another wonderful trio, King Bird of Paradise leading, moulted out more beautiful than ever, if that be possible, perfect everywhere, even in its "wires," words fail us to describe its glowing loveliness, undoubtedly the attraction of the show, 2nd, about the best Black-backed Tanager we ever saw, like a piece of painted china, 3rd, very rare Rufus-throated Tanager, another gem of a bird, to say that they were staged to the best possible advantage is perhaps superfluous; vhc, Watts, a "nameless" Tanager, large bird, all-green in colour, excellent condition; hc, Cooper, very nice Necklace Tanager.

CAGE MAKERS' CLASSES.—HOUSEHOLD OR FANCY (7): 1, 2, Hathaway, former really neat, light, but strong and durable Parrakeet's cage, in the designing of which every effort had been made to prevent the bird destroying the framework; 2nd, very light, well finished and furnished Blackbird or Thrush cage, roomy and airy; 3, Newley, Linnet and Finch cage, beautifully finished and arranged for lightness and durability; vhc, hc, c, Newley. SHOW (21): 1, 2, 3, vhc, Hathaway, three very well thought out and nicely finished cages—the first for a Wagtail, and in this the perch arrangements are perfect; 2nd for a Nightingale, cosy and suitable; 3rd, for a Parrakeet; vhc, hc (2), c, Newley; c, Palmer and Sons. STOCK OR BREEDING (18) and this lot comprised some excellent ideas: 1 and 3, Hathaway, Wagtail stock cage and a Budgerigar breeding cage respectively; 2, vhc (2) and c, Newley, former a 48in. Norwich breeder, with the most modern equipment, and only priced at 15/6; hc (3), Palmer and Sons.

SELL. CAN (30/-): 1, Dr. Sidgwick; 2, Bellinger; 3, Roney; vhc, Peters, Hawes, Luff (2); hc, Greenwood and Benson, Baker and Gooch; c, Rennie. BRIT. AND FOR. (30/-): 1, Maxwell; 2, Howe; 3, Hodgkin.

MEMBERS' CLASSES.—In this section there were some smart birds staged, Messrs. Morris, Priest and Rogers sent a fine team, and annexed the majority of the prizes. The Yorkshires of Messrs. Yeoman, Thorpe, Brooks and Wall were of good level of merit. As is the case at most shows now, the members made quite an equal display in many respects to that of the Champion section. British were a nice show, and so were the Hybrids, Messrs. Cooper's and Cutting's teams of the latter being very meritorious, while as to the British, mention of the names of Messrs. Francis, Frostick, Carter, Cutting, Maxwell, etc., is a sufficient guarantee of quality. NOVICE CLASSES.—NOR. CK. (9): 1, Morris; 2, Priest; 3, Rogers; vhc, hc, c, Baker and Cooch. Some Observations on the Linnet.

By GEORGE A. WIDDAS.

The Catching, Boxing and Managomont of this popular Bird are dealt with in this article.

The Linnet being one of the most adaptable to cage life of all our British seed-eating birds, it is sought after by fanciers for show purposes and for mule and hybrid breeding, as well as by those not in the Fancy for its song.

The Song of the Linnet.

As songsters, few birds are perhaps more variable than Linnets, which have a very considerable compass and sing in a continuous manner, though some, of course, can only repeat two or three unconnected notes, which may be of the harshest tone. The song of caged-up Linnets is much improved in the second year, and reaches its best in the third; but wild young Linnets, five or six months old, can sing a song worth listening to; I have known them to do this whilst I have been out catching them, and I have caught them after they have sung against my call birds for a few minutes, and have often thought they would make good call birds. But after they have been caged and looked after well, it is some weeks before they start to sing, and then only in short half-timid snatches, as though they were afraid to open their mouths, so to speak.

As time goes on the young birds get more courage, and if you have a few good birds for them to sing against, it is surprising how they pick up the different notes of their compauions.

Both Showy and Useful.

For show purposes, the Linnet's size, plumage, and markings are essential points, but not many possess them all to a nicety They have many variations of colour, as the following "local" names imply, viz., the "Lemon Linnet," the "Saffron," the "Red," the "Sulphur," the "Grey," and the "Brown." The last-named is the one chosen for show purposes. But he must be a nice, large bird, with nut-brown back and shoulders, plenty of lacing down front and good clear markings; and, above all, he must be steady and in good condition.

Most of them are obtained from catchers and dealers, who have large quantities pass through their hands during a season, whilst a few are hand- or Canary-reared ones.

The Linnet is also one of the most useful birds, both in bird rooms and aviaries, for Mule and Hybrid breeding. Numerous crosses have been obtained by it. As a father, he is generally a good feeder, and looks well after his young. He is almost the first bird chosen by a novice for crossing, and many a full-fledged fancier has become such by his initial success with his Linnet-Canary Mules.

Distinguishing the Sexes.

Many questions are asked as to how to tell a cock Linnet from a hen Linnet, so I will take the young in their first feather, which, to novices, are the hardest to distinguish. They are both very much alike, but a safe guide to follow when buying cocks is to see that the white on the wings runs right up to the quill; if it doesn't, the birds are undoubtedly hens, though exceptions are met with, which only, however, prove this rule. There is also more white in a cock's tail feathers than in those of hens.

After the moult, which they are about clear of by the end of October, the cocks show a good nutty-brown colour on the shoulders, and their breasts are mottled; on turning the broast feathers back, you will find them well blotched with dull red. This mottled look is formed by a slight edging of light brown, a kind of fringe, as it were, which, as spring advances, is worn away, leaving a clear red breast. The young hens after the first moult are a shade lighter than the old ones, and are well pencilled down the front.

As the breeding season advances, the cocks assume a glossy blood-red on the top and fore part of the head, though some have been known to breed without either the red cap or the breast red; but this is generally only the case in the North of England. Cocks when caged never retain, nor do the young bred under such conditions acquire, the fine crimson on the head and breast which Linnets as wild birds posses, and such as are caught possessing it speedily lose it when kept in captivity.

The Linnet when Breeding.

The Linnet appears to breed twice in the year, the first eggs being laid in April. I have seen nests with eggs as late as the end of August. The eggs are from four to six in number, and are of a French white ground colour, more or less tinged with green, and speckled or blotched with light reddish-brown or pale purplish-red. The nest is usually formed of fine twigs and fibres outside, and is mixed with moss and grass stalks, being lined with hair, or vegetable down. It is generally built in a low bush.

When the broods of young are reared and summer is over, different families unite to form large flocks, which resort to the more enclosed districts, visiting alike stubbles, fallows, and land where certain vegetable seeds have been grown. Then is the time the birds are caught up by bird catchers, or by those who only catch a few by way of a hobby.

On Catching Linnets.

There are several ways of catching the Linnet. The three chief ones are: by the trap cage and call bird; the limed twigs (which to my mind is a dirty way of procuring them, and causes undoubted suffering to the captives until they loosen their limed feathers); and lastly the day or clap-nets, as used by the professional man for taking large quantities which are sent to the dealers in London and the provinces. These nets in practised hands are accountable for a severe diminution in the flocks of Linnets in August, September, and October.

Some of these men have earned for the profession, if one can call it that, a very bad name, because of the sometimes cruel way in which they treat their birds, but I am glad to say I don't know of any such personally.

It may interest readers if I give them a rough idea of the methods adopted by a man I know who makes a living by catching Linnets. Jack B—— lives in a neat little cottage on the outskirts of an agricultural town of moderate size, and towards the end of July he prepares for his season's work. He will have mended his nets, gone over the ropes and gear to be sure there is no failure, and above all he will have picked out ten of his best call birds, that is, those that are well on song, these will receive his best care and attention.

In the meantime he will have had some long country walks to find where the birds are feeding and to gain the necessary permission from the farmers to catch them. When the opening day of the season arrives he is up and about long before daybreak putting up his "pack," as he calls it, and after a hearty breakfast he is off.

If he has to go a long journey he calls into requisition a very light hand-cart, with very light springs, so that the birds do not get jolted too much. Having arrived at his grounds, he soon has a spot cleared and is busy "knocking down," and before it is quite daylight he has everything in its place, his brace birds in the nets, and call birds in a half circle in front of them. When the clear call of a wild bird is heard, it is soon taken up by his call birds, and over the hedge comes a family of five, say. Jack draws his watch line and shows his birds to the wild ones. When they see the brace birds feeding they take a short sweep round and drop into the nets, never dreaming of danger, being only eager for food. A quick pull and the nets are over them, and Jack is soon taking them out, and placing them in a store cage, which is well supplied with seed and water. So his luck goes on, until about noon, when he packs up and away he goes home. He keeps his birds up until he has enough to send away to the dealers, and weather and health permitting, such is his daily life until the end of February.

After the Moult.

The moult in many cases will be already at its close, and every week will add to the number of birds of every class which have only as it were the finishing touch to add to their annual change.

It is just at this time that special care is necessary to keep the birds from going wrong. In the first place, the weather begins to get very cold and wet, and we have chilly days interspersed with mild, bright, and sunny spells; which in itself, is a dangerous source of chills if special care is not taken to regulate the temperature and ventilation of inside rooms. The nights also are becoming generally cold, which serves to aggravate any adverse conditions prevailing during the daytime.

What should be aimed at is to moderate the amount of exposure to the outside elements at night and during these inclement spells, and ventilate the rooms freely during mild and bright periods. Wherever there appear any signs of wheeziness among the birds, it is best to avoid giving cold baths during chilly weather, as whenever there is any tendency this way at this time, it requires but little to excite it to become a grave menace to a bird's health.

To Fix and Refine.

It is also at this time when the moult is rapidly drawing to a close that the final touches of the quality and colour of plumage are given by the colour-feeder, who wishes to make the most of his birds; and what fancier does not feel this desire? A few grains of nice clean and bright linseed about three times a week is an excellent and simple means of adding a permanent lustre and quality to the plumage.

These descriptive adjectives may perhaps be considered a trifle whimsical, but when one has handled a few samples of the dusty, useless, puny seed of this kind, that is considered good enough for birds, the need for some specialisation will be apparent. But do not overdo this seed as it is apt to set up diarrhœa and cause the cages to become unpleasant. Soon after the plumage is fully grown, the linseed may with advantage be replaced by a cube of carrot stuck in the wires for the birds to peck at, which also has a good effect in making the plumage close and tight.

To make the colour given by the colour-food more durable, and to prevent its fading as soon as it otherwise would, a small crystal of sulphate of iron should be dissolved in the water two or three times a week, and preferably on those days when linseed is not given. With a little care in properly alternating these two items, they will be found to counteract the undesirable effects of each other, as the linseed, especially when given in any but the most limited quantity, is apt to prove very relaxing to the bowels, whilst the iron is decidedly constipating in effect.

The former, when properly used, is the plumage refiner so to speak for the fancier to pin his faith on. The iron not only makes the colour more durable and lasting, but also helps very considerably to tighten the feathers at the end of the moult, besides acting as a useful strengthening tonic for the bird at a time when one is most likely to be needed.

Useful Forms of Iron.

It is often asked how and in what form iron should be given to the birds. Although certain forms of iron are undoubtedly more easily assimilated than others when dealing with the human race, it may not follow that the same result would be found among birds. There is, in fact, far too great a tendency abroad in these days to argue from man to birds in the question of the medical treatment of our pets, notwithstanding the fact that any given drug may have, and in some cases is already known to have, a strikingly different effect on birds from that which it produces on the human race. Therefore, if one only avoids the time-honoured custom of keeping a rusty nail in the water, which is obviously most useless if one observes the first principles of success and gives fresh pure water daily, it probably matters not a jot what form of iron is used for this particular purpose.

The pure sulphate of iron already mentioned is a very convenient and easily administered form, and is doubtless still one of the best for general utility. A crystal about the size of a large hemp seed dissolved in each two tablespoonfuls of the drinking water, or, if a number of birds are to be catered for, a small teaspoonful in a pint of water, is all that is required.

Next to this, Parrish's Chemical Food, which for all practical purposes may be regarded as simply an iron solution, is about the best form to use, giving twenty drops in each ounce of water. It might well be given almost, or quite double this strength if the birds will take it freely. This is the real crux of the matter. It is perfectly safe to give the medicine double the strength named, but if one does this, and the birds object to it, and abstain as much as possible from drinking, no advantage will be gained, but quite the reverse, as, under these circumstances, the birds will consume a much smaller quantity of the medicine than if only half the quantity had been given, and the birds had partaken of it with less restraint.

It may be pointed out here that in order to obtain the best results from this medicine it should either be given in distilled water, or the water should be well boiled and allowed to stand until cold before being used.

Another useful form of iron which may be given in the egg-food during the finishing-off stage is the saccharated carbonate. This, in itself, has good colouring properties but it is not every bird that can be got to take it voluntarily with freedom. The ammoniated citrate is yet another available form, and when given in solution of the strength of about as much as will lie on a threepennypiece dissolved in an ounce of water for drinking, is an excellent general tonic and appetiser. It has, however, the disadvantage that there is a tendency to prevent the dropping of feathers, so that it should not be given as long as the birds have any apparent number of feathers to shed. But when all the feathers have been shed, and the completion of the growth is all that has to take place, it forms a really good colour-fixer and tonic combined.

Such forms of iron as the commonly used solution known as tincture of steel are still more powerful in stopping the moult, and are consequently so much the more objectionable for use in this connection,

Chapter XIX.—My Andaman Starlings.

The higher we get up in the world the more we are watched; the rooster on the church steeple is of more consequence, although he is only tin, than the rooster in the barnyard. I feel somewhat like the church rooster each time I have to chronicle a new success. All the same, I cannot but feel that I deserve my triumph, for although Fortune sometimes shows the way, it is Energy that achieves success. Fortune never takes anybody by the hand, but she often allows us to take her by the hand; and opportunities are made quite as often as they happen.

I might begin this article after the manner of Lord Macaulay: "Every schoolboy knows the position of the Andaman Islands." I frankly confess I was not in the position of the omniscient young prig, as I had to ask where they were, like Rose Dartle, for the sake of information. I found on consulting the map that the Andaman Islands are in the Bay of Bengal, not far from the Nicobar Group, whence, I suppose, come the Nicobar Pigeons.

Andaman Starlings are, I believe, exceedingly rare. Besides my own pair, I have only seen one other, an aged cock in the possession of a friend of mine, Mr. W. E. Stevens. As, therefore, the inquiring will be no wiser for the name, I will briefly describe the bird.

The Andaman Starling is a fascinating, graceful, pretty bird, with greenish-black wings and tail, a brownish-dash on the rump, a snowy waistcoat and head; yellow beak, blue at the base, yellow understandings, and pearl eyes. It would be difficult to imagine a more striking bird, and visitors to my aviaries always admire them immensely. The hen may be distingnished from the cock by her slightly grayer back and more slender and feminine head build. I know of no other distinctions.

Andamans are very tame and friendly birds, and by no means afraid of us humans. Mine will come within a yard of me at any time, and give their peculiar call-note.

One day I received a letter from a dealer in Preston, offering me a pair of Andaman Starlings, and telling me to look alive if I wanted them. Those who know me in the past will have no difficulty in guessing what my answer was, and a few days later the Andamans were at home at Micklefield.

For the time being, as the weather was bad, I put them into an indoor aviary in the birdroom, and they soon made themselves perfectly happy. They have two great weaknesses—tubbing and cockroaches; they are always ready to apply water to their outer man and black clocks to their inner. Fortunately I can gratify the latter craving, as our kitchen fairly lifts at night with cockroaches. To parody a favourite Yorkshire obituary notice:

"We find them here, we found them there,
We find these beetles everywhere."

With the advent of warmer weather I enlarged the Andamans' home into a big garden aviary, leaving them in company with a pair of Turquoisines. In the inner aviary there were three large logs intended for Parrakeet breeding. No. 1 was taken possession of by the Turquoisines; No. 2 by the Andamans, and also No. 3 at a later period. That my readers may understand the selection fully, I may say in passing that the neighbours on one side were a pair of Pagoda Mynahs, and on the other a pair of American Mocking Birds. All these reared families; so you may guess I had my hands full.

As the summer drew on, the Andamans showed that they intended to increase and multiply and replenish their earth. I one morning saw one of them carrying straw into the central log; so I took the hint and supplied some nice likely nesting material. They quickly fell to, and from time to time I saw an oddment of straw sticking out of the hole, so that I knew things were going merrily as the proverbial marriage bell. If I showed any undue interest by looking at the log from a distance, a warning note was soon uttered, which sounded very like that "wicked little cuss word" that Frenchmen are so fond of using—sacré—very much drawn out.

The hen only did the sitting, and, so far as I could tell, she sat for about thirteen days. No doubt readers of an inquiring turn of mind will want to know what the pretty eggs were like? I regret that I can furnish no information on the point, as I knew that to look would be as much as the nest was worth, and later, as events proved, the colour of the eggs was put beyond my power to guess, as they all hatched out. If, as is the usual custom, the egg shells were carried out, I never had the good luck to find them, so no doubt they were dropped in the long coarse grass and so escaped my notice.

Some weeks later, however, the Andamans went to nest again, and I examined the eggs, and found them to be of a deep bluish colour and oval in shape.

The youngsters were fed assiduously by both parents; they rose early and later took rest, but they did not carry out the Davidic maxim, by eating the bread of carefulness; for they evidently believed that the good of all the land of Egypt was theirs. The way mealworms disappeared was a caution to rattlesnakes. Like silver in the days of Solomon, they were nothing accounted of.

Guide books tell us that mealworms are too stimulating; that so fed, sooner or later unnatural parents throw their unhappy offspring out of the nest and begin nesting again. I often think of the words of Mrs. Glegg in the 'Mill on the Floss,": "Mr. Tallivir does'nt want to hear your opinion nor mine neither. There's folks in the world as know better than everybody else." That is my candid opinion of the advocates of non-mealworm treatment. I have had a fairly large experience and no mean measure of success, and I say without hesitation that I owe it all to disregarding such advice and following the teaching of Nature.

At first, the Andamans went about their domestic duties with a beautiful disregard to privacy, but as the days went on and the young began to lift up their voices, the parents grew worried and anxious, and if I happened to enter at feeding time I could hear them say "hush" as plainly as we should say it ourselves, if we wanted a youngster to be quiet.

The cock was often called to order for seeming, I took it, too venturesome, and I noticed after a time, that when engaged on domestic duties, like Agag of old, he went delicately. Feeding commenced very early in the morning, as I always left a good supply of grub out over night. I did this by putting the mealworms in deep pots, whence there was no escape, and where they could always be found by the anxious parents. Hour after hour throughout the day provender was carried to those hungry little mouths that were always, like Oliver Twist, "asking for more."

At the time I was in ignorance as to the number of the new family. I ventured to think there might be two, but it was only a blind guess. All I knew was that, if these birds were to be reared—whether many or few—they must have all they asked for. I may here note, in passing, that the excreta, after the first few days, was carried out to the very end of the outer flight and deposited on the woodwork; and it was by looking at this that I daily learnt how affairs were going on within that log of mystery. For the first few days the excreta was swallowed by the old birds

*A Sparrow's Sagacity.

My friend was looking out of one of her windows and she saw a Sparrow pulling at a knot in the linen line. It pulled and pulled till it got a lot of fluff, and then flew away. It did this two or three times. Then my friend went out and tied a piece of wadding on, and it came back and pulled all this off as well. Presumably it was making a nest.—Sent by Wilfred Spalding (age 15), Crane Court, High Street, Chelmsford.

*Just in Time.

A most curious experience attaches to a pet Canary belonging to my father, who, I may say, possesses many of these pretty creatures. It happened one afternoon to gain its freedom from its cage, only to be pounced upon by Mr. Thomas Cat, who had evidently been watching the proceedings. My father was just in time to notice the cat's disappearance over the back wall with the little Canary a firm prisoner between his teeth. Quick to notice its danger, he soon followed, and caught the cat. Just in time he took the bird, and found to his delight it still lived, and I am pleased to say it is none the worse for its adventure. —Sent by Elsie Tozer (age 14), 38a, Kend Road, Ford, Devonport.

 The Swallow's Message.

A certain poet once told a pretty story of a Swallow that built her nest in his garden. She had injured herself in some way, for the poet found her weakly and hopping along the ground one morning in the early autumn. He carried her into the house and carefully fed her until she was well and able to fly again. Before setting her free, however, the poet fastened to her wing a piece of oiled paper, on which he had written "Swallow, little Swallow, I wonder where you pass the winter?" The next spring the Swallow returned to her nest in the poet's garden, and the poet soon coaxed her with crumbs to come to him, for she had remembered her kind friend. Attached to her foot he found another tiny piece of oiled paper, bearing these words, "In Florence, at the house of Castellari. Cordial greetings to the friend in the North." The Swallow had herself brought back an answer to the poet's question, evidently written by a lover of birds in the far Italian town.—Sent by Kate Townsend (age 13), 73, Gt. Western Road, Gloucester.

My health has been too precarious all the summer for me to give full attention to my bird-room, writes Mr. J. B. Waterman (Dulwich), but am pleased to say I am picking up now. Should my wonted good health be vouchsafed me, I shall enter upon the forthcoming season with all my old zest.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

After the Harvest.

Now the harvest is past, the fields look somewhat bare, although the yellow stubble is in places broken, where the plough has already turned up the rich brown earth. Clouds of Rooks and dainty Wagtails are busy on these patches, and near the coast the Gulls do good service. Sometimes they may be seen almost dropping on the heels of the ploughman, and a pretty picture they make, their snow-white plumage forming a striking contrast to the surroundings, and giving life and animation to the scene. In the doings of the birds there are signs of the coming winter everywhere. The cheeky Sparrow and a few of his companions have returned from the fields, but there are many more to come yet, and it needs a sharp spell of frost before the majority return. But even throughout the winter there will always be big flocks to be seen in the open. Within the last week there has been quite an influx of Thrushes and Blackbirds. Many of these have no doubt left their northern breeding quarters, and drifted south, like many other species. Instinct tells them that the southern countries are safer, for although we get severe weather at times, it does not last so long, and there is generally a sheltered valley somewhere almost untouched by frost and snow. I know an old chalk pit, now overgrown with trees and underwood, situated between the hills, where the cold wintry blast is seldom felt. This sheltered spot is literally alive with bird-life in severe weather. Thrushes, Blackbirds, Fieldfares, Redwings, Tits, and all the Finches may be seen here at such times, and no doubt the shelter thus afforded the birds, saves the life of many of them.

British Buntings.

The British list gives eight species of Buntings, but, needless to say, one is not likely to see them all during one short season, for two of them have only been recorded two or three times, and one—the Black-headed—is a very rare visitor. Although they are rather clumsy cage birds, the writer confesses to a particular love for them, in the open, and many pleasant rambles have been made particularly interesting by their presence.

Late Broods of Partridges.

The cutting of the corn often reveals natural objects a little bit out of season. The other day a brood of very young Partridges narrowly escaped destruction from the reaper. They scuttled off to the nearest hedgerow, which fortunately was not far distant. Should they escape rats and wandering stoats, the parent bird will no doubt keep them there as long as possible, for in the open without the protection of the tall corn, they have much to fear from predatory birds, which at this season are constantly on the move.

The Solitary Water Rail.

Among the many birds returning southwards during the autumn is the skulking Water-rail. The haunts of this bird are the swampy marshes where the reeds, rushes, and other water plants thrive. The Water-rail is a solitary bird. One may sometimes catch a glimpse of him after sundown, as he comes forth from the vegetation, where he has been skulking during the day. He swims from one bed of reeds to another, and runs over the half-submerged water plants or flies round his haunts in the gloom, occasionally uttering his peculiar grating note. These birds nest among the rushes and coarse vegetation near the water. The nest is most difficult to locate, and is generally found by accident, as the sitting bird glides off the eggs long before the intruder is in sight.

"SYPHON" STOVES

Require no Flue.

Give no Smoke or Smell.

Bird Rooms, Aviaries, Bed Rooms, Nurseries, &c.

Mr. J. B. Holroyd, Breeder and Exhibitor of Champion Yorkshire Canaries, Shipley, Yorks, writes:—

I have great pleasure in speaking in the highest terms as to the qualities of your "SYPHON" STOVES. I have had one in use for several seasons in my Bird Room and have found it excellent. It is most economical and does away with the labour of attending to a fuel stove. There is no dust to fly about, a great consideration when exhibition birds are kept. Another great feature is the absence of smoke or smell.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT. Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vender, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

THAT LYING JADE

"rumour" is again busy, the latest false rumour going the rounds is, that the testimonials I publish week by week are not genuine. To prove that this statement is false, I have sent the whole of the letters printed this week, together with scores of others that have never been published, to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for his perusal, and I publicly offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever solicited a testimonial, or published one that was not genuine. I believe in giving every customer sound, honest value at a reasonable price, and when a man does that, he can get plenty of trade and testimonials, too. If you want anything in the bird-catching line, patronise me just once, you will see I do not want extortionate profits. Clap nets made from genuine thread netting, ¾ mesh, 3 yards long 4/- pair, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds, 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds, 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair, all guaranteed fully 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All fitted complete with brass-mountrd stave poles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate setting. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet poles 5/6, ditto 19 feet poles 6/6 each. Loose netting, made from 60's genuine thread, ¾ mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free. This netting is guaranteed finest procurable, and must not be confused with the American cotton fishing netting now being sold as bird netting. Self-acting spring net traps, by far the largest and most simple traps on the market, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 inches long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra. Single trap cages 6d. each; double ditto, 10d. and 1/-; Treble ditto, 1/3 each, all have seperate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Reg. No. 23927) guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Real Japanese birdlime, absolutely strongest made, does not run in sun, and guaranteed to hold a Hawk, 6d. ½ lb., 10d. ½ lb., 1/6 1 lb; sample 3d., all post free. Round or square topped call-cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen, 27/- gross. Linnet or Goldfinch cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen. Lark runner cages, 3/6, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- dozen. Every description of cages in stock. Dealers should send stamp for wholesale cage list, prices and quality will surprise them. Everything required by catchers kept in stock; send stamp for full catchers' list. See following letters, all recently received:—"Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, October 10th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I had a pair last year from another firm, and found them to be made of twine, which is a failure and a fraud. Yours, T. Smith." "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbro,' October 5th. Sir, —Please send another tin birdlime. It is best I ever tried. You boast of it being able to hold a Hawk, and, strange to say, a Hawk was first bird over our twigs, and the lime held it on. Yours, V. Moody." "10, Steps-road, Stenhousemuir. October 5th. Sir,—We tried birdlime on Saturday, and found it a great success. Yours, C. Godfrey." "Woodford Grange, Thrapston. October 1st. Sir,—Please send me pair Sparrow nets for a friend who saw the clap nets you supplied to me and was quite delighted with them. Yours, W. Meacock." "46, Portland-row, Selston. Sir,—Please send following. The netting I got from you last year is best in the world. I had a hare in it, and it never broke a mesh. Yours, A. Fielding." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Sir,—Netting I had from you last year is as good as ever, and has done good service. Yours, P. Braidwood." "Grange-road, Kettering. Sir,—Very pleased with loose netting you sent. Yours, T. Green." "10, Dyke Nook, Frizington. Sir,—Please send two call cages. My uncle has his, and is very pleased with them. Yours, J. Jenkison." "65, Low Town-street, Worksop. Sir,—Please send 4 yards netting. I had some from another firm last year, and it did not last the season out. Yours, J. Richards." "Bright View, Old Rathay, by Blairgowrie. Sir,—Please send 1 lb. birdlime. I have had it this three seasons, and it is best and cheapest I ever got, and first-class stuff. Yours, W. Hovelsroud." "10, Alpine Cottage, Beeston. Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from one firm more like garden netting than anything else. Yours, W. Worthington." "13, Finsbury-terrace, Finsbury Park, London. Sir,—Please send another pull line, I was highly pleased with last, as it is better quality than I can get in London. Yours, G. Barfoot." "Turnhill-terrace, Nantyglo. Sir,—Please send ½ lime. I had some last year, and cannot get better. Yours, J. Wise." "94, Whitworth-road, Rochdale. Sir,—I am quite pleased with trap cage. Please send following. Yours, E. Dean." "7, Birkland-street, Mansfield. Sir,—Please send following. I had very good results with your lime last year, also with nets you sent. Yours, G. Barson." "East Haddon. Sir,—Received nets, and am quite satisfied with them. Yours, R. Pudney." Thousands of similar letters open to inspection any time, but these are sufficient to show that my goods are by far the cheapest and best on the market. Why pay extortionate prices when you can get better value for half the money? Remember everything is sent on approval: cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully and promptly returned if every satisfaction not given. See British Bird column for further advertisement.

ENGLISH GOLDFINCHES.

We have the largest stock of these beautiful birds in the kingdom at prices that cannot be equalled (neither by linnet kings, link kings, or any such clap-trap royalty); our prices for cock Goldfinches, all on hard seed, is 1/6 each, or three for 4/-, 12/- per dozen, or specially selected cocks at 14/- per dozen; hens, 8/- per dozen; we always send 13 Goldfinches to the dozen; splendid white-legged cock Goldfinches, 2/6 and 3/6 each; selected cock brown Linnets, larger and better than any from the so-called Linnet Kings, only 8d. each, four for 2/-.—Northern Aviaries, Ormskirk-rd., Preston.

ARE YOU SATISFIED

with the dealer you are at present buying from? If so, stick to him, as no man can do more than give satisfaction; but if you are not satisfied, then give me one trial, and I will guarantee that no matter how hard you are to please, if it can possibly be done I will do it. I do not rely upon idle boasts or exaggerated statements for my trade. I believe in serving a man so well that he will personally recommend my birds to his friends and make them customers of mine, too. I care not for "kings," "Queens," "Knaves," "Uncles," or "Aunts." I am willing to prove at any time that I have more Worcestershire birds through my hands in one season than the whole lot together, and at time of writing have actually 84 dozen (1,008) of Goldfinches alone on view in my shop, besides hundreds upon hundreds of other birds. These birds are always on view, so my statement can easily be verified. This one fact alone should be sufficient to prove to you who is the man to deal with, because no man can offer you a better selection than myself. Grand large Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, in pink of health and condition, 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 6/6, twelve 12/-. Specially selected larger cocks, for show or muling, and guaranteed in song, 2/- each, three 6/-, six 9/-, twelve 16/-; few special clean moulted cocks, in full colour and superb condition, 2/6 and 3/- each; real deck-sweepers, fit to win immediately, 4/- and 5/- each; hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, three 2/3, six 4/-, twelve 7/-, thirty-six 18/-. Grand large cock brown Linnets, in perfect health and feather, everyone guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; specially selected, larger birds, for show, muling, or contesting, and warranted now in song, 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 6/-. These are the Linnets that are knocking spots off the best that Lancashire, Yorkshire, or any other county can produce in contests. See last week's advt. for proof. Splendid cock Bullfinches, 1/6 and 2/- each; exhibition specimens, 2/6 and 3/- each; cock Greenfinches, three 1/-, six 1/6; Yellow cocks, for exhibition, 1/- each; cock Chaffinches, 6d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-. Grand lot cock Skylarks, steady, and in song, 1/-, 1/0, and 2/- each; others, 3/- dozen. Few actual contest-winning Larks, hand-reared, and in full song, 20/-, 30/-, and 40/- each; these are in full song, and fit to win contests immediately. Linnet, Goldfinch cages, 6d. each; Lark cages, 4d. and 6d. each. Dealers send stamp for wholesale cage list. See few more "complaints" published below. This is how I victimise my customers. Do you want to be victimised in a similar way? "1, Norwood-dale, Norwood, Beverley, October 5th.—Sir,—Received Goldfinches safe, and am well satisfied with them all. I think them very nice birds, and thank you for generous manner you have treated me.—Yours, G. Tate." "37, Pottery-road, Llanelly, October 6th.—Sir,—I am more than satisfied with the Goldfinch. He is a much better bird than the one I picked myself. I shall recommend you to all fanciers for the way you have treated me.—Yours, T. Jenkins." "76, Dorset-road, The Brook, Liverpool, October 9th.—Sir,—Received the Linnets on 8th in pink of condition. They are three beauties. I am highly pleased with them. One started to sing immediately I caged them off.—Yours, J. Weaver." "351, Malins, Lee, near Shifnal, October 8th.—Sir,—Thanks for Goldfinch. I am highly pleased with it. Please send a similar one for a friend.—Yours, A. Plant." "Green Hill-terrace, Pinxton, October 10th.—Sir,—Please send me Linnet at 1/-. I have never in my life had such a good bird as the Goldfinch you sent me a few months back, but unfortunately a cat has killed him. I am only a working man, but would not have took £2 for him, and that is speaking honestly.—Yours, A. Bean." "21, Henderson-road, Sunderland, October 8th.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe, and am highly satisfied with them.—Yours, S. Allison." "76, Meetinghouse-street, Strabane, Ireland, October 10th.—Sir,—Crested cock arrived safe, and am highly pleased with him. I never saw the like for the money, as he is worth double.—Yours, P. Gallagher." "Whiterale-terrace, Kilbirnie, October 9th.—Sir,—Birds to hand. I consider them tho pick of stuff for the money, and am extra well pleased with them, and also quick dispatch.—Yours, W. Carlyle." "2, Liverpool-street, Salford, October 13th.—Sir,—Please send 18 cock Goldfinches. I have tried another firm, but did not get honest dealing.—Yours, G. Clarke." "31, Rhyddings Park-road, Swansea, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send Goldfinch. I had 15s. worth from you last season, and was very pleased with them.—Yours, J. Williams." "7, Dunsdale Cottage, Selkirk, October 12th.—Sir,—Please send three Linnets. The last I got from you, and also the Goldfinch, were fine birds.—Yours, W. Shannon." "7, Forest-street, Northwich, October 12th.—Sir,—Received Goldfinch, and he is doing well, and I am well satisfied with him, and am pleased with your prompt attention.—Yours, S. Broomfield." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir, October 6th.—Sir,—Linnet arrived safe, and am quite satisfied. I have bought birds from the so-called "Kings," which were nothing but little rubbish. All my future orders shall go to you, as I think you are a straightforward gentleman.—Yours, P. Braidwood." The above letters have been sent to Editor of CAGE BIRDS in their original envelopes to prove they are genuine, as some evilly-disposed person is circulating a report that the testimonials I publish exist in imagination only. All birds are sent on approval at my sole risk during the whole time either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRNS' deposit system, and unless birds prove in every way satisfactory you only have to return them and I refund every penny of your money. I am the originator of approval system in connection with wild birds, and first advertiser in this or any other paper to send wild birds on approval throughout the year. When dealing with me you are not dealing with a mushroom firm that is here to-day and gone to-morrow. I have been established 18 years, and business is still growing. One trial solicited, and nothing will please me more than for you to tell your friends exactly how I have treated you. Should I say this if I was not certain of pleasing you? See appliance column for further advertisement.

NOT A QUEEN.

There is much shouting about Linnet and other such Kings, let us hope they are all proud, happy monarchs, for I am content just to be a Practical Bird Specialist that can boast the largest and best selected stock of birds in England. I have hundreds of British birds that have moulted in my garden aviaries; my birds are all strong, fat and healthy, living on hard seed (no fresh-caught rubbish here). 1908 English Goldfinches, cocks 1/6, 2/- each, three for 4/-; extra large picked birds, muling, singing, showing, 2/3, 2/6, 2/9 each; Goldfinch hens, 9d. 1/2 each, three for 2/-; extra large Lincolnshire cock Linnets, clean moulted, red-breasted, cock birds, commenced singing, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6, six 2/3, twelve 4/-, twenty-five 7/6; specially selected birds for muling, showing, etc, 1/6, 2/- each, three 3/-; Greenfinches, 6d. each, 9d., 1/- pair; Redpolls, 6d. each, 1/- pair; Bullfinches, cocks, 1/6, 1/9, 2/-; hens, 1/-, 1/6 each; large cock Larks, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6; all birds sent on approval at my risk; neat travelling cages, 2d., 3d. each; send stamp for full illustrated list and prices of Canaries, British and Foreign birds. I have thousands of unsolicited testimonials open for inspection. If you want the best quality birds, send your order to Miss E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

TO ANY PART

of the world, I am willing to send all birds out on approval, entirely at my risk, either CAGE BIRDS deposit system, or receipt of cash, on condition that your money is returned in full if not given fully satisfaction. I have grand stock of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches in perfect health, 1/6, three 4/-, six 7/6, 13/6 dozen; specially selected, large cock Goldfinches, to moult for exhibition or mule breeding, 2/- each, three 5/-, six 9/-, 16/- dozen; few clear moulted cock Goldfinches, fit for showing, with large, square blazes, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each; hen Goldfinches, 1/-, three 2/6, 7/- dozen; Linnets, Linnets, there is no man in England who can supply you with better Linnets than myself; all my Linnets guaranteed to have nut-brown wings and back, rose-red breast, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, 4/- dozen; specially selected large cock Linnets for singing, showing or muling, 1/-, three 2/-, six 3/6, 5/6 dozen; impossible to get better; Redpolls, three 1/3, six 2/3, 3/6 dozen; large cock Chaffinches, 8d., three 1/6, six 2/6, 4/- dozen; warranted large cock Larks, 8d., three 1/6, six 2/6, 4/- dozen; few cock Larks, in song, 1/-, 1/6, 2/- each; cock Greenfinches, like paint, three 1/-, six 1/6, 2/6 dozen. HARRY ALLEN TO THE FRONT AGAIN!

Another big winner to my credit. I lead, others follow. See CAGE BIRNS report Peterborough Show; first Fox and Thomson. Cocks, Linnet (16): A fine lot this; 1, Fox and Thomson, lovely depth of colour, delightfully pencilled, rare feather, A1 shape and size, very bonny. This is the class of birds I sell. My A1 specials can beat the world for steadiness, size, colour, and markings; all one price, 2/6. Linnets, singing grand, with a beautiful polished cage, and my book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/- the lot; fierce singing cock Linnets, with blood-red breast and extra loud voices, with new cage, right for catching with or contest singing, only 2/-. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same for the money. Deposit your money with the Editor of this paper for honest stuff, on seven days' approval. No waiting. Over 500 of these special birds in stock. Linnets taught by the champion of the world, will sing anywhere, only 1/6 each; these special birds are real bargains. Goldfinches, real Peartree cock Goldfinches, full colour, the largest in England, with deep square cut blaze, beautifully buttoned and well tanned on breast. Gentlemen, believe me, these are the right sort for the show bench, 4/6 each; other fine Goldfinches, same size, full colour, right for muling with 3/6; Greypates, large big birds, beautiful wing bars, well buttoned, showing splendid colour, will make winners, 2/6; full-coloured cock Goldfinch Mules, singing grand, 5/6; splendid cock Canaries, singing grand, 6/- and 7/6 each, worth double; beautiful red-breasted Redpolls, the largest I have seen this season, right for muling with, 1/6 and 2/-. I have some splendid Larks, singing grand, only a 1/-; some with extra loud voices, 1/6. Gentlemen, to encourage the fancy I have lowered the price of my book of secrets, which is acknowledged by the public to be the finest book published. It tells you how to train them for contests, how to moult them, how to make them sing at one another with their wings down, the cause of soft moult and the only cure, price 9d. Gentlemen, if you want winners like Messrs. Fox and Thomson, write to the original Linnet King. Cash or deposit on seven days' approval; the largest British bird dealer of the world. Thanking you all for your patronage.—Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

have been known throughout the Fancy for over 20 years. Winning at all the leading shows, including Crystal Palace. Our last season's champion yellow was acknowledged the best yellow seen for years, finishing up 1st Palace, also winning CAGE BIRDS £5 special—thus proving our strain one of the best in the Fancy. As we are not able to exhibit much we offer for sale absolutely the choicest stock of exhibition Yorkshires in the world; perfect type, fine length, showing plenty of leg, teeming with quality, and showing that breed that always catches the judge's eye. All grandly fed, and can win in the keenest company. One exhibitor alone last season who bought a team of birds from us won 26 first, 21 seconds, and 14 third prizes, besides 3 cups and specials. This is no empty bounce, but solid facts. If you want to win or breed winners send to Amblers. Stock birds, wonderful length, full of style and quality, just the sort to breed champions, pairs from 15/- to 60/-; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed; all birds sent on approval; stamp particulars.—Messrs. Amblers (late of Bradford), 138, Westminster-road, Morecambe.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at ou rrisk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above hook post free on receipt of postcard.

GLASGOW & WEST. COUNTIES N.O.

Monthly meeting in Good Templars' Hall, Sept. 26. The club'n patronage was extended to Stonehouse, C.B.S. show, held Dec. 12th. After some business of a minor nature, the meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to the president.—J. H. ADAM, Secretary.

MORPETH C.B.S.

The final meeting of the Morpeth C.B. Society was held last Friday evening, when we had a most enthusiastic meeting. Our show is fast approaching, and it is to be hoped our bold venture in choosing an early date will meet with a good share of support. Fanciers should remember that our show is well secured, and there are attractive points in the schedule. We just want a good entry to make our show a big success, so we appeal to all bird lovers to rally round us.—E. COWLING, Hon. Sec.

KENT COUNTY F. & F. UNION.

The adjourned annual general meeting was held at Sittingbourne on Sept. 30th. There were delegates present from the Gravesend, Canterbury, Sittingbourne and Sheerness Societies. Mr. Dulf (Sheerness) proposed, and Mr. Ambrose (Sittingbourne) seconded, that the resolution of Sept. 2nd be confirmed, and that the Union be wound up. It was left in the hands of the Secretary to sell the cups for such sum as would meet the liabilities, but if possible to give preference to those who had won a cup twice and who might desire to purchase it. Mr. Ambrose, Sittingbourne, moved a vote of thanks to the Secretary for his services in carrying on the work of the Union, and also a vote of sympathy with the cup winners, who had now lost the chance of winning the cups outright. This was seconded by Mr. Batchelor, and carried.—W. J. DUFF, Hon. Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM O.B.S.

On Oct. 1st some 30 members and friends met at headquarters to witness an exhibition of washing Canaries for show, by Mr. W. J. Cranfield. Mr. H. E. Tringham, who was in the chair, said that at the forthcoming annual show a novelty had been promised, the committee having provided a class for Dutch Frills. In calling upon Mr. Cranfield he said there was no need for him to introduce that gentleman to the meeting as he was well-known to all as a keen fancier and one ever ready to help. Mr. Cranfield then proceeded with his washing exhibition, having everything ready, bowls, hot-water tank, drying cage, etc. He is very thorough in his method, and explained every stage of the process in a very lucid manner. After Mr. Cranfield had got his bird into the drying cage, the competition which had been arranged commenced, each gentleman entering into the spirit of the thing and doing his level best to capture one of the two prizes, Mr. J. Harry winning the first prize, a silver medal. This gentleman handled the bird in a very dexterous manner. He eventually informed the meeting that it was only the second bird he had washed in his life, which argues well for his future in staging birds for show. Mr. J. Cole won second prize, and this gentleman's method was also very thorough. Mr. Reeves proposed, and Mr. Legg seconded, a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Cranfield for the trouble he had taken and the very able exhibition he had given. A vote of thanks was also given to Mr. Tringham, both for acting as judge for the competition and his duties in the chair, and another to those gentlemen who had brought birds to be washed.—W. HODSON, Hon. Sec.

CRESTED CANARY CLUB.

The Crested Canary Club'n support for 1908-9 is as follows: The club's two ten-guinea bowls for the best current year Crest and Crest-bred respectively (to be won three times) will be competed for at Gateshead on December 11th and 12th; judge, Mr. T. Heath. The ten 21s. specials for best current year Crest or Crest-bred that has not previously won a first prize, and which must be bred by the exhibitor, purchased young birds not being eligible (no member can win more than one of these specials during any one show season, neither can he claim any of the cash specials offered by the club at any show at which he may have won one of them), will be competed for at Plymouth, October 20th and 21st; Cambridge, October 22nd and 23rd; Newcastle, October 23rd and 24th; Cheltenham, November 4th and 5th; Bristol, November 11th and 12th; Nottingham, November 14th and 16th; Norwich, November 28th and 30th; Horticultural Hall, December 4th and 5th; Gateshead, December 11th and 12th; and the Crystal Palace, February 5th to 9th. If any of the above shows fail to provide one class each for 1908 Crests and Crestbreds, they will forfeit the 21s. special. The first year champion points specials will be competed for at Exeter, October 14th, judge Mr. T. Heath; Derby, October 24th and 25th, Mr. J. Robson; Manchester, October 30th and 31st, Mr. J. Dobson; Dulwich and Peckham, November 5th and 6th, Mr. Robson; Wimbledon, November 17th and 18th; Mr. Robson; and Swindon, November 26th and 27th, Mr. Robson. The specials are of the value of 21s., 10s. 6d., and 5s. for the first, second, and third most points scored at these six shows. The following cash specials will be offered at all the above-mentioned shows, as well as at Bristol, October 22nd and 23rd, judge Mr. T. Heath; Hastings, November 10th and 11th, Mr. J. Robson; and Long Eaton, November 28th and 30th, viz., 5s. for best Crest, not the property of the 21s. special winner, 5s. for best C.B., 2s. 6d. for second best Crest, 2s. 6d. for second best C.B., 5s. for best Buff clear body wing-coloured Crest, 5s. for best clear body C.B. with dark or grizzle cap, 5s. for best Yellow Crest, 5s. for best Yellow C.B. Novice Competitions: Mr. R. Rhodes again presents a silver cup, value 42s., for most points scored by a member at all shows providing at least two novice classes (one for Crests, and one for Crest-breds). A handsome plated teapot will be given to all novice members who win their three first prizes in any one show season. The following cash specials will also be given at all shows providing two novice classes, viz., 5s. for best Crest and 5s. for best C.B. not the property of winners of the above. Note: There must not be less than four competing members in any one class for any of the club's specials (both champion and novice), or the specials will be withheld, and, according to the resolution carried at the annual general meeting, all specials given for young birds must be competed for by birds bred by the exhibitor (purchased birds debarred). The Roberts £25 silver challenge cup for most points scored at the twenty following shows, only one bird in each class to count, to be won three times: Plymouth, Manchester, Cheltenham, Norwich, Cambridge, Nottingham, Derby, Bristol Fanciers, Horticultural Hall, Gateshead, Edinburgh (Scottish National), Newcastle, Swindon, Sheffield, Leicester, Cardiff, Preston, Glasgow and West of Scotland, Birmingham, and Exeter.—JOHN TYSON, Hon. Sec., 169, Sloane-street, London, S.W.

Your "Guide to the Shows" is really splendid.—W. Reid, joint secretary, Sunderland C.B.A.

Allow me to thank you for the bumping pennyworth of this week. The plate I got is splendid, while the "Guide to the Shows" is really a great idea, and will be a boon to us all.—T. R. Wallace (Falkirk).

Somehow or other Cage Birds was not delivered to me this week until Tuesday, and I felt quite miserable without it, as I look forward to it every Friday, and read its interesting pages from first to last. I wish it every success.—D. Thomas (Portmadoc).

Allow me to congratulate you on this week's Cage Birds. It far exceeds all others and is of great value, so much so that I purchased six more copies with different plates. Your "Show Guide" is splendid, and might be called a "glancer"—you can tell all about a forthcoming show at a glance. We all try to demand success, but you do more—deserve it.—And, Wilson (Glasgow).

At the Morecambe C.B.S. Annual Show, writes Mr. J. H. Ireland, the secretary, we are giving 46 classes, with very good prize money and cash and other specials, including challenge cup, rose bowl, etc., and we hope to have a bumping entry.

We have practically no cage-bird entries at present, writes Mr. G. M. Larkman secretary of the Northampton Good Intent Show, to be held on October 21st and 22nd under C.B.U. rules, and we will accept entries up to first post on Saturday, October 17th.

Entries for our show, to be held on October 20th and 21st, under C.B.U. rules, are coming in very slowly, writes Mr. Thos. Pope, hon. secretary of the Western Counties O.S. (Plymouth). We do not average two per class, and we cannot understand it.

Classes 36 and 37 in our show schedule, writes Mr. J. W. Philpott, hon. secretary of the Accrington Show, to be held on October 23rd and 24th, are made to read "20s. and 12s. 6d. pair selling classes." This is not so, as the classes are intended for single birds only.

We are giving three silver medals, one for Yorkshires, one for Norwich, and one for British Birds, writes Mr. Ed. Carlisle, secretary of the Barnsley C.B.S., for those gaining most points in the three shows which we are holding. These shows are the Table Show in October, another in November, and an ordinary Members' Show about Christmas time.

NEXT WEEK!!

The Next Issue of CAGE BIRDS will be

A Special Double Number.

The interesting articles and photographic and other illustrations which it is to contain would, we trust, have in any case ensured for it as hearty a welcome as has greeted our Double Numbers in the past. But THIS, we venture to predict, will arouse greater enthusiasm than any previous special issue by reason of the

it will contain. This represents

An entirely New Departure in the portrayal of prize-winning birds.

It is a plate which will astonish and delight you.

Every reader should order his copy of this Special Number at once and tell all his friends of the great treat in store.

Nothing like this Plate has ever been seen before, and the demand for this issue is sure to be phenomenal, so order your copy in time from your newsagent.

We are compelled, writes Mr. W. H. Manley, hon. secretary of the Bristol C.B.S. Show, to be held on October 22nd and 23rd, to extend entries to first post, October 19th. Exhibitors coming from a distance can have the advantage (by showing admission ticket) of cheaper fares from Cheltenham, Gloucester, Bath, etc., on the Midland Railway on the Thursday and Friday, and also on the Great Western Railway on Thursday, this being Market day; the rate on these lines will be a single fare and a quarter for the double journey.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM WARD, Jun. (Highgate, N.)

It is with sympathy and regret that I have to inform you of the death of William Ward, junr., at the age of 21 years, writes Mr. Geo. H. Neal, hon. secretary of the Highgate, Hampstead and Dis. C.B.S. He was the son of our vice-chairman, and also a member of our society, though not known greatly in the Fancy at large. He loved birds and was one of the first to join us in starting the society. It was on September 28th that he was taken bad with terrible internal pains, which necessitated his removal to the Great Northern Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. He came through the operation, but sank slowly and passed away on October 3rd. The funeral took place on October 9th, at the Finchley cemetery, and the society was represented by Messrs. Andrews, Neal, and Mrs. Woods. I am sure the deepest sympathy will be extended to those who are left to mourn his loss.—Geo. H. Neal, hon. secretary.

We hear from Mr. C. Irvine, secretary of the Ayr and Dis. C.B.C., that at the monthly meeting to be held in the Good Templar Hall, New Bridge Street, on Monday, October 19, at 7.30 p.m., Mr. Dan Swan will give an exhibition of washing birds. This being the first in Ayr, the society is expecting to see a full turnout of members and friends.

The half-yearly meeting of the Cinnamon Canary Club will be held at Manchester Show, on the Saturday afternoon, October 31st. Will members kindly make an effort to attend.—R. J. Pretty, hon. secretary.

An L. and P.O.S. Resignation.

We are asked to announce that Mr. H. Lambert Brown has resigned the secretaryship of the L. and P.O.S., and that Mr. J. W. Ramsden will carry on the duties of secretary until the annual general meeting in December. Members are desired to forward their entries for next week's Table Show to Mr. Ramsden, at 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, S.W.

Will You Help?

In almost all districts we require the help of fanciers competent to fix and arrange Cage Birds stall at the local shows, and act as our agent in selling our books and specialities. For this work we are prepared to offer a liberal commission as remuneration. We shall be glad to hear at once from readers who can give the time, and are willing to undertake this work on our behalf.

TO ADVERTISERS.

We have this week been favoured with an unusually large influx of small advertisements late on the Wednesday morning, and these we have reluctantly, owing to great pressure of shows, etc., on our space, been compelled to hold over until our next issue. We shall be grateful if our advertisers will help us during the busy winter season by always posting their announcements when possible to reach us by Tuesday's post, otherwise, although we shall make every effort to include advertisements received on the Wednesday, we are unable to GUARANTEE insertion in our issue of the same week. Will senders of those advertisements which reached us this Wednesday, and who find their announcements not appearing, kindly accept this explanation.

(For List containing names of judges and names and addresses of secretaries, see last week's issue).

In the schedule of Gloucester Show (October 28th and 29th), writes the secretary, Mr. J. Houghton, the novice class, which originally was class 38, has been changed to class 11, so by the latter change it has altered all the numbers of our special prizes, which go up a class in consequence.

A Chance for Non-Colourfoodites.

At the Gloucester C.B.S. Annual Show, on October 28th and 29th, owners of natural colour Norwich Plainheads have an exceptional opportunity, for Dr. Ancrum has guaranteed the following prize-money for two classes (Yellow and Buff):—First, £1; 2nd, 10s.; 3rd, 7s. 6d.; 4th, 2s. 6d.; with a special of £1 for best non-fed Plainhead in the show. The entry fee is only 1s. 6d., as usual. The worthy doctor's generosity ought to meet with an excellent response from exhibitors.

The Suspension of Exhibitors.

When at the recent Peterborough Show, writes a correspondent signing himself "One Who Was There," I was disgusted to notice that certain London fanciers who were lately suspended by certain London societies after having had birds disqualified for being stained, were permitted to win prizes here at a show held under the rules of the Cage Bird Union. I thought that was what the C.B.U. was formed to stop! I heard that the show officials said that no notice of suspension had been received from the Union secretary, so they had no option but to take the entries. What about all the suspended exhibitors, I would like to ask? Who knows who they are? How are secretaries to know whose entries to refuse? I also heard it stated that these very exhibitors above referred to intended showing birds at forthcoming open London fixtures. What a farce!

(We understand that a meeting of the C.B.U. committee for the London district will have been held, to deal with the case our correspondent quotes, before these lines appear in print.—EDITOR.)

THE PORTRAYAL OF PRIZE WINNERS.

Would You Like to Have a Portrait of Your Successful Bird as a Memento?

As first announced in our issue of September 19th, for this show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER; The next Shows will be Plymouth, Oct. 20 and 21, and Bristol, Oct. 22 and 23.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

Here is the list of shows referred to above:—
October 20th and 21st.—Plymouth (Western Counties).
October 22nd and 23rd.—Bristol.
October 30th.—Manchester.
November 11th.—Carlisle.
November 14th.—Nottingham.
November 27th.—Leeds.
December 11th.—Gateshead.
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

The Members' Annual Show will be held on November 7th, writes Mr. Lilley, secretary of the S.W. London C.B.S., when 39 classes will be provided.

Our "Guide to the Shows."

Readers should make the following additions and corrections to the "Guide to the Shows" issued last week. Additional judges: Widnes, December 18th and 19th, C. Houlton; Manchester, October 30th and 31st, Messrs. Wright and J. Ferguson; South Shields, for J. Smith read J. Shepperd; Cirencester, November 25th and 26th, J. H. Payne; Sidmouth, November 19th, J. Robson; Scottish National, December 31st and January 1st, A. Cochrane, and for Watts read F. A. Watt. The Edinburgh Northern Show should be dated November 14 h (not 21st), with Messrs. P. MacDougall, W. Urquhart, and Holmes as judges, and T. Purdie, 42, Stewart Terrace, Edinburgh, as secretary. Braintree, November 7th, is a £5 limit, 20-mile radius show.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS AND CAGES.

This Special Handbook is written by that well-known fancier Mr. H. Norman ("Cage Birds" Artist-in-chief) who has illustrated it with a wealth of helpful drawings. It also contains Ten Lovely Full-page Photographic Plates.

It is a practical guide which must be on every bird-lover's bookshelf who desires to thoroughly understand the proper Building, Fitting and Management of Aviaries, Bird-rooms and Cages.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions;—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

An Old Friend.

A. G., Kent.—1. Your bird is doubtless rendered a little more than usually susceptible to weather changes by moulting. You must see it is protected from draughts; do not give it cold baths during wet, chilly weather until it is quite over the moult. Give the hemp two days a week only, and about double the quantity you now give each time; on two other days give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, and on remaining days each week a little green-food or sweet juicy fruit. Give these items alternately, so that a different one is given each day. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, every second day for a week, well shaken together. 2. If your cold room is free from draughts and damp, and your birds have not been hitherto accustomed to an artificially-heated room, it will be quite safe to keep them there through the winter.

A Puzzler.

G.W.—Am sorry I cannot quite make out your query. You wish to know what use is Scotch—something I cannot decipher—or French fly for Canaries? If you mean Scotch oatmeal, it is a very valuable item for a change occasionally for birds in large flights or aviaries, but for birds confined in small cages it is often objectionable, and apt to give rise to digestive troubles. Where it is found that the birds can take it in limited quantities without harm it should be very useful as an item in the dietary of large, big-bodied birds in particular. If by French fly you mean the dried flies of commerce that are used as food for soft-billed birds, I have never used them for Canaries, and do not expect Canaries will touch them. Mine certainly would not on the few occasions when I offered some. If they did eat them, I should imagine the flies would be practically worthless as food. An occasional mealworm is of far more service, and, after tasting one, Canaries are not slow to kill and devour them with evident gusto. If this is not quite the information you desire please write again, and give a few more particulars.

Swollen Behind.

Novice.—Your hen is suffering from old-standing constipation, and your feeding is probably at fault. As you are silent on the latter point, however, I cannot tell where you go wrong. Adopt following treatment until the trouble is removed. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape seed, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake. Every day give a little green-food—watercress, lettuce, or chickweed, for preference. Keep the cage clean, and well strewn with gritty sand. In the drinking water give twelve drops of glycerine, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and five drops of lemon juice, well shaken together, every day for the first three days, and every second day afterwards for a week, or until the twitching you mention has quite disappeared. Then you may drop this and substitute five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week. Continue this diet for a short time after the bird has quite recovered; then you may revert to the general dietary frequently given in this column. See that there are no insect pests to worry the birds.

Yorkshire Gone Blind.

"Anxious."—Your Canary is suffering from cataract on both eyes, and it is certainly rather an uncommon case for it to go blind at its very first moult. I do not think anything you can do will be of any avail, but just for your own satisfaction you may try the following: Get a chemist to mix you six grains of red oxide of mercury in half an ounce of spermaceti ointment. Catch the bird two or three times a week, and apply a tiny piece of the ointment, about the size of a small pin's head, to each eye, and hold the bird for a minute or two whilst the ointment melts and works its way round the eyelids. The ointment is poisonous, so be careful with it. You might let me know the result. Keep the bird in the same cage, and even if the sight is not recovered it will soon get so much accustomed to its surroundings that it will seem to forget its great loss, and, if a cock, will probably sing as well as though its sight were perfect.

A Damaged Foot.

Crested Cock.—It is possible the bird being so wild and nervous hurt its own foot in fluttering about on its journey to you. You should have reported the injury to the vendor at once, and it is likely he might have been able to suggest the cause and a remedy. Early treatment is of the greatest importance in such cases. Without seeing the foot it is impossible to say what the result of the injury may be, but I anticipate it will be serious. Keep the bird in a fair-sized, but not very large, box cage, and hang in a quiet part of the room until the bird has grown steady. Be patient with it, and every now and again gently place a tiny scrap of green-food in the wires so it may quickly learn to associate your approach with this tit-bit. Every night after it has settled down to roost, darken the front of the cage, and quietly pick him up off the perch, and hold the foot for a minute or so in a warm solution of boric acid say, a teaspoonful of acid dissolved in half a teacupful of hot water. Dry on a soft rag, and gently rub in a drop or two of warm olive oil. You might also give it a saline aperient, as advised to "Novice" in this issue, in its drinking water twice a week.

General Knowledge.

J.R.B.B.—To go fully into all details of management is scarcely possible here. You would doubtless find one of CAGE BIRDS cheap manuals on Canary keeping very useful. In brief, the following is most suitable for a bird kept for singing purposes only whilst moulting. Staple food, mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, or, in the case of a German-bred Roller, this may be varied to two parts Canary to one part rape. Twice each week give a few grains of hemp twice a week half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake or of egg-food, and three times a week a spray of green-food. These extras should be given alternately and on different days, so that a different one is given each day. Towards the end of the moult a few grains of linseed may be substituted for the hemp. Clean gritty sand should always be provided. For green-food, chickweed, flowering heads of groundsel, plantain stalks, shepherd's purse, lettuce, watercress, in the order named are preferred. For birds that have no young to rear crushed sponge cake is the best soft food, being much safer and cheaper. As long as the bird is in vigorous health, and shows no signs of wheeziness, and is not exposed to draught, a bath may be given three or four times a week. But if there appear any signs of wheeziness only tepid baths should be given, and these only in mild weather. A temperature of sixty degrees is quite high enough for all ordinary purpose during moult. The sponge cake recommended is the ordinary cake made by all good confectioners. It can be bought in small cakes at a penny each, or in larger ones at so much per pound. It is best after being kept a day or two (so that it will crush more easily) than when newly made. Plantain stalks in the half-ripe state are very good for Canaries.

Brevities.

Defective Toe (S.E.).—The injured toe will certainly tell against the bird more or less according to the keenness of competition, and the extent of the injury. But as it is the result of an accident, and is not congenital, the bird should lose the least number of points for it. A bird equal in all other points, and with perfect toes, will always take precedence of it. Glad to help you at any time.

Lump on Neck (C. York, Tyseley).—The substance is probably a small tumour, and in the position you name would, I fancy, be easily removed by a "vet.," or anyone having a little skill and a fair knowledge of the part; if the bird was worth it, it would be much the best plan to get a "vet." Failing this, I would advise you to leave it alone lest you make things worse. It may not grow any bigger, and will not be at all likely to affect the young. If not interfered with the trouble will be practically certain to be permanent.

Lagging Moult (Hibiscus).—You cannot do better than keep the birds in a rather warmer temperature, but be careful not to raise the heat considerably at one sudden bound at this stage of the moult, otherwise you will probably throw them deep into a new moult. Bring the heat up gradually from eight to ten degrees higher, and see that there is no suspicion of draught. Continue the colour-food, and add a few grains of linseed twice a week to diet, and in the drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a week or two.

Three Undesirables (G. S., Paulton).—Am not at the moment aware of a possible candidate for the specimens. Recent compulsory reduction of space compelled me to reduce my own stock, or I might have had them for experiment. Why not try a course of high feeding, coupled with hypophosphites warmth, and the sulphur treatment mentioned recently? This might put on new plumage. In any case, do not attempt to breed with such birds, even if they did grow new feathers. There would be too great a risk of perpetuating the undesirable features.

Young and Old Linnets.

Learner.—"Experience" is the best teacher of "how to sex Linnets." These things cannot really be taught on paper; and this applies to a great number of species. When Linnets are absolutely in nest feather, it takes a clever and experienced man to tell cocks from hens, as all the youngsters are alike in plumage then. They are very light (pale) in colour and "fluffy" looking in feather and the markings are very thick and streaky looking. The best guide for the novice is to choose a bird with a good edging of white to the tail feathers, and which has the white on the flight (wing) feathers extending right back to the quill (shaft). When the young have moulted their nestling plumage, the "whites" still remain a fairly good guide, but whereas the hens remain grey in colour, and heavily streaked with markings on the breast, the cock develops a nut-brown back and wing butts, and signs of red are soon to be observed on the breast feathers, especially if ruffled with a finger, the tips of the feathers having a "mooned" appearance—an edging of colour disposed in a shape resembling that of the new moon. Any red feathers on the breast infallibly denote a cock—unless, of course, the "red" has been applied by human hands. A three-year-old cock Linnet in the breeding season develops a really gorgeous crimson head and breast. To sum up: In an adult bird always look for good whites, a rich nut-brown back, and a "mooned" breast, and you can't go wrong.

Muling Matters.

E. Horne.—Your question is not easy to answer, because you do not say whether you want "experimental" pairs or pairs already known to have been successful. Of the former I should plump for the Greenfinch-Hawfinch (or sexes reversed), and Hawfinch-Bullfinch, as the most attractive "possible" Hybrid pairs. Of the latter you could hardly better Bullie hens, mated to either Redpoll, Siskin, Goldfinch, Greenfinch, Canary and Linnet cocks. One of the "very stout cinnamon-bred" Yorkshire hens, if not from heavily-marked stock, might answer for mating to a cock from your Sib-bred strain, with a view to crossing any suitable youngsters into the the latter, to bring the size up a bit. If the Sib-strain is a proved light Mule producing one, then the said youngsters should be tested with a Finch before being crossed in. Probably the Norwich hens, and certainly the self Cinnamon hen, are fit only for dark Mule breeding.

Feeding a Mixture.

Cage Birds.—I shouldn't have thought you would have found the British birds eat much millet. I know my own turn their noses up at it. Still, you don't give much else—Canary, rape and millet make a poor menu for aviary birds, especially outdoors. I am afraid you will not find it answer well during the winter. You can easily improve on it. I advise you to keep the canary, rape, and millet in one dish, and to add one part of linseed to it during the winter. In another dish, give only hemp; in another, teazle, another sunflower and safflower mixed in equal parts. This would be something like a dietary, and you would find the method the most economical, as mixed seed always results in very heavy waste. You could give an occasional feed of niger, maw and "wild seed mixture" (see advertisement columns). These, with the green-foods I recommend, would keep your birds in the best possible condition.

Show Points of a Nightingale and Redstart, etc.

Beatrice. Size and shape, of course, are essential points, and these you can only gauge by comparing your birds with other examples, when on the show-bench. They should be cobby (stoutly-built), with broad heads, and wide well-rounded chests, and perfect feet. The Nightingale should be a warm, rich brown tone of colour all over, deepening to reddish at root of tail, the only allowable exception being a silvery whiteness at the throat, and in the region of the abdomen. In the Redstart, the head should be bluish-grey, and the back also, though tinged with red; the root of the tail should be as fiery a red as possible, and the region of the lower breast a deep, warm orange red; the cheeks, throat, and upper breast should be a rich glossy black, there being white fringes here-abouts. There should be on the forehead, and extending round above the eyes, a white band, and this should be of nice width (plain) and clearly defined (cut) at the edges. There only requires to be a sparse mottling of white on the breast, by-the-way. The depth of the red depends largely on colour-feeding, which helps very much to attain it. You do not put water in the show-cage while travelling to the show, it would only get spilled over the cage bottom, and make an awful mess. Exhibits are given water as soon as they reach the exhibition; see that they get a drink just before starting—easily ensured by leaving them without water for half-an-hour or so before packing them, and then offering water. You don't bother about stating the age of British birds—few know it—that clause applies to the Canaries. I like damped cocoa-nut fibre (obtainable at florists' shops) as a covering for the cage bottoms. Press it down hard.

A Lesser Whitethroat.

Birdy.—It is usual, of course, to put a good supply of insectivorous food in the cage when despatching a bird to a show. But all shows worthy of the name feed the birds while they are there. Many exhibitors, however, send a supply of any special food they may be using for their birds. The Lesser Whitethroat I have always found a particularly easy bird to keep in health and good plumage. The chief show points are size and shape, perfection of plumage and condition, perfect legs and feet, while the colour, broadly speaking, should be a warm grey above and clean, pure white below, the latter being sharply defined from base of beak down sides of throat and breast; having a good "mask," as it is termed. Feed on the same lines as other small insectivorous birds. Briefly, my method is as follows: As a stock food powdered Osborne biscuit, four parts; best ants' eggs, and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupae, one part; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently and adding a little water (but only a few spots) if necessary. Personally, I use one hard-boiled egg, minced fine, among the stock food of about each dozen to eighteen birds, and about three table-spoonfuls of crumbled home-made sponge-cake, with some vegetable ingredient. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, all the live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, small beetles, smooth caterpillars, greenfly, live ants' eggs etc.), one can possibly obtain; mealworms given regularly are indispensable. To the above stock mixture I occasionally add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, and, more occasionally still (practically only in the winter), a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Good cream cheese is a splendid food, too; give a little, finely chopped, and mixed, of course, with the above biscuit food, or just laid on top of it. In place of Osborne biscuits, for economy's sake, the "broken biscuits" (sweet), obtainable very cheaply from most grocers, may be used. Excellent ready-made foods, too, may be bought through our columns.

Brevities.

In an Aviary (C. Lees).—The cock birds you mention would be suitable (though the Greenie and the cock Siskin would be better), with 8 or 9 hen Bullies. If any prove persistently quarrelsome, you will have to remove them. Note reply to "E. Horne."

Bullfinch not Moulting (G. O.).—Yes; the Bullfinch ought to have started to moult by this. Still, there are many Finches, I expect, which are in the same boat as he is. I can only refer you to the reply given "Lark Singer," the week before last, entitled, "Birds which will not Moult."

Goldfinch Mule not Moulting (F. Carlin).—I can only refer you to the reply given "G.O." above. Probably the old age is the real cause, and it looks a very serious case, seeing that the bird is "asleep nearly all day." Am afraid its chances of recovery are small.

Blackcap in Winter (John Pye).—A friend of mine kept a Blackcap Warbler in health through the winter in an outdoor birdhouse, and he had frequently to "thaw out" the water-pots. According to this, your own bird should thrive in the unheated indoor room.

Linnet-Goldfinch-Hybrid (M. Kendall).—Young bred between a Linnet and a Goldfinch are not at all uncommon. Whoever told you the contrary (said it "could not be done") were, to say the least of it, singularly ill-informed in the matter, for such Hybrids are very frequently exhibited at our shows. For replies by post, please note rules.

House Sparrow for Exhibition (A Reader).—Yes; you are quite right; the House Sparrow is a most difficult bird to get steady, and an adult is not worth bothering with. Hand-rear a nest of youngsters; keep the best cock bird and let the rest go. A real good, steady, full-coloured two-year old male would stand a fair chance of receiving a prize or two. Most fanciers smile at them as show-birds, however.

Looseness of Bowels (M. M. R.).—Get an ounce of crystals of citrate of iron from a chemist, and dissolve daily in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water as much as will just lie on a threepenny piece. This will correct the looseness of the bowels, and "tone" the bird up. Give a little stronger, if it seems necessary, but watch the excreta carefully, and don't overdo it. Feeding is alright, though you should add a little maw seed.

A Dead Linnet (W. B. Jepson).—If blood oozed from the Linnet's mouth, it must have broken a blood-vessel, ruptured its lungs, or something equally serious, and no treatment could pull round a bird so afflicted. As regards the other birds, the plan of mating is quite alright. With regard to the feeding, the seeds and plan advised "Cage Birds" this week, would answer admirably in your case, as the millet (provide it in sprays as well) would just suit the Zebra Finches.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

What Parrot Is It?

Cymro, Pontypridd.—Your bird is the Rose-breasted, or Roseate Cockatoo. It is known by both names. The majority of this species do not make good talkers, though such frequently occur; still, they are not the rule. It is, however, a species that soon becomes chummy, and makes a droll and amusing pet, and usually becomes quite an accomplished acrobat. If you keep it, as soon as it becomes tame, say in your ordinary living room, where it will hear plenty of conversation, etc., it will soon do something in the talking line, and may turn out one of the talented ones. Feed it on the mixture given in reply to "A. Atkins," together with ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts, and a little green-food, wholesome salads as in season. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food, and the bird should thrive and do well. It is a hardy species, but must not be subjected to draught.

Breeding of Budgerigars.

T. A. F.—Am afraid you can hardly do as you suggest, though Budgerigars are not over particular about the husk being examined. I rather doubt if they would submit to the eggs being removed as laid, even though they were fooled with the dummy egg. I am of opinion that the squashing of the young did not take place till after death; even in their native wilds the same difference occurs as to the eggs hatching one at a time and mostly at intervals of a day or more. Both parent birds and young would benefit by the number being reduced to five, so that the wastage is more apparent than real. Why not try the experiment? But though some may tolerate the interference, there will be others that will not, but will promptly desert their eggs. One pair of birds I possessed would let me handle the young and the old birds remain in the husk while I did so; but with two other birds I lost both egg and young by interfering with them.

Identification Wanted.

Mexican.—It is very difficult to name foreign birds from an incomplete description, and in this instance it might apply to several, as also the nest. However, I have little doubt but that they are African Firefinches. The spherical nest is common to so many species as to be of no value for the purposes of identity. The Firefinch is of more slender build than the Cut-throat, and has a much less powerful bill. The rearing of these charming little Finches is not common, though it is not rare. Hope you will be successful; if so, please send an account of same to Editor of CAGE BIRDS; there are many readers who would be interested in such an account.

An Improving Amazon.

S. G. Manning.—Am glad to note treatment has proved effective, in what appeared to be an almost hopeless case. Till the bird has completed its moult keep up the Parrish's Chemical Food by making the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with same; if this should occasion constipation, one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia over its boiled maize will put matters right. It is quite right to spray the bird with tepid water; even in winter this should be done, choosing a genial day, and guarding carefully against draught. Almost any material will do for a cover. If I had to purchase I should get some dark coloured sergecloth. At the present time I am using old damask curtains for such purpose; my cages are square and over one corner the cover always hangs, so that the bird has continually a swing retiring place. Keep up the Chemical Food till the bird is in good feather, and let it have a liberal supply of such ripe fruit as it will eat.

What Birds are They?

"Kurmuba."—(1) Your assumption is quite right; the bird is the Giant or Long-tailed Weaver. It is a native of South and South-Western Africa. (2), This is the Common Grey Waxbill, and a native of Senegambia, and ranges from the River Niger, across to North-East and Equatorial Africa and Southwards to Lake Tanganyika. The St. Helena Waxbill is larger, has a longer tail, is a little darker in hue, and the scarlet or rose-coloured patch on the under surface, covers the whole abdomen, extending upwards to the lower breast. (3), Apparently a Firefinch; but I can hardly say from your details: it is probably Estrilda minima. However, it may be some near species. It is undoubtedly a Firefinch, but I will keep your query in mind, and if I see any reason to doubt the above identification will inform you in next issue. You have a handsome trio.

Gouldians Going Light.

E. M. G.—I should say the old birds are leaving them to look after themselves before they are well able to do so. Keep up the boiled seed, but note that such soon goes sour (it only keeps fresh one day); also put about a dozen drops of Parrish's Chemical Food in it. If they will eat the following it will materially help you to save them: crumble some plain biscuit, take a teaspoonful of Mellin's Food, and add sufficient boiling milk to make it just sloppy. You could also with advantage make the drinking-water the colour of pale port wine with the chemical food. You must watch they do not become constipated; at the first signs of this give them half-a-teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in a tablespoonful of water. But if you can get them to take the milk sop there will be no danger of constipation and I think you will save the birds. It may be possible the parent birds are not robust, but you can do nothing more than above. In any case I should not permit them to nest again this year.

Treatment for a Cardinal.

F. C. T.—Canary and millet seeds, with a little hemp and a few sunflower seeds occasionally; they should also have a little of some good soft food mixture, ripe fruit, and one or two meal-worms, or other insects daily. This species has a wide range and is common in Southern Brazil, Argentina and Bolivia. It is a hardy and sprightly species and with its handsome plumage is a general favourite. No, they do not often attempt to breed and when they do so, even if young are hatched out, they seldom rear them, but throw them out when a few days old, and go to nest again. However, there have been occasional successes, and if you get your birds to hatch out, you will have to keep up a constant supply of live insect food and supply it often, say every couple of hours, such things as genties, live ants' cocoons, earwigs, smooth caterpillars, beetles, mealworms, wasp-grub, etc. If they could have an aviary to themselves, containing growing shrubs and bushes, the prospects of success would be much brighter and the task of keeping them going with live food not so heavy.

Alexandrine Parrakeets.

F. Dover.—You have a true pair of Alexandrine Parrakeets, which stand a reasonable chance of breeding in your aviary. They have powerful beaks, and it would be a wise precaution to cover your woodwork on the outside (if the birds are already occupying the aviary), with wire netting; this would give you opportunity of repairing any outlet they might make, and prevent the possible loss of the birds. You cannot put up Parrakeets for breeding, say, as you do Budgerigars; ultimately they will breed, but you have to exercise patience, and wait sometimes two or three years before they do so. One of the causes of this is that Parrots and Parrakeets mature slowly, and are not freely adult till some such period has passed. Give a little maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds as extras to your present diet; when groundsel is frosted or unobtainable, a leaf of fresh lettuce is very suitable. I should also offer ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and nuts; all are wholesome, will help to vary the diet and keep the birds fit and contented. Pleased to note you find CAGE BIRDS interesting and useful; many thanks for your appreciative remarks.

A Grey Pulling Feathers.

A. Atkins.—I fear some Parrots pull their feathers out of pure cussedness, and with some individuals the habit is most certainly incurable. As your dietary appears to be fairly correct, I can only suggest your spraying the bird with quassia solution; this makes the plumage distasteful, and if you sprinkled the plumage with maize flour while it was damp, it would have the effect of cooling the skin, if heated, and finding the bird occupation in picking the flour out of its feathers instead of pulling them out; it is at any rate worth trying. Unfortunately such birds often break out again when apparently cured. The following seed mixture will be best—2 parts each Canary seed and oats and 1 part each dari, wheat, hemp, and sunflower seeds, also such ripe fruit as the bird will eat. The treatment must be persevered with as recovery in such cases is never rapid. Put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food for a month or longer.

Grey Parrot With Diarrhœa.

G. A. M.—Only give the weak brandy and water as an occasional stimulant, whenever the birds appear to want it. Am glad to note there is an improvement. Continue treatment already advised. The chemical food will act as a tonic, and also as a check to undue looseness. Most certainly the bird has improved, and the improvement will be more marked a week hence I think. It will do the bird good and not harm, if the chemical food is continued for a month or more. Do not give milk sop, except under conditions already stated, and it must not be continued for any lengthy period. Please report progress in a week.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Young Bird Show (A. Wilkins).—We should have been very pleased to reproduce the photograph you so kindly send us, but unfortunately it is not clear enough to print satisfactorily in CAGE BIRDS.

Cutting (D. Thomas).—Accept our thanks for your kindness.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (C. McK., Glasgow).—Chronic softening of liver, feverishness, inflammation of lungs, general malnutrition and feebleness of age.

Canary (H. S. Robson).—Septicæmia or blood-poisoning, general anæmic weakness. Some soft food and Parrish's Syrup of phosphates might have put it in a better condition of health.

Canary (W. Rae).—Diseased liver, general inflammation, or "chill." Hen.

Canary (A. Sinkins). — Softening of liver, apoplexy.

Bullfinch (Miss A Yalden).—Chronic softening of liver, and rupture of blood-vessels, which is apoplexy.

Canary (M. M. M.).—Inflammation of liver and spleen, ending with apoplexy, being the symptoms of "Bird Fever."

Canary Breeding for Beginners - - Post free, 7d.

By Claude St. John.

A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

A QUESTION FOR BIRD-CATCHERS

SIR,—Will one or other of your numerous readers kindly inform me through your valuable columns the best place to go to for catching Woodlarks, and the best feed to use for the purpose? I live in the Newton Abbot district, and should be very grateful for any information respecting these questions.

CONSTANT READER.

JUDGING THE SCOTCH FANCY CANARY.

SIR,—I have had a walk round the shows, and have watched the judging, and in my opinion the judges could take a great deal more out of the exhibits. If they are not handled properly, they don't show themselves. Some judges are afraid to waken up the bird. If it does not waken up of its own accord it is defeated. Later on a fancier who can "work the oracle" comes along and shows up the awards of the foreroon to the judges' disadvantage. In feeble hands the hardest up bird will "lean" over the perch. I may be told I am drawing the long bow, but I am not. The handling of the cage deftly makes all the difference in the world. Standing by, I overheard one exhibitor say: "I will never again give this show an entry nor contribute a special." Needless to say there was cause for his disgust. Our judges require to be sharpened up, and I pen this note to put them on their metal. While on this subject I would like, further, to record my disapproval of dealers being appointed as judges in the various sections; they are ruling Borders and wild birds. Do dealers know birds better than practical breeders? I hear a lot of grumbling on the points I have raised.

LISTENER.

THE RESIGNATION OF MR. H. LAMBERT BROWN.

An Appreciation of the L. and P.O.S. Secretary.

SIR,—I learn that Mr. H. Lambert Brown, the popular secretary of the L. and P.O.S. has just retired from that position. This news will be received with very great regret, not only by fanciers in all parts of London, but by bird-lovers throughout the country, as Mr. Lambert Brown, by virtue of his office, was one of the best-known men in hirdy circles. He has had a long and honorable connection with the L. and P.O.S., as secretary. The position he has vacated is indeed by no means a sinecure, but Mr. Brown always discharged his onerous duties with an urbanity, tact, and skill which were the admiration of all, and everybody always had a good word for his courtesy. He was particularly a good friend to novices, many of whom he has assisted by friendly advice to attain a prominent position in the Fancy. The writer once had ample proof of this. The occasion was the autumn show of the L. and P.O.S. at Camberwell, at which I was lucky enough to win the society's Novice Championship Diploma and Medal. On informing Mr. Brown of my good fortune, he became as enthusiastic as myself, and, although an entire stranger to me, he at once gripped my hand, pleasantly remarking: "May this be the forerunner of many more wins." I naturally felt elated at receiving congratulations from such a high quarter, and I attribute much of my subsequent success on the show bench to those encouraging words. It is in connection with the great annual shows at the Crystal Palace in co-operation with Mr. Ramsden that Mr. Brown will be best remembered, and it was very gratifying to him last year to secure the recent entry of 2,398—which was 235 in excess of the previous season's splendid total. He, however, was not content with this, and, as showing his whole heart was in the work, said he would not rest until a total of 3,000 had been reached. There is every reason to hope that this number will not only be obtained but will he exceeded at the next great reunion at Sydenham, inasmuch as it is to be a Jubilee Show. Thus, one cannot but lament the fact that Mr. Brown will not, in his secretarial capacity, see the realisation of his cherished ambition. Nevertheless, it is to be sincerely hoped that, if not at the helm of affairs, Mr. Brown will still give the L. and P.O.S. the benefit of his ripe business experience and acumen.

J. B. WATERMAN.

"STAMP FOR REPLY."

SIR,—I have been very much interested in the letters on the above subject. I may say that I have done a lot of exchanging through CAGE BIRDS, and I always enclose a stamped addressed envelope for reply, but I am sorry to say that some of the advertisers have not the courtesy to reply. Only the other week I answered an advertisement, but up to the time of writing I have had no answer. If your offer is not accepted, the least the advertiser can do is to reply when you enclose him a stamp to do so.

MANNERS

CARMARTHEN SHOW.

SIR,—Permit me to state that the advertisement which appeared in your last issue under the heading "Carmarthen Show, Nov. 5," does not apply to the show which is held annually in December under the auspices of the Carmarthen Agricultural Society. Our show has always been advertised as the "Carmarthen Show," and is, and has been, the "Carmarthen Show" for over 50 years. This explanation is necessary in view of enquiries which have been addressed to me by old supporters of our show. JACK FRANCIS, hon. sec.

A QUESTION OF PRECEDENCE.

SIR,—I see in CAGE BIRDS this week that you have given us a list with the shows and judges in, and I am glad to say this is a great improvement on other ideas, as we can follow the shows all through the season now without any trouble. But I am sorry to see you have made a mistake over the City of Bradford show. You have put H. Naylor down as the first judge, when it ought to be P. Mason the first, and H. Naylor the assistant. I hope you will see that it is put right in your next issue.

Windhill. P. MASON.

YORKSHIRE C.C. OF IRELAND.

SIR,—I was rather amused at Mr. Duigenan's letter in your issue of the 3rd inst. Certainly it must have touched his dignity when he even condescended to reply to one belonging to the so-called "syndicate." Evidently Mr. D. does not like good measure. If he had been aware of the resignations of Mr. Orr and myself, he would likely have stated that "eight members" would have counted as "one," leaving one over. Now, Mr. Orr and myself have been connected with the Fancy in Ireland for a number of years. I have never shown a bird of any kind at the Y.C.C. shows. Mr. Duigenan states I have. Now I leave it to your readers to decide whether they think it proper for Mr. D. to presume, because he does not know a man, that he is not new blood. In my opinion Mr. Duigenan's new blood would cease to be new blood at all, it would be so contaminated. Of course, it is immaterial to me whether Mr. D. doubts whether it was an act of generosity or otherwise which prompted the "six members" referred to in my last letter to resign. Nevertheless, the fact remains, it is the club's loss. From information to hand I am in a position to state that the annual election results had nothing at all to do with the resignations; and further, that most of those gentlemen are responsible for a motion on the club's minute book, which, if Mr. D. would kindly peruse, for his own edification, would elucidate matters. He then would clearly see that it is to his own interest to have those members where they are at present. Another point I would like to call Mr. Duigenan's attention to is, that Mr. Orr and myself were not co-opted on the committee of he Y.C.C. of Ireland—except it was at Jones' Road. No; we were duly elected by large majorities, which Mr. D. could have supplied him from the secretary, who, I understand, would be only too willing to grant him the required information. According to the official list of members sent out with the voting papers, there are over seventy members on the roll, and, in my opinion, a "syndicate" who succeeds in getting eight members on the committee—representing, as they do, more than half the total members—is not to be despised, even by Mr Duigenan. At this stage I would like to point out that, looking at the whole matter from a business standpoint, I fail to see what all this vindictiveness on the part of one official will lead to. I therefore appeal to the general management, in the best interests of all concerned, to either help Mr. Duigenan to put a better face on matters or repudiate his actions. Personally, I do not wish to trouble you further on the matter, as I am willing to let Mr. D. retain the honours of his own victory. DANIEL CARROLL.

SIR,—At a committee meeting held on October 5th, the following resolution was adopted: "That rule 14 be strictly enforced in future." For the benefit of those not acquainted with the rules, the following is a copy of same:—"XIV. No member shall be allowed to pass disparaging remarks concerning another member, or in any other way make himself offensive to his fellow members. Any complaint he may wish to make must be made in writing and sent to the Secretary with a deposit of 5s. If the committee consider the complaint frivolous the deposit may he forfeited. Any member breaking this rule may for a first offence be cautioned, and on a second complaint shall be suspended from membership by the committee."

W. J. BIRSE, hon. sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

A STRONG & HEALTHY FAMILY.

SIR,—After seeing the breeding results from many parts of the country in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, I thought it might interest you and your many readers to hear what good results I had from one pair of Yorkshires. This is my first year of breeding. The hen laid eighteen eggs in all. Fourteen of them hatched out, and the youngsters are at present all fine, healthy birds. Two eggs were clear, and two were broken. I followed the advice given by Mr. S. Drake, of Halifax, in his article on "Seeds and their Effects," which appeared in CAGE BIRDS on March 17th and 24th, 1906. I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS since November, 1905, and have got many valuable hints from it. I wish it every success in the future.

FRITZ.

THE USE OF SPECIALIST CLUBS.

Yorkshires in the North.

SIR,—It has often been asked of what use specialist clubs are. I think if fanciers will study the schedules of the northern societies this year, they will find the answer, especially if they compare this year's schedules with those of three or four years ago. Four years ago the usual number of classes provided for Yorkshires was two, this year we have five and six classes, and the Newcastle Society have found the response from exhibitors so great that they have this season extended the number of classes to ten, thus proving that with better and extended classification exhibitors can with more confidence send their birds, and entries are more numerous than is the case when there are fewer classes. This extended classification is the outcome of the formation of the Northern Yorkshire Canary Club, which grants its patronage to shows which give five classes for Yorkshires, and which is guaranteeing six classes for novices during the coming show season. Anyone who would like particulars may have the handbook of the club sent to them post free by applying to me at 121, St. George's Terrace, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

T. C. CRAWHALL, Hon. Sec.

WHEN IS A CLEAR NOT A CLEAR?

And What is a Tick?

SIR,—I wish to tell Mr. Reid that I never intended to cast any slur upon him or upon anyone else, and am sorry he took my remarks as such. I simply wrote as in a plain and common way of speaking. I also wish him to know that if I did not read his letter of September 19th just as he meant it, the words are there and I have not tried to alter them; but I would like to ask Mr. Reid where he got his facts from when he wrote: "Surely, when Mr. Woollard stated that he would handle every bird that came under him," as I have never stated any such thing, and should not handle a bird any more than was necessary. Mr. Reid seems to think it such a terrible thing to handle a bird. I will say this, that if anyone is nervous or afraid to handle a bird he had best leave it alone; but I don't think there are many judges so nervous as all that. As to the two well-known judges whom Mr. Reid says he could name that do not handle exhibits which come under them, all I can say is that if the schedule reads clear, then the birds are not judged properly, as it is impossible to tell if they are clear without handling them. As to young birds fainting more than old ones after being handled, I may say such a thing has not come under my notice; in fact, I don't remember one case. Of course, if a bird is sick, or anyone is clumsy at catching it so as to cause it to dash about the cage, that is another thing. Mr. Reid says there are some birds which, after being handled, will make practically no attempt to plume themselves, especially about the thighs where pluming is most essential in a bird that has been handled while the judge has been searching for a tick. How Mr. Reid must think birds are mauled about while being searched for the tick to me seems ridiculous, as I think a tick is easily to be found without the slightest injury to the bird, providing one's sight is alright. Now I think Mr. Reid must be a novice or he would know that if a bird is clean and alright, even if it is ruffled a bit through being handled, it can put itself right in a few seconds. If you watch a bird shake itself you will find that every feather goes into its place, or at least they all should do; it is then or never. Mr. Reid says a judge has no right to say what he would do; now, after what has been said, I think it far better for a judge to say what he would do beforehand rather than wrong class birds and "say what he would do" afterwards. Mr. Reid admits that birds with very dark underflue should be shown in the ticked classes; now what does Mr. Reid mean? Whether very little or very much, dark underflue is dark underflue, and you will most frequently find plenty of it above the thighs, and at or near the vent, the tail coverts, and under the wings which cannot be seen without the handling of the bird. Mr. Reid writes, "If Mr. Woollard has any great objections to clear and thigh-ticked birds competing together, I and many others would be very pleased to hear them." Now, Mr. Reid could not have read my letter of September 12th, or he would not need to ask this; but as Mr. Reid has shown us how he can back his opinion, I shall be pleased to show how I can back mine. My wishes are for the advancement of the Fancy, and I will ask, is it to the advancement or the retrogression of the Fancy for a bird that has reached perfection (namely, the clear) to be brought down on a level with a bird that has all this dark underflue? I say it is decidedly retrogressive, and all right-minded fanciers will agree with me. Mr. Reid dwells much upon thigh ticked birds being shown with clear birds and upon schedules reading clear or invisible ticks, arguing thence that these will do away with fraud. Now, if Mr. Reid is not prejudiced I will prove to him that this will not be so; but, on the other hand, the adoption of his suggestions will encourage fraud. A tick on a bird's thigh may not be noticed by most people, especially when the bird is in the breeding cage; but in a show cage, and under the close scrutiny of a judge, they would not have to turn round many times before the tick could be seen in most birds, even if only a few feathers (and a judge would be sure to look at them closely, because he would know that close scrutiny would be used by fanciers when the show was opened, especially by exhibitors that had not won). And what about your invisible ticks? They would then be wrong classed, and quite right too. But here is where the plucking could come in, because they would know that the judge not being permitted to handle them they could do practically just as they liked, without any fear of disqualification. A. WOOLLARD.

BETTER CLASSIFICATION WANTED FOR BORDER FANCIES.

SIR,—Upon reading the current issue of our valuable weekly, CAGE BIRDS, I observe the same old complaints are commencing regarding the classification for the "little wee gem," the Border. As representative of the Swansea and District C.B.S., I beg to inform Messrs. "Altrincham" and Wardlesworth that our society did their utmost last year to satisfy the complainants, even to the extent of altering the classification; with the result that our classes were an entire financial failure! Seeing that our society offered as prizes both cups and medals, and also, as a further inducement, altered their classes to suit competitors, I thought it very unfair that we did not obtain sufficient support from exhibitors to make our show a success. Seeing that the shows in South Wales are chiefly got up and supported by working men, we are apt to be disheartened by continually paying for losses. I am, however, very pleased to inform Messrs. "Altrincham" and Wardlesworth that notwithstanding previous failures, our society offers at our show on November 11th and 12th, even a better classification, especially in the Border section, where we intend giving nine classes. Providing exhibitors of the Border Fancy give us sufficient support, I will do my utmost to further extend the classification.

ALF HITCHINGS, Sec.

SIR,—I am pleased to see the correspondence regarding the better classification of Borders, and as one who has taken an interest in Borders for some years, I strongly advise committees to give them a full classification, as from my own experience, I have found that the classes always filled. I am glad to see that several of the London societies are giving their classes now (as it is not so long ago that we had to exhibit them down south in the A.O.V. class), and I hope that the Border men will give them their utmost support, and so encourage them to extend their classification in future. R. BROWNLIE.

SIR,—In your last week's issue there appeared two letters under above heading. As they both emanate from the same town, and both make the same complaint there is no need to take them separately. It would be interesting to know the real reason for the cry of the writers. The English and Welsh Border Club is giving its patronage to no less than 15 shows this year (see card enclosed), each of the shows giving full classification to include all varieties of Borders. I venture to think these shows will provide quite enough competition for one season. The writers know this quite well, and this is why I ask for the real reason. I know there are birds in Altrincham fit to compete for their lives, and in a chat I had a little while ago, they assured me they were more than anxious to meet the best. No, Messrs. "Altrincham" and Wardlesworth, the cry of no classification won't do! Let us have the real reason, please?

S. HADWIN.

(This correspondence appears to have been seized upon by astute secretaries to get in a nice little advertisement for their particular shows—and we don't blame them. But obviously we cannot find space to print all their letters. We don't mind saying, however, that Border Fancy men are advised to get schedules of the Cambridge C.B.S., Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S., Metropolitan C.B.A., Morecambe, Morriston and Dis. C.B.S., Welsh National, and Dulwich O.S. shows, and see the good things provided for them.—EDITOR.)

YORKSHIRE CANARIES.

HOW TO BREED, MANAGE AND EXHIBIT.

By H. W. BATTYE (President of the Yorkshire Union.) Illustrated by Messrs. H. Norman and A. J. Simpson.

Absolutely the very best Handbook that has ever been put on the market. It deals fully with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties, and should be in the hands of every breeder of the Bird of Grace and Beauty. It contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat it both health and disease.

WILL MULES BREED?

SIR,—I was very pleased to see the reply from the gentleman signing himself "Mongrel" re the question, "Will Mules Breed?" and beg to thank him for same; also for the address asked for, and the invitation to go and see the birds, but on principle I cannot accept the invitation, as I rather like to keep Sunday sacred to Him who has given us all the beautiful birds. As to his first question, I need not deal with that, as you, Mr. Editor, have answered it. As to the second question, what class he would enter them in? Now, Sir, I did not ask him to enter them in any class at all. I simply asked him to "trot them out," not for competition, but so as to let us have a look at them. Still, assuming for argument's sake, the birds are what "Mongrel" holds them to be, i.e., a cross between a Goldfinch Mule and Canary hen, these, although having two distinct names (I am speaking of the first cross here) are yet of the same tribe (Finch). Although the young were paired back to a Canary hen, and young were produced, these are still a cross between two Finches, and the same as any other cross between two Finches, would be called "Hybrids." If they had been a cross between a Goldfinch Canary Mule and, say, a hen Bullfinch, then that would have been a poser. In my opinion this last mixture would have to be called "tri-bred," being a cross between three finches of different species (which, in my opinion, it is impossible to produce, as also the cross between Mule and Canary). I am not going to advise "Mongrel" to enter them in any particular class, but to take them to the show at Avonbridge, not for competition, when it will cost him nothing, and there get the opinion of the judge and others. It would be a good attraction for the show. I would now like to ask (in addition to the question as to the colour of the cock and hen Canaries) if there were any youngsters reared from the eggs which the hen was incubating when the cock Canary died, also the colour of same? I hope "Mongrel" will oblige with these particulars, and I thank him in anticipation.

T. R. WALLACE.

SIR,—Hybrid birds will breed, increase, and multiply; then why not Mules? But all the same, I have always found that when a hen Canary has been paired to a Mule and hatches young, the owner, or some familiar friend, has changed the eggs from some other Canary, and the young hatched do not take after the supposed male parent. I have had cock Mules pair with hen Canaries, and I have had hen Finch Hybrids pair with various British Finches and lay eggs, but never have I had such an egg hatched.

A WORKING MAN'S SUCCESS WITH ROLLER CANARIES.

SIR,—I have kept the German Roller for some years, but only for his song. Two years ago I thought I would try my hand at breeding Germans, and accordingly bought two hens, one of which turned out a good one. From this hen I bred five hens and four cocks. This year I have bred from these another five hens and two cocks, and I think I have done well, all things considered. I am a collier and away from home 12 hours every day, during which time no one enters the room. I have thirty-eight youngsters, all in the pink of condition, bringing up my total from seven last year to 45 this. I have only lost one after getting them on the sticks, thanks to the "milk sop dodge" which I learned from CAGE BIRDS; in fact, I have gained all my information from your splendid journal, of which I have been a reader from the first.

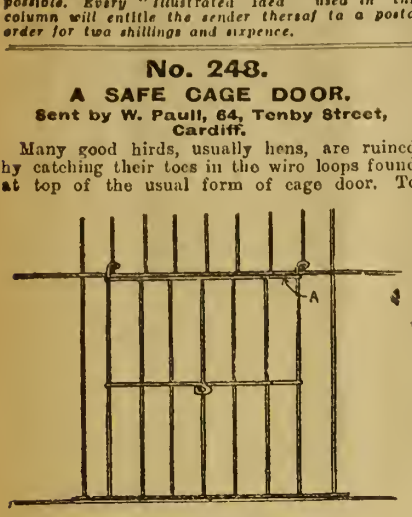
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

prevent this, solder a wire across the door top as shown at A. Then cut off all the loops except the two outside ones. These should he squeezed with pliers until the loop is too small to admit a too. .Doors thus altered will fall with their own weight only, and thus save the loss of birds by a door heing inadvertently left open.—Wm. A SEED MILL.

Sent by J. Clarke, 2, Stoneville Terrace, Hartslands Road, Sevenoaks.

I am sending a sketch of a hemp or other seed mill, which I thought would he of use to fanciers. I am using the mill myself with great success, and it only cost me one penny, and that was for the penny grater tacked on the roller. It can he made to crack the shell of the hemp, or to crush the hemp fine, by adjusting the hlocks up or down hy screws back and front. On the wedge-shaped hlocks are pieces of perforated zinc. It is 7 ins. high and 3 ins. wide, while the drawer at hottom is 3 ins. deep. I have a lid to fit at the top. The side view shows the handle, also the slot in which the screw works that serves to adjust the zinc-faced wood hlocks, hetween which and the roller the seed is crushed. The diagrams will, I think, explain the working, and the machine is quite easy to construct hy any fancier handy with simple tools.—J. Clarke.

SINGING CONTESTS.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Usual week-end contest held on Oct. 4th, when 20 birds sang.—1 Lauriman, 2 Sissons, and 3 Farrar. Judges, Messrs. Jackson and Jennings.—W. Dean, Secretary.

Usual week-end contest held on October 11th, when 16 birds sang. 1st, Sissons; 2nd and 3rd divided between Sissons and Lauriman. Judges, Messrs. Jackson and Dean.—W. Dean, Sec.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at King's Head, Shannon-street, on October 11th, when 25 birds sang. Judge, Mr. H. Allen. Timekeeper, Mr. W. Hawkridge. 1st and 2nd, Hardcastle; 3rd shared by Clegg and Stead.—Wilson Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Please state, writes Mr. Wm. Duke, hon. secretary of the South Shields C.B.S., that Mr. H. W. Battye will judge the open Canary classes, and Mr. E. Brunskill the members' Canary and selling classes; while Mr. Shepherd judges the British and Foreign Bird classes.

Fanciers who are gardeners—if only to the extent of a few flowers in the "back yard"—will do well to get a copy of the price-list of seeds and plants sold hy Messrs. James Carter and Co., "the King's seedsmen," of 237, High Holborn, London, W.C. Their seeds have a reputation of many years' standing as the choicest quality only, while the price is extremely moderate. Hints on planting are given in the price-list, and special care is taken in the selection of plants that will thrive in town gardens.

"Cage Birds" Prizes for the Amateurs of Yorkshire.

The cash prizes wo aro this season offering to tho amateurs in the ranks of the Yorkshire Union, will all bo paid over to the winners at tho end of the show season. We are influenced to this decision by a letter received from tho secretary of tho Y.U., on consulting him regarding tho point. Mr. Dean writes: "I should suggest that all tho 'Amateur Prizes' bo paid at tho end of tho season. My reason is, that as no competitors may win moro than 10s., but when they have won this will still go on marking for tho yearly prizes, therefore tho various secretaries will not know who aro really entitled to the said prizes, nnd mistakes will ho liablo to occur. If paid out at tho end, however, all can ho properly balanced."

Echoes from Edinboro'.

That tho Edinboro' Combined Show on Saturday last was a gigantic success; that the management aro well pleased; that everybody was pleased—visitors and exhibitors alike; that tho judges had a tight job; that their decisions gavo general satisfaction; that there were one or two growlers; that they are always to be met with; that they had nothing to growl about; that several exhibits changed hands; that McMillan's Buff Pied hen was generally voted the cup winner; that the judges voted otherwise; that Stewart, of Glasgow, is its likely owner; that it will take some heating; that the first and special Siskin Mulo the judge thought the hest he had seen for some years; that he was right; that Whitefield was out for the first time since his illness; that everybody was glad to see him well again; that he seemed happy with his luck on Saturday; that he had every reason to he; that the Paisley first, Yellow Ticked cock, has gone to Partick; that we wish Fulton, its new owner, good luck with it; that it is sure to improve; that secretaries Thompson and Camphell know their duties; that they deserve much credit for their conduct of the show; that Kenneth McLellan was in splendid form.—Scotch Fancy.

THE SHOWS.

EDINBURGH (Combined).

The Edinburgh Western and Edinburgh O.S. combined show (being the sixty-first of the Ediuburgh, and the twenty-third of the Edinburgh Western) was held in the Artillery Hall, Grindlay-street, on October 10th. Office Bearers—Edinburgh Western: President, Mr. T. Ballantine; vice-president, Mr. W. Morris; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Johu P. Thomson. Edinhurgh: President, Mr. G. C. T. Hope; vice-president, Mr. J. Hardie; secretary and treasurer, Mr. W. Camphell; committee of management, Messrs. W. Ailan and Dalgleish; auditors, Messrs. J. Hardie and W. Allan. The judges were: Edinburgh, for Scotch Fancy and Belgians, Messrs. J. Fulton, D. Black, J. Smith, T. Arnot; for Nor. Mules and Brit. Birds, Mr. P. Pettigrew; and for the Edinburgh Western, for Scotch Fancy and Belgiaus, Messrs. A. Paterson, P. McDougal, J. Watson, R. Wright; for Borders and Mules, Mr. J. Goodfellow; for Nor. and Mules, Mr. J. F. Dewar. The entries were not quite up to high-water mark, compared with those of former years, in the Scotch Fancy sections, but Borders and Nor. were much in advance. But what was lacking in numbers in the Scotch Fancy section was amply made up for in the latter sections. It would be almost impossible to find a hall better suited for show purposes, it being entirely free from draught, and well lighted—an ideal hall in every respect. The birds were staged to perfection, and the whole arrangements of the show reflects the greatest credit on the two secretaries, Messrs. J. P. Thomson and Mr. Walter Campbell, and their able band of assistants, everything being in the best of order, and the staging of the exhibits simply perfect. In the Edinburgh Association, in the Scotch Fancy, Belgian, Norwich, Mules, and British birds, the uumber of entries showed an increase of 43, compared with last year. Some of the classes did not, in point of entries, quite equal those of last year, but the quality here was excellent. Edin.-West, in these sections showed a slight decrease in numbers, which were also amply made up for in the Norwich, Border, etc., sections; also by a welcome revival in the Belgian section. The competition in the Border and Norwich sections, all over, was very keen; the judges had great difficulty in arriving at their decisions. The Scotch Fancies were rather disappointing; there were a few outstanding birds staged in these, all over. Many of the birds were not quite through the moult, which accounted for several good birds being "shelved"; when finished, no doubt many of them will yet be in front. The winner of the blue ribbon was Mr. Wm. Whitefield's Yell. Pied cock, being 1st, with four specials to its credit, winner of club silver cup, Hyde's special (teapot), gold badge, dinner cruet, and special for best yell cock. The best opposite sex and runner-up was Mr. P. Blair's yell. hen., being 1st with two specials. Both these birds are of excellent merit, and almost perfect examples of what is aimed at for an ideal Scotch Fancy. In the Border classes the cup presented by Councillor J. T. R. Wilson, was won by Mr. E. Denholme, with a lovely Border, staged in perfect condition. There was a fine array of special prizes, there being no less than 87 specials for competition of a high-class description. The judges' awards were well received. There was a large turn-out of visitors and fanciers—ladies being much in evidence. The prizes were presented by Kenneth McLennan, Esq., after a few racy remarks.

EXETER.

A capital show was that of the Exeter and Devon Society, which was held in the Royal Public Rooms, Exeter, on October 14th. The entries came up well, and the quality was splendid. Norwich were very hot stuff, and, judging by the birds staged here, Western breeders have had a real good breeding season. In each of the classes some birds of splendid type and quality were shown, and the competition was very close. Exeter has long had a reputation for turning out good Crests, and the mantle of some of the older breeders, such as Browning and Bailey, has descended upon some of the younger men, and in Messrs. Evans Bros. the Ever Faithful City has breeders of whom she may well be proud. Yorkshires made a nice display, and birds of shape and style were well to the fore. Mules, although good, were hardly equal to some displays which we have seen in the West in the days of Sleep and Doel, yet they were birds of which their owners may well be proud. British came up well, and contained a choice assortment. The management was splendid, the committee working most strenuously to do all they possibly could for the comfort of the exhibits. Those who worked hard and well were Messrs. Brooks, Mahrs, Botterill, Besley, Coulman, Jackson, James, Patten, Reynolds, Roberts, Riley, Saunders, Smith, Stiling, and Sclater. Mr. T. Heath judged in his usual painstaking manner, and there was general satisfaction expressed with his awards.

HAYLE.

Very few counties can compare for natural beauty of scenery with the county of Cornwall, and no body of fanciers anywhere can excel the Cornishmen in the heartiness and enthusiasm with which they pursue their hobby. Hayle show, on October 14th and 15th was in every way a success. It was held in the excellent Public Hall, from the windows of which you can see stretching away in the distance the rolling waves of the Atlantic. Glorious sunshine favoured the fixture, and a splendid entry of about 450 exhibits, with quality of the highest order, delighted the committee and pleased visitors. There were close upon 100 Norwich Plainheads in the open section, and the Plymouth bird-rooms were well represented, so that the light in this section was very keen. Yorkshires numbered 56, in four classes, and Cinnamons 28 in two classes—just fancy this, in far away Cornwall. Mules and Hybrids were good, and the British and Foreign came up splendidly. The members' and local sections were as keenly contested as the open, and it was a delight to see the splendid spirit of sportsmanship displayed by losers as well as winners. H.H. Trevithick, Esq., is president of the Association, and amongst the patrons are most of the influential people of the district. Mr. W. Paull is an ideal general secretary, and what he does not know about the management of a show of this kind is not worth knowing. Mr. L. Cock, secretary of the cage bird department, is also an admirable official, and he was most assiduous in his attentions to the arrangements, and Messrs. J. Kemp, T. Rowe, R. T. Hancock, J. Hampton, J. Angwin, J. Hooper, A. W. Thompson, R. Hollow, W. Symons, T. Jordan, W. Glanville, and L. C. Mabbott, one and all, as committeemen, did their best to make everything run smoothly. Never could there be more efficient management or better stewarding. The light was excellent, and judging was got through in good time. At the luncheon some excellent speeches were made, one and all being loud in their praises of the success of the cage bird section, of the excellent entry, and the high class quality. Mr. George Gardner judged the open classes, and Mr. C. Toy the members', local and selling, and their awards seemed very favourably received.

Mr. Gardner's Classes.

NOR. YELL (14): 1, spl, Gill and Pethick, short, chubby body, buff texture of feather, lovely colour, cleanly moulded head, neck and chest, good colour, wings well braced, a good one; 2, Strout, bonny hird, scarcely so stout as winner, but a gem for colour; 3, Spillman, variegated, lovely type, quality and colour, feathers like silk, blaze of colour; 4, Kilby, smart, rich colour, grand quality; vhc, Coad; hc, Symons; c, Veale. BUFF (14): 1, spl, Gill and Pethick, bonny type, AI wings, head, chest, and wing covering, lovely under-colour; 2, Veale, fine shape and quality, nicely frosted, not quite the under-colour of winner; 3, Yates, close on the heels of 2nd, rich colour and quality; 4, Spillman, good quality, nice shape of body, scarcely so good in head; vbc, hc, Coad; c, Sherman. TKD., ETC., BUFF (14): 1, spl, Rickard, ticked on wing and one leg, chubby, bold chest, head and neck, nice short legs, wings and tail, good quality; 2, Symons, capped bird, might have been wound up a bit tighter, but a blaze of under-colour for a buff, and nice type and quality; 3, Gill and Pethick, feathered like a Java, rich under-colour, not quite so chubby as those above it; 4, Pope, ticked bird of high quality of feather, not quite so well cleaned off at chest and waist as leaders; vhc, Garland; hc, Ferrall; c, Rickard. NOR. HENS (21), grand class, from which two sets of winners might have been selected; 1, spl, Gill and Pethick, yellow, teeming with quality, rare type, great depth of colour, neat head, neck, and wing carriage; 2, Tottle, ticked yellow, full of colour, grand tone of feather, not quite so nice in head as winner, but little in it; 3, Strout, buff, chubby and good quality of feather, but not yet wound up to concert pitch; 4, White, ticked yellow, typical and full of quality, falls a trifle in neck; vhc, Pearce; hc, Coad; c, Veale. YELL. UNFLIG. (16): 1, spl, Gill and Pethick, blaze of colour, right to the root of the beak, splendid feather, nice wing bracing and short legs and tail, a gem; 2, 4, Spillman ,both ticks, splendid leather, former excelling in most respects; 3, Kilby, a twister for body, lovely buff, flowing feather, just tips its wings across, which kept it back; vhc, Phillips; hc, Cheshire; c, Farrell. BUFF (18): 1, spl, Rickard, bouncer, short, thick-set, bonny in all ways; 2, Spillman, grizzled on back, fine quality of feather, richly mealed, rattling shape; 3, Gill and Pethick, closest feathered bird of the three, but not quite the substance just yet, will want some stopping later; 4, Garland, variegated, of correct shape and quality; vhc, Tottle; hc, Coad; c, Budge. YORKS. YELL. (14): 1, spl, Ellis, ticked, stands well, nicely drawn, good quality; 2, Rodda, very stylish, fine-drawn bird, gets into good position, full of quality; 3, Mitchell, variegated, trifle stronger, but nice feather; 4, Mitchell, not quite so stylish, but good; vhc, Pope; hc, Thomas; c, Wills. BUFF (12): 1, spl, Harris, tight as wax in feather, very bloomy, poses well, but a little stronger than some; 2, Veale, clear, also of nice action and quality; 3, Wills; 4, Ellis, two neat and good quality Yorkies; vhc, Rodda; hc, Oakey; c, Rodda. UNFLIG. (15): 1, spl, 4, Ellis, former fine position, quality and colour, goes to work well; 2, Rodda, huff, rare style, but not quite so nicely filled in at back as one likes; 3, Veale, good mover, and full of quality; vhc, Mitchell; hc, Thomas; c, Harris. HENS (15): 1, spl, Pope, sweet Yorkie, well moulded, straight and slim, neat all through; 2, Boak, ticked yellow, very full of life, shows up beautifully, best of quality; 3, Harris, grizzled on head, stands well, just a shade stouter—three grand hens, these; 4, Oakey, fine position, dips a wee bit in the neck; vhc, Pencombe; hc, Mitchell; c, Thomas. CINN. YELL. (13): 1, spl, Pope, soundest in colour, fine head, well hurnished, chubby; 2, 3, Medlin, leader purest in colour, both good shape; 4, Ellis; vhc, Burton; hc, Pearce; c, King. BUFF (15): 1, spl, Medlin, hold, good coloured hird, only needs a little more time to put the gloss on; 2, Pope, barely so pure in colour, perhaps better head; 3, King, nice, pure colour, unflighted, will go up as the days go by; 4, White, good colour, not body enough; vhc, Pope; c, Sherman. CRESTS (8): 1, spl, King, variegated, nicely centred, droops well, good tons of feather to crest, wins; 2, Symons, nearly green, with long frontal crest, which, however, narrows at the back; 3, Lawry and Lee, deep, veiny Crest, inclined to be square at back, good body; 4, Belman, neat but a little hairy; vhc, Hobbs; hc, Belleman; c, Menadin. C.B. (8): 1, 2, 3, Menadin, grand, big-skulled green hen leading, nice cushion, wide, leafy feather, with rich vein, a smart team; 4, King, grand hird for length of turn back; vhc, Lawry and Lee; hc, Symons; c, Hobbs. PAIRS A.V. BATTERSEA.

The third annual open show of the Battersea and Dist. C.B.A. was held at the Town Hall on October 14th and 15th. The officials are to be congratulated upon such a splendid exhibition, despite the early date, which no doubt handicapped many of the exhibitors, the birds not being quite through the moult yet. The total entries numbered about 570. Competition was very keen, especially in the Yorkshire section, where there were 24 entries. The exhibits were all well arranged, and the light was good. No words would be too strong in praise of Mr. Easterling, the hon. secretary, who worked hard, and was well backed by a good working committee. The prize-money was paid out on the first night of the show, this being a unique feature of this particular fixture. Mr. A. Patrick judged the Yorkshires, and Mr. J. Robson the remainder.

Hybrids, British and Foreign Birds.

GOLDFINCH (8), a strong class for quality: 1, Maxwell, one of the largest Finches, nice square cut blaze, beautiful rich tanning, good huttons and shape, the Clapham winner; 2, Wickham, good condition and colour, nice tanning; 3, Smith, lovely polish blaze, not quite so large; vhc, Botting, some thought might have changed places with 2 and 3; hc, Adamthwaite; c, Allen. LINNET (21), a strong class this: 1, Pankhurst, very large, trifle fat, which spoils its shape, rich colour; 2, Priest, nicely marked, trifle open in the breast, in good condition, very steady; 3, Frostick, nice, steady Linnet, somewhat pale in breast colour yet; vhc, Maxwell, one of the largest in class, good in body markings, shape and colour; hc, Carter; c, Lyons. REDPOLL, ETC. (15): 1, Botting, nice size, beautifully marked, good shape and colour, much admired; 2, Francis, Siskin, fine, large bird, nice cap, beautifully pencilled on thighs; 3, Easterling, lovely jonque Redpoll, full of colour, nice bib; 4, Francis, Twite, deeper colour than winner, distinctly marked, not so steady, which no doubt put it back; vhc, c, Cutting, good Redpoll and a Twite; hc, Page, Twite. A.O.S. HARDBILL: 1, Withers, Hawfinch, nicely cut bib, not over large perhaps but steady, and in nice colour; 2, Francis, Bullfinch, grand colour, breast very rich, and just a trifle unsteady; 3, ——, nice, yellow Bunting, good size, nice colour, in forward condition, excellent head markings; 4, Wickham, Chaffinch, very bright in colour, steady, fine condition, on the small side, the Clapham winner; vhc, Carter, Bramble, in fairly good order, will improve; hc, Sandy, yellow Bunting, well staged; c, Askew. BLACKBIRD, ETC.: 1, Maxwell, Blackbird, lovely crocus beak and eye, dense colour all over, and steady, staged to perfection; 2, Francis, Missel Thrush, very bold, steady as a rock, nicely spotted; 3, Frostick, Song Thrush, nicely spotted on the sides, perhaps not quite so even on the breast as some, very steady; vbc, Askew, Misel Thrush; hc, Dell, good song Thrush; c, Askew, nice Starling. A.O.S. SOFT BILL LARGE: 1, Cook, one of the best Great Grey Shrikes seen this season, a topper for size and pureness of white on breast, lovely eye marks, in the pink of condition, a credit to its owner; 2, Maxwell, Wryneck, Clapham winner, nice deep colour all over, well marked on back and breast, steady, and in perfect feather; 3, Cox, Redwing, lovely colour and markings all over, very steady, not one of the largest, still a nice one; vhc, Dewhurst, greater spotted Woodpecker. The other awards could not be found. SMALL: 1, 2, Maxwell, yellow Wagtail, almost too well known to need describing, one of the largest and best coloured "wags" out, fed to perfection, wins hands down, 2, Black Redstart, very good size, good dense colour, beautiful bird; 3, Francis, Nightingale, very steady, showing that nice russet colour on back so greatly admired in a 'gale; vhc, Quantrell, Tree Pipit; hc, Fulbrook, Pied Flycatcher, both greatly admired. FOR. LARGE (4): 1, Smith and Son, sulphur-breasted Toucan, very steady, in good condition, greatly admired by the ladies present, someone asked could this bird talk, having such a large beak? 2, Cook, Brazilian Green Jay, lovely colour, greatly admired, very tame, handsome bird, staged to perfection; 3, Dewhurst, lovely pair of Coleys, mouselike birds these, and very interesting by the way they hang up to top of cage, in nice condition; vhc, Maxwell, black-throated Lorrikeet, very rare. A.O.S. FOR. SMALL: 1, 2, Maxwell, 1, Black-backed Tanager, a living picture, wants to be seen to be believed, in shimmering condition, perfect gem, shown in faultless style; 2, Masked-faced Lovebird, very rare, only recently known to the scientists, rarest bird in the show; 3, Watts, Queen Whydah, very nice condition, perfect tail, faultlessly staged; vhc, c, Hodgin, Paradise Whydah and Cordon Bleus; hc, Frost, same species. HYB. DARK: 1, vhc, Askham, 1, Canary Bullfinch hen, nice size and colour for a hen, in good condition; 2, Cutting, Redpoll Greenfinch, quietly claimed at catalogue price, an interesting hybrid, very nice bird, cheap; 3, hc, Lamb, 3, Redpoll Greenfinch, not quite up in colour yet, quill feathers will improve yet; hc, very interesting exhibit, said to be bred from a cock Canary and hen Siskin, a Cinnamon coloured Canary-Siskin; 4, Gunnell, Goldfinch-Bullfinch, trifle small, only a young bird, yet so will improve and do better another year. LIGHT MULE: 1, 2, Lamb, 1, very nice four-pointed Buff, nice condition, will improve in colour; 2, yell. six-pointed, very hot colour, fed nicely; 3, Withers, Buff, four-pointed Goldfinch Canary, nice quality and size; vhc, Askham, fine Canary Bullfinch, cock; c, Goodall, nice Goldfinch Canary

SOWERBY BRIDGE AND DIS. C.B.S.

The members held their third monthly show at Headquarters, "Bull's Head" Hotel, on October 10th, when close on 60 birds were staged. Some very good birds were shown; but most are not yet through the moult. Mr. Driver, Robertshaw, placed the cards, and his awards gave entire satisfaction. The specials were carried off by Messrs. J. Robertshaw, Taylor and Haigh, J. W. Priestly, C. Pickles, T. Sunderland and E. Sutcliffe:—

BROUGHTY FERRY.

Fonrth Annual Show, held on Oct. 10. It was well up to that of former years. The entries, taken throughout, were good, while the quality of the exhibits was in many cases better than has been seen here on previous occasions. Scotch Fancies were well represented by North country breeders, some very outstanding specimens being on view. The classes were all well filled, and in many cases competition was of a very close nature. The Buff piebald-cock of Mr. Ramsay's came in for a great deal of admiration. The yellow green hen of Mr. Low's was another bird of exceptional merit. Mr. Carmylie succeeded in capturing the local cup for best young bird, with a very stylish buff-green hen, and his win was also very popular. Messrs. Strachan (Arbroath) and Allison (Aberdeen) judged this variety, and their awards were well received Norwich, Crests, and Crest-breds were forward in large numbers, and contained some high-class specimens. In the Crest section the pick of the lot was a grand hen shown by Mr. Wallace. The Young Bird Cup was secured by Mr. Reid, Falkland, who now seems to hold a master hand in this variety in Fifeshire. The Plainheads were extra, some splendid specimens being shown. Cinnamons, though not many, were good, the winner being a Jonque, full of pencil work, and having plenty of colour and substance. These varieties were judged by Mr. Allan Chalmers (Kirkintilloch), and his awards were received with every satisfaction. Borders followed, and were forward in good numbers, being represented by many well-known fanciers of the midget of the Canary tribe. The seven classes contained 106 entries in all, which is good for so early in the season, and the committee desired us to thank the exhibitors through "their paper, C.B." The pick of the section turned up in the grand yellow cock bird shown by the veteran, Mr H. Bennet. This bird won the Young Bird Cup, which now becomes, we believe, the property of the exhibitor, who also succeeded in capturing the first in the yellow ben class. Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside) judged these classes, and took great pains in selecting the winners, and very little was left for anyone to find fault with. Mules, British and Foreign birds followed, and here a very representative crowd faced the judge. The winner in the Hybrid class was a Greenie-Bullie, shown by Mr. Sharp. Canary Mules drew a better entry, and were headed by a Var. Linnet shown by Mr. Bruce. Britishers were a grand lot. The Bullfinch class, for the time of the year was extra good. Goldfinches were a rather medium lot; in fact, below the average of what we generally see here. Linnets were strong, and were skilfully handled. Foreign birds were good, the small class winner a grand Whydah, while the first in the large class was won by a Toucan, in fine order; this bird is rather an uncommon exhibit at Scotch shows, and was greatly admired by lovers of tropical varieties. Mr P. McQuiston judged these varieties, and pleased the majority in so doing. The hall is an ideal one, and the show was again skilfully conducted by Mr. Robt. Whitton, the capable secretary, who had everything in apple-pie order, being ably assisted by his willing stewards, among whom we noticed Mr. Curtis doing two men's share. The show was well patronised by fanciers, among whom we noticed Messrs. Chapman (Newcastle), Reid (Falkland), Craig, Bowden, Grewar, Gerrard (Forfar). The fonrth show should prove financially to be one of the best ever held in Broughty Ferry.

LOANHEAD.

Loanhead and Dist. C.B.S. held their second annual exhibition and competition in the Masonic Hall on October 10th. The president is Mr. A. Jardine, and the hon. secretary Mr. W. B. Smart. This society is well deserving of praise for the manner in which the fanciers and membera connected with it have been at the trouble to work it up, and this gathering of a splendid collection of cage birds went far to make them hope for still further improvement in the future. The Masonic Hall is an ideal one for such an occasion, being very compact and well lighted from the top. Exhibits were comfortably screened round with the best quality of white paper, which gave the hall a neat and clean appearance. Taking into consideration that this society only has as yet about 20 members, it speaks well for each one individually that each came so well to the show bench with so good a muster. Entries totalled about 260, which included Scotch and Border Fancies, Norwich, British, and Mules. We again came across most of the leading winners at Dalkeith show held a week earlier. In the Scotch Fancy section a valuable cup, given hy the ex-Baillie Frichael, was competed for, and was secured this time by Mr. J. Noble with a very neat yellow cock hird, while his 1st yellow hen was runner-up. Not a few of the visitors preferred her to the cup winner, but, at the same time, it was generally admitted she was not so quick in coming to hand and drawing when required as was the cock bird, for he is very nervy and quick. In the Norwich section yellows were again to the fore. Mr. A. Gardner again secured gold medal for best Norwich with his clear yellow cock bird, the Dalkeith winner. Borders were in full force and looking very bright and perky. The Thomson firm seem to be unheatable at these gatherings just now, and they again secnred gold medal for best Border with a lovely buff foul cock in faultless feather. Mules and British classes had a choice variety shown in them, hut not a few of the birds could have done with a little more time to finish up in moult. We were given to understand that the challenge cup given to the society by the ex-Baille Frichael goes to a different section of this show each season, so that it will make fanciers over all sections anxious to try the best they can to produce the quality to win it. Mr. W. Thornton (Edinburgh) acted as Scotch Fancy judge. Mr. James Winter, secretary of the Scottish National Show, had the handling of the Norwich, Mules and British, while Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso) officiated in the Border classes. Their awards were very well received.

The Scotch and Border Fancies.

SCOT. FCY. YELL. CK. (4): 1, cup, J. Noble, very nervy, good reach, a splendid exhibit; 2, spl, Carson, grand top end, well set back on legs, not out of moult yet; 3, Small, very fair one, neatly turned, good nerve; 4, D. Noble, smaller and not quite so good in top, but a grand bird. HEN (3): 1, spl, J. Noble, neat in head, good back and rib, a fine exhibit, greatly admired; 2, D. BARNSLEY C.B.S.

Members' show held Oct. 10th, at Clarence Hotel. Mr. Rapson judged. There was only a poor entry, the general explanation being that birds were not ready. The principal point-winners were: R. Jackson, 22; Crossland Bros., 22; F. Race, 20; and E. Carlisle 16 points in Yorkshires. E. Thorp had 18 points in the British Bird class. One pleasing feature was the presentation by Mr. Bairstow to E. Thorpe, of the silver medal which he promised for the best Norwich exhibited at our Nest Feather show in July.

CL. YELL. YORKS: 1, Carlisle; 2, Crossland Bros; 3, Race; vhc and hc, Jackson. BUFF: J. Jackson. TKD., ETC., YELL.: 1 and 2, Crossland; 3, Race. BUFF: 1, Crossland Bros. TKD., ETC., YELL. GREAT HORTON.

The Great Horton Good Intent held their annual show in the Church Schools, Southfield Lane, on October 10th. It is a very good room, with a nice light. Entries turned up well, 383 in twenty-one classes. The Novice Yorkshire Fanciers had six classes provided for them, in which they made 164 entries, and this section in itself made a grand show. Mr. Harry Schofield, the hon. sec., is a very able and obliging official, while Mr. T. L. Whiteley, the assistant secretary, lent valuable aid. Mr. R. Halliday and Mr. Holden were also in attendance all day, and looked after the birds in the best possible style, while they had them very nicely staged. The show was crowded with visitors during the afternoon. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) was the judge.

The winners of specials in open classes were: Messrs. H. H. Towers, Ogden Bros., L. Watmuff, R. Sutcliffe and Son, L. Briggs, W. H. Shackleton, F. Armstrong. In the Novice Section Messrs. F. Hammond, J. H. Greenwood, A. Hiles, and A. Gill topped the bill, after a hard struggle. Messrs. J. W. Webb, J. Farrar, W. Beaumont won the three selling class specials. Winners of members' specials were: Messrs. Hartley, H. Hill, A. Holden, G. R. Rushworth, H. Schofield, A. Firth, R. Halliday and J. Kay. CAGE BIRDS prizes for the amateurs of Yorkshire, Mr. H. H. Towers secured the 6/- for most points; Mr. F. Sluter 4/- for second most points.

ROCHESTER.

"A truly grand success; the best show all round we have ever had." Such was the verdict of the officials—and they ought to know—concerning Rochester, etc., Fanciers' Society's Show, held on October 8th and 9th in the New Corn Exchange of the historical Kentish city, the fame of which has been spread far and wide by the Pickwickian annals. The fine hall, which on many an occasion has vibrated with the tones of the voice of the great tenor Maas, resounded with the music of the birds as the autumn sunshine danced and glinted through the plentifully arranged windows. The room in which exhibits were staged was an ideal one, having plenty of room and light, and no need for crowding. There were 1,100 entries all told in all the sections, 200 of which were cage birds. The hon. secretary, Mr. W. Hurdman, gripped the reins like a veteran, notwithstanding that the work was comparatively new to him. He met with the able and experienced assistance of the committee, who one and all are fanciers. The chairman, Mr. J. Giles, was indefatigable, while the cage bird stewards, Messrs. H. W. Casemore (vice-chairman), G. A. Acland, J. Morris, and W. J. Thompson, spared no effort to have everything in apple-pie order. We would make one suggestion to the committee for another year, and that is, that they have the cage birds arranged in tiers at one part of the hall instead of placing them upon the other live stock pens so high up as to somewhat mar the opportunities of a good view. The Norwich came up well, and the quality was of a very high standard, considering it was a £5 limit show. The Softbills were A1, for it was here the winner of the members' cup for best in show was found, it being a most magnificent Missel Thrush, shown by Mr. Acland in the very pink of feather and very steady. The runner-up for the cup, and a very close runner-up, too, was Mr. H. W. Casemore, with a beautiful Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

The Canary and Hybrid Classes.

NOR. CL. YELL. (7): 2, and Hyde's special, Marshall, rich colour, beautiful tone of feather, neat head, in fine bloom; 3, Gibbs, even hotter in colour, scarcely so bonny and chubby, but lovely silky feather; 4, Taylor, very good type, if not quite so compact in wing carriage; vhc, Rippon; hc, Thompson; c, Stewart. BUFF (8): 2, Gibbs, bird of true Norwich type, perhaps not so big as some would liked to have seen, but has soft rich tone of feather, with bright pure undercolour, daintily frosted; 3, Taylor, very similar build, but just loses in finish, i.e., in undercolour; 4, Marshall, fine quality, close up; vhc, Whent; hc, Acland; c, Lancaster. TKD., ETC., YELL. (7): A grand lot for quality; 2, Taylor, ticked one wing, rare front, neat head, close and compact, beautiful back and rump, and being an unflighted bird will improve yet; 3, Gibbs, looks like the old ticked yellow, splendid shape, but trifle open and loose in wings—like boots, we all wear out as the years go by; 4, Berry and Mitchell, variegated, of grand silky feather, that would be an acquisition to any breeder's stud; vhc, Taylor; hc, Acland. BUFF (8): 2, Rippon, ticked, beautiful undercolour, fine texture of feather, very sweet; 3, Taylor, very similar, but hardly so rich in tone; 4, Whent, romping variegated, frosty feather, thick-set, grand colour producer; vhc, Chandler; hc, Taylor; c, Berry and Mitchell. UNFLI. (19): 1, spl, best Norwich, 2, Taylor, 1st ticked hull, grand chest, neck and head, well packed all through, bold and rich; 2nd, also a good one, hardly so full all over; 3, Marshall, ticked yellow of rich colour and fine feather, will make a still better bird by and bye; 4, Farrow, very neat and nice buff; ex. 4, Berry and Mitchell; vhc, Taylor; hc, Marshall; c, Ainsworth. NON-FED (6): 2, 4; Holmes, former a yellow of nice glossy feather and good shape; 3, Woodcock, another really good yellow, larger, but not so compact in feather nor so good in wing carriage; vhc, Woodcock; hc, Richardson; c, Whiffen. YORKS., CL. YELL. CK. (3): 2, Reeve, stands well, nice tail, neat head; 4, Shiers, not quite so smart and full of go. TKD., ETC., CK. BRIGHTON F. AND F.A.

The October monthly show was held at the North-road Lecture Hall, on October 1st, when there was a splendid show of cage birds. Many grand specimens were strong candidates for the special prizes given by the association, which were eventually won by Messrs. Gravatt and Dandridge with birds that will take some beating at future shows. The judge was Mr. W. Swaysland.

YORKS.: 1, 3, Dandridge; 2, Pearson. NOR.: 1, Mrs. Eyles; 2, 3, Dandridge. CREST OR C.B.: 1, Gravatt; 2, 3, Dean. A.O.V. CAN.: 1, 2, 3, Dandridge.—A. ALLFREY, Hon. Assist. Sec.

LIVERPOOL BIRD BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION.

The most successful night show of Canaries held within recent years took place at the Oldham Hall on October 8th, when over 40 birds were staged. Mr. Hales judged, giving every satisfaction. The principal winners were Messrs. Handley, Metcalf, Isaac, Nimmo, J. Royden, T. Royden, Thompson, Dickinson, Richardson, Rushton, and J. Lloyd. After the birds were judged, a judging competition took place, several of the prominent members entering same. The winner of the 1st prize was Mr. Gregory, who is a novice; 2nd, C. Hillmen; and 3rd, J. Walker. Winners of silver medal for Yorkshire, Mr. Metcalf; for best Greens (Norwich), Mr. Isaac.—A. THOMPSON, Sec.

PAISLEY.

The Paisley and Dis. O.A. held their sixteenth annual exhibition of Scotch Fancy Canaries on October 10, in the George A. Clark North Minor Hall. Hitherto the show has been held on the first Saturday in October; the change to the second Saturday is an advantage, a week in the moulting of Scotch Fancies making a difference. The entries showed an increase in number of 30, compared with that of last year. In style the quality all through was distinctly in advance, but the size has slightly receded; few giants are now to be met with. The difficulty to secure a combination of size and style is as great as ever. The undersize of Belgians used for crossing has much to do with the problem. Considerable interest was manifested towards the close of the judging; a referee had to be called in, namely, to decide on the best young bird. The Cup and Gold Badge were ultimately won by Mr. Kennedy, jun., of Paisley, with a Buff Green cock of exceptional merit. The Silver Medal and Gold Badge were won by Mr. Montgomery, of Corkerhill, with an outstanding Buff hen, which was at a disadvantage, eight feathers having been knocked out of the tail. With some of the visitors she was the first favourite. Mr. Kennedy, the esteemed president, who is a keen and practical Fancier, was in evidence in the work of the day, his kindly word inspiring all who came into contact with him. The secretary and treasurer, Mr. Kelly, is an ideal office-bearer, being active and methodical. He gets through a large amount of business with ease, and to his efforts, backed by those of an able and efficient committee, is due the success which attended the event. The judges, Messrs. Holden (Muirkirk), Muirhead (Bonnybridge), Prentice (Clydebank), and Smith (Howwood), are to be congratulated upon the awards, which, generally speaking, were well received. In the afternoon, exhibitors and visitors were present in large numbers, and from their remarks it is evident that the display was much appreciated.

WATFORD.

A record entry greeted the judges at the fourth show of the Watford and Dist. C.B.S. on October 8th and 9th, and the quality was quite equal to that seen at shows of greater pretensions and more extended history. The figures were 480, which read 100 better than those of 1907. Norwich were an exceptionally good lot, birds of rare type and beauty of feather being seen. The pick of the bunch were Mr. Jeff's handsome yellow, which won Ramsden's colour feed special, and Mr. Goodall's buff cock and yellow hen, two charming birds, with lovely silkiness of feather. Messrs. Tams and Son headed a grand class of unflighted birds with one of the real Bullfinch type. Crests and Crest-breds although few were good, the winners in each class being possessed of wonderful feather properties. Some very typical and stylish Yorkshires put in an appearance, but the majority of them had not tightened up, and it is quite possible a week or fortnight will make a lot of difference in the placings. A Yorkshire does not show its quality until it has quite finished its moult. Mr. Mountain sent a rare stylish yellow from Yorkshire, and Mr. H. Davis put down a lovely pair of hens. Hybrids were "hot stuff," and the much-discussed "Chaffinch-Canary" was the sensation of the section. Finches were not big classes, but the quality was magnificent, the birds showing far more bloom and colour than is usual at this season of the year. The soft bills were a quality lot indeed, and Mr. Frostick's task of placing them was not one to be envied. Mr. R. J. Howe's Waxwing is one of the very best, the tipping of its flights and tail being exquisitely beautiful. Mr. Watts staged a splendid team of Foreigners, in a manner which deserved the highest credit. The whole of the arrangements were admirably carried out by the committee, under the direction of Mr. J. Goodall as show manager. Mr. W. Quantrell made an efficient and ever-courteous secretary, and the most efficient band of stewards included the following ardent fanciers:—Messrs. R. J. Pretty, H. B. and R. J. Withers, A. G. Frost, W. Buckingham, W. Shirley, A. T. Sears, J. Goodall, and R. J. Watts. CAGE BIRDS stall was most tastefully arranged, and presided over by Miss Goodall and Miss Watts. The Judges were Messrs. C. A. House (Canaries and Mules) and J. Frostick (British and Foreign), and on the whole their awards seemed to give complete satisfaction.

The Open Canary Classes.

NOR. CL. YELL. (9): 1, spl, and Ramsden's spl, vhc, Jeffs, beautifully finished right through, and hard to find fault with, rare depth and width of chest, very even in colour, and as tight as wax; 2, Silk, very fine, silky feathered bird, of rich, even colour, built on more slender lines; 3, hc, Hodder, lovely type and carriage, sound, rich colour, not so fit; c, Kilby. BUFF (10): 1, Goodall, magnificent body, rare finish of feather, level colour, wants just a bit more fulness of head to make him unbeatable; 2, Wright, charming bird, not so large, but grand shape, hot in colour, but not so well polished, a bargain at catalogue price, 20s.; 3, Silk, fine, bold bird, of rare shape, nice even colour; vhc, Welch; hc, c, Spall. VARIEG. (6): 1, spl, Lees, lovely saddle marked yellow, very chubby, sound and bright in colour, nice, close-fitting coat; 2, Hodder, eye, head, and wing marked yellow, chubby, magnificent colour and feather; 3, Gilbert, eye and wing buff, nice shaped body, beautiful colour and feather; vhc, Jeffs; hc, Shirley; c, Moss. UNFLI. (15): 1, Tams and Son, very short, compact, ticked-headed buff, grand chest and shoulders, capital head, very short and tight in feather, grand wings and tail; 2, Spall, very high quality yellow, grand, rich colour, nice shape, but awfully wild; 3, hc, Webb, again a charming yellow, full of colour and quality, rare type, but wild and had damaged his tail; vhc, Lewin; c, Howe. HEN (12): 1, spl, Goodall, rare bodied yellow, very even in colour, nice silky, compact feather, fails just a wee bit in head; 2, Wright, wing marked buff, beautifully mealed, grand shape, not tightened up yet, like his yellow cock, only entered at 20s.; 3, Jeffs, very high quality yellow, beautiful colour and shape; vhc, spl, best vhc in Norwich section, Silk, lovely little lady, full of quality and capital shape, hardly ready; hc, Lees; c, Hodder. CREST (9): 1, Jones and Crest, very heavily feathered green, neatly centred, very evenly radiated, dense and well drooped; 2, King, nice, veiny crest, well drooped, lovely quality, but not quite so dense or long as winner; 3, Bloomfield and Rose, heavily feathered green, not so neat in centre, well drooped, good quality; vhc, hc, Mrs. Pearse; c, Fellows. C.B. (6): 1, King, very dense feathered, big headed variegated, of good shape; 2, 3, Mrs. Pearse, two beautiful quality variegateds, plenty of long, broad feather; vhc, Jones and Crest; hc, c, Fellows. YORKS. YELL. (10): 1, spl, Mountain, long, slim, stylish bird, capital head and back, neat tail; 2, Harris, much hotter in colour, but not fined down in feather, grand shape and style; 3, Alford, very smart and racy, lovely feather, not down in tail; vhc, Easterling; hc, Tringham; c, Forse. BUFF (7): 1, Tringham, beautifully feathered, very stylish, and well moulded; 2, Burton, very nicely cut away, grand style, very hot in colour, hardly so neat in head; 3, Rigg, beautiful feather and style, nice shape, hardly ready; vhc, Silk; hc, Easterling; c, Baffin. VARIEG. (6): 1, Burton, slim, well tapered, Cinnamon-marked, grand quality of feather, rare style, good colour; 2, Webb, buff Cinnamon-marked, very nice shape and style, grand feather; 3, Tringham, variegated, and a good one, too, when he has been washed; vhc, Davis; hc, Mountain. UNFLI. (16): 1, spl, Askew, grand, slim, well-built yellow, good head, back, wings and tail, neat and smart right through; 2, vhc, Beeney, the two best feathered birds in the class, superb wing and tail carriage, but just a shade short in tail; 3, Harris, a rattling good shaped yellow, rather wild; hc, Davis; c, Forse. HEN (10): 1, 2, spl, Davis, head and cheek marked buff, and a yellow, two beautiful birds, the former excels in shape and feather, whilst the latter is best in style, but loses in formation of skull; 3, Harris, lovely quality buff, grand carriage, just a shade stout in waist; vhc, Burton; hc, c, Easterling. A.O.V. (7): 1, Goodall, very smart Lancashire Plainhead, capital shape and substance, nice carriage; 2, Silk, rare feathered yellow Cinnamon, rich colour and nice shape; 3, Bott, very pretty little Border Fancy.

Hybrids, British and Foreign Birds.

HYBRIDS—LIGHT CAN. (7): 1, Andrews, the disputed "Canary-Chaffinch," in grand feather; 2, 3, Lees, well-known grizzle winged yellow Goldie, and unevenly marked Linnet, both in rare form; vhc, Gilbert, ticked necked buff, wonderful colour and quality, on the small side; hc, Tams and Son; c, Goodall. DARK (7): 1, Coffey, very rich-coloured, high quality jonque Linnet, in rare form; 2, Askew, grandly feathered, nice coloured Greenfinch; 3, Fullbrook, very large, well marked shapely buff Linnet, but lacks colour; vhc, Andrews, another good Greenie Mule; hc, Caines; c, Lees. BRIT. HYBRID (7): 1, Coffey, Chaffinch-Bramblefinch, magnificent colour and condition, not a feather out of place, grandly marked and showing unmistakable signs of parentage; 2, 3, Ward, well-known Redpoll-Bullfinch, and Linnet Bullfinch, "Unique II.," both wonderful colour, former seemed a bit stuck in feather or would have won; vhc, Fullbrook, very handsome Gold-Bullfinch; hc, Hingley; c, Andrews.

BRIT. GOLDFINCH (7): 1, Tams and Son, very bright and rich in face, nice tanning, capital bars and buttons, in fine feather; 2, 3, Prior, two charming Finches, fine faces, beautifully marked, and grandly feathered, but lacking the colour of winner at present, will turn the tables later on; vhc, White; hc, Goodall; c, Quantrell. BULLFINCH (7): 1, White, beautifully-coloured, grand cap, nice, soft-hued back, good bars and tail, in rare fettle; 2, Lee, a bigger bird, of beautiful shape and colour, lovely cap; 3, Francis, very rich and clear in breast, clean-cut cap, nice back and bars; vhc, Barrett; hc, Howe; c, Withers Bros. HEN (6): 1, Howe, large, splendid shape and feather, grandly marked; 2, c, Withers Bros., a bird of lovely colour and marking, hardly so large; 3, hc, Quantrell, good shape and marking, not tightened up in feather; vhc, Swain. GREENIE (10): 1, Pickles, grand shape and size, beautifully feathered, and full of colour; 2, Coffey, rather more depth of colour, grand shape, hardly so fine in feather; 3, Howe, fine, big, bold bird, with plenty of colour, not yet fit; vhc, Goodall; hc, Osborn; c, Livingstone. CHAFFINCH (12): 1, Gerry and Davis, very nice one, beautifully rich in colour, grandly feathered, and well marked; 2, Hurst, hardly so forward in colour, but grandly marked and magnificent feather, a very big, shapely bird, will need beating later on; 3, Sears, in splendid fettle, nice shape, size and colour; vhc, c, Withers Bros; hc, Francis. BRAMBLE (16): 1, Coffey, fine, big, bold bird, grandly feathered and spangled; 2, Gilbert, richer in colour, grand feather and marking, not so large; 3, Chick, very well spangled and nice in colour, but we could not get him to stand; vhc, Carter, Hingley; hc, Livingstone, Prior; c, Darvill, Howe. LINNET (13): 1, Tams and Son, beautiful colour, nicely marked, grand feather and very steady; 2, Morrison, very nice shape, larger, but just beaten in colour and marking; 3, c, Pickles, very fine shape, feather and colour, we liked the commended bird as well as any in class, but needs its beak trimming; vhc, Quantrell; hc, Goodall. SISKIN, ETC. (13): 1, White, very rich coloured, grandly feathered Siskin, neatly marked and steady; 2, Quantrell, sound bright-coloured Twite, beautifully marked, and shows well; 3, Bancroft, charming little Redpoll, beautiful colour and marking; vhc, Francis; hc, Cutting; c, Morrison. GREAT HARWOOD.

Great Harwood and Dist. C.B.A. held their ninth annual open show on Oct. 9th and 10th, in the Unity Club, a grand room for the purpose. The Norwich classes were fairly well filled, and contained some exceptionally good specimens, birds of grand type and quality being seen in every class. The unflighted yellow and the young yellow hen of Mr. J. Trengove's, are a couple of gems, and will want some stopping in any company, as also will Mr. Huggins' Unflighted Buff, Mr. Godley's Yellow and Buff, Mr. Evans' "Sign of the Cross," and Messrs. Mercer and Evans' Buff hens. We were sorry to see such a poor collection (as regards numbers) of Yorkshires, not one class containing sufficient entries to entitle it to full prize money; but what was short in numbers was made up for in quality, not a bad one being staged. The Yorkshiremen were competing for the Y.C.C. Cup, and they sent some "clinkers" to represent them. Messrs. Bailey and Swanger staged a couple of hens practically faultless, and secured both firsts. Mr. E. Radley's noted unflighted of last season has moulted out into a storming clear yellow, and should continue his winning career. Mr. Shackleton's ticked Buff is another real gem, and a very hard nut to crack. Cinnamons made a fine show, some grand teams being staged by Messrs. Godley, Dormer, Wilson, and Bentley. The Amateur or Novice Classes contained some rare birds, Messrs. Waddington and Fowler cleverly capturing the prize in the Norwich section, Mr. Anderson in the Yorkshire class, and Messrs. W. E. Seed and Hill in the Cinnamon section. Mr. Godley's noted Crest-bred headed the A.O.V. class in fine style, closely followed by the splendid Goldfinch-Bullfinch of Messrs. Tams and Son. Mr. A. Hirst's beautiful Yellow Bunting won in the British Hardbill class, and Mr. Walsh's champion Wryneck the Softbill class. The Special prize-winners were as follows: Hyde's, Mr. A. Bentley; Sandiford's Cup, Mr. W. Sherrington; Ramsden's Medal, Messrs. Bailey and Swanger; Mr. Wainman's, Messrs. Bailey and Swanger; and Cottier's, Messrs. T. Seed, Godley, Marsh, and Fowler. Mr. G. Waddington is an enthusiastic young fancier, and makes an ideal secretary, having everything in first-class order, and being extremely obliging and courteous to all. He was well supported by Mr. J. Marsh, assistant secretary, Mr. R. Welling, treasurer, Mr. F. Sharpe, and an energetic committee. Messrs. W. Vardy and W. Mundell judged, and their awards were well received.

Mr. Mundell's Classes.

BRIMINGTON.

The cage-bird section of this show held on October 7th attracted a very fair number of entries. There were many visitors to this part of the exhibition. The secretary, Mr. J. H. Baker, had the arrangements all well in hand, and is deserving of great praise for his successful management. Mr. P. L. Gladwin judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction:—

The Belgian Canary: Its Breeding and Management.

By R. J. BAKER.

I have often wondered why it is so comparatively little is written about this interesting and elegant variety of Canary. In my opinion much good has been done in the way of increasing the number of breeders and exhibitors of this lovely variety by the Fancy Press. What has brought the Norwich Canaries, the stylish Yorkshires, and the jaunty little Borders to their present height of popularity? I venture to reply, nothing but the manner in which these varieties are constantly kept before fanciers' eyes in our Fancy papers. There you will see article after article giving the experience and advice of some of the most successful breeders and exhibitors of the varieties I have mentioned.

Now, I do not doubt for one moment but that some writers about the Belgian Canary have done more to kill the interest in it, rather than to popularise the breed, by their mistaken ideas concerning its management, breeding, and other matters. I also think that if Belgians were depicted on paper as they are, and not as some people fancy them to be, we should not have them called the names they often are at the present time. I well remember, not long ago, a sketch of a Belgian appearing belonging to one of the most successful Belgian fanciers of the present time. Now, I have seen this very same bird on the show bench with "first prize" affixed to its cage, and I honestly say that the shape and position of the bird I saw in the flesh, and the sketch depicting it on paper, were about as much alike as daylight is to dark.

I will endeavour to place before my readers as plainly as possible the way in which I manage my Belgians. In the first place any would-be Belgian fancier will need to have plenty of patience; I am sure there is not any variety of Canary so sensitive, and once a Belgian is frightened, it will take a lot of gentle handling and training to steady it again. Some birds you will find more timid than others, and these will need your best attention. I would say, run them into a show cage at every opportunity you have, and you will find this is the only possible way to get them over their timidness; talk to them, try the training stick in the bottom of the cage, but if they won't stand this, don't fluster them; by perseverance you will find eventually they will become quite willing to respond to the training stick as often as you please.

But I must firmly impress on your minds never to handle a bird in a show cage roughly, or speak harshly to it; neither on any account whatever, should you attempt to lift a cage containing a bird by the top, as this upsets them more than anything else I can think of.

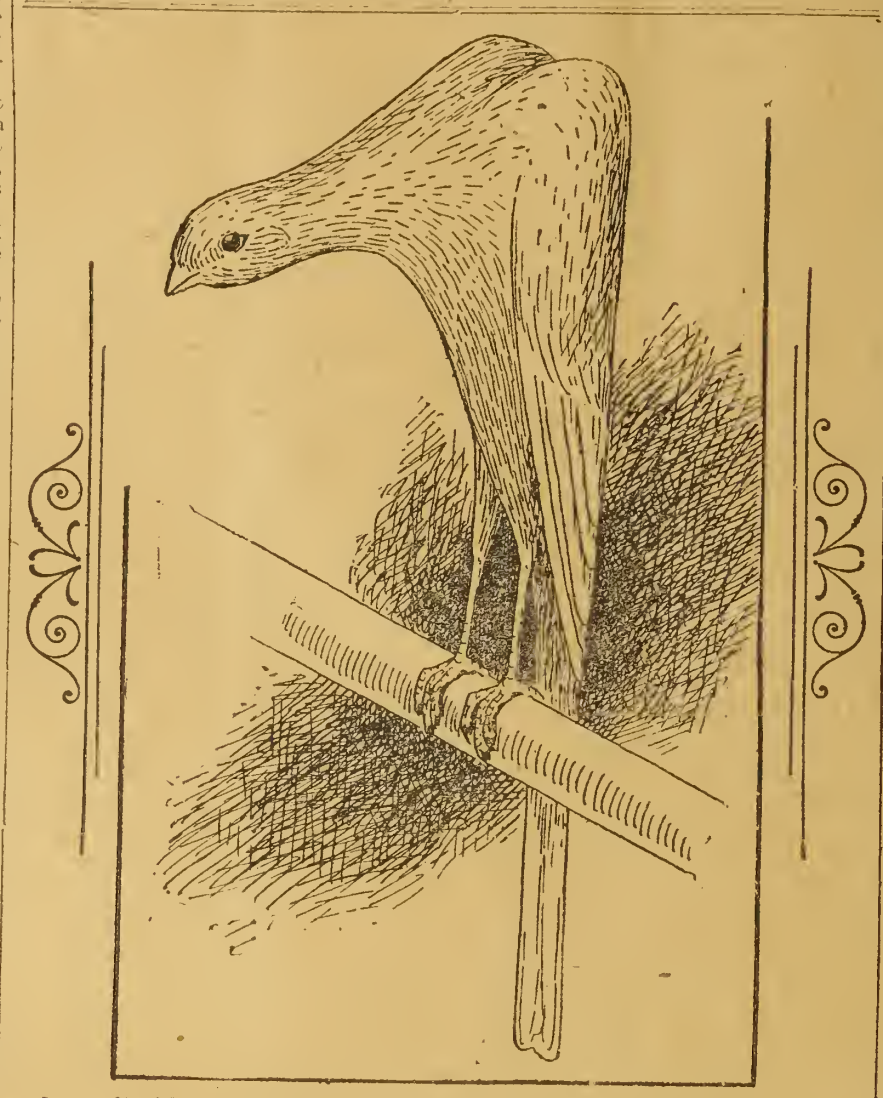
The Training Process.

The training of Belgians does not occupy the great amount of time some people imagine; if it did so I am afraid some birds would not see the training or show cage very often, as I know several of the most successful breeders and exhibitors of Belgians are working men, with only a limited amount of time to devote to their hobby.

Now the training of these birds should commence as soon as they leave the parent birds. When about five or six weeks old, let one be run into a show cage. Perhaps it will be a little awkward at first, but get them up on the top perch, and as a rule they don't give much trouble, as they seem to know what they have got to do. Place the bird about on a level with your eye, and insert the training stick carefully. You will then soon see the legs begin to become rigid, the back and tail becoming stiffer, and in fact it will seem to strain every nerve to do more than it really can.

This is the Belgian all over, and let me say that a Belgian, to be successful on the show bench, must be very free, that is, quick and ready to show when required. But do not let me be misunderstood. Birds that fail in this point of showing quickly make fine stock birds, providing they are bred from good parents, and, of course, you do not get a winner in every nest in this variety, any more than in any other variety of Canary.

What About the Temperature?



I am now going to touch on a point that has always been argued against the keeping of Belgians; that is, whether the rooms in which they live require to be kept at a certain temperature by the aid of artificial heat. Now I am writing what I have experienced when I say that I find Belgians require no artificial heat whatever. At the time of writing I see the thermometer is at 36 degrees in my birdroom which is situated north-west, and I can hear my birds singing and chirping as much as to say, "This is the weather we like; it freshens us up, after the muggy weather we have been having." Surely no-one thinks that birds require artificial heat when they are like this?

Run your birds in flights, and at night throw an old rug or blanket over them, and with good plain feeding you will find they will not do amiss.

I believe that artificial heat is the cause of many hens going wrong during the early part of the breeding season, and not alone those of one variety. They are got into such a forward condition, that before it is really suitable weather, the hen shows signs of nesting, so that the owner cannot wait any longer and in goes the cock bird, and in a short while an egg appears. Then there is much rubbing of hands. But wait; the hen lays two or three more eggs, then commences to sit, and the owner seems as if he weighs two stone heavier as he goes on his way, counting how many weeks he will be ahead of his mates. One morning, however, he is brought to his bearings; Jack Frost has been busy while he has slept, and he finds the hen—on the eggs, no doubt, but—, fit to put in the dustbin. Or perhaps the owner is a little more fortunate, and is able to save the hen; but she is left suffering from a violent chill and is rendered useless for the remainder of the season.

This sort of thing, this giving of artificial heat, I firmly believe, causes many hens to go wrong. Therefore, my advice is to do without artificial heat, and your birds will be the better.

A TALK ABOUT GREENFINCHES, TWITES AND BULLFINCHES.

A paper by Mrs. Morrison read before the City & Suburban A.C.B. in their recent Essay Competition.

I should like to tell you of some of my British birds, and their doings. First, I should like to talk of my Greenfinches—a species that is far more entertaining than is generally supposed.

Greenies as Scavengers.

I have had both wild-caught and Canary-reared Greenies, and although I have a weakness for the latter, they being more easily tamed, I must admit they are more nervous than well-trained fresh-caught birds. One can teach Greenies to do practically anything he wishes a bird to do. With a little patience I can get mine to walk in and out of their cages, and up and down the table, and act as scavengers to the rest of the birdy family. They will run from one end of the table to the other to pick up a seed or scrap of green food that other birds may have dropped from their cages.

They seem to thrive on Canary, teazle, and rape seeds, a little hemp and a liberal supply of sunflower seeds, of which they are very fond, and frequently a little green food, completing their staple diet.

In the Breeding Season.

They take very kindly to hen Canaries for mates in the breeding season. They feed the hen and help to build the nests. One of my Greenfinches will even take his turn in sitting on the nest when allowed; but I think it safer, I may say, to remove him when the hen begins to sit in earnest. Then he will begin a series of shrieks that go through your head, and add greatly to your troubles, if it is necessary to keep your birds as quiet as possible.

But I find he will immediately desist on finding a new mate introduced. She must, however, be as near the colour of the original one as possible, or my gentleman will have nothing to do with her; but if the lady suits, he will at once begin the same operations as before.

The young ones of this cross are merry little things, and much more entertaining than young Canaries. Leaving the nest when 14 days old, they soon begin to look after themselves, and after this age seem more hardy than the Canaries.

Next I will tell you of my Twites. I think them such cheery little chaps. They keep all the rest of the feathered family lively. No bird is allowed to sulk or mope when Mr. Twite is anywhere about. He hops around, twittering merrily all day long.

Twites soon steady down, but never seem to get too sedate. They also seem to take kindly to the hen Canaries in the breeding season.

Like other Britishers, of course, they won't all mate up, but when they do take to a hen Canary, they seem very devoted. They will help pull the nesting material about, but do not, however, assist much in the building operations, preferring to dance round and round the edge of the nest-pan, pulling little bits out.

After the hen has her full number of eggs I remove Mr. Twite, but he will still continue to feed the hen through the wires of the partition when she comes off the nest; but after a few days he begins to call for a new mate, and I found him not at all particular whether his new lady-love was dark or fair. The offspring of the Twite-Canary, like those of the Greenfinch-Canary, seem hardy little scraps. Once out of the nest, which is also on the 14th day, they never look at the nest again, and pop around the cage after the hen like hounds after a fox, determined not to be outdone in the matter of grub.

They are very lively at first, but soon settle down and quickly learn to do for themselves, and take to the bath naturally.

About Bully Hens.

I should like, in conclusion, to say a few words about my Bully hens. My quiet, sedate Madame Bullfinches are real friends. They quickly take to cage life, especially if they are run with other birds.

But I would advise you never to put two hen Bullies together. I have done so more than once, and could hardly see "which was which," for the feathers that were flying about. They will take kindly to most mates in the breeding season, but (and I have tried a good many) luck in the way of fertile eggs is very scarce.

They will build in practically any kind of nesting box, or pan, but never seem to finish a nest, although you provide them with everything that a Bully can wish for. They will sometimes lay in the nest, but more often on the ground or floor of the cage. Therefore sawdust instead of sand must be used during the nesting time, but at other times I find they keep their feet (or claws) cleaner with sand. This latter seems to be a general trouble with Bullfinch hens. They are not fond of bathing, and soon get their toe-nails clogged up.

They lay any amount of eggs during the season, usually from five to seven each clutch. They will nest in cages even in the first year of their cage life if they have settled down, but they dislike being disturbed once they have started, preferring the same mate through the season.

I have kept birds since I was six years old, and can only say I get more fond of them the more species I go in for. I think the society a great help, as it encourages one to try and keep their birds always up to the mark.

The Housing and Treatment of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

White-Throated Song-Sparrow (Zonotrichia albicollis).—This species is a little larger than the well-known Chingolo Song-Sparrow. It has a longer tail than pilcata, and is much more graceful in form. It is a greyish-brown bird, striated with blackish-brown; lores, yellowish; throat pure white.

The hen may readily be distinguished by her greyish throat, greyish yellow lores, and thickly speckled breast. Habitat: Eastern United States.

Little Sparrow Bunting (Spizella pusilla).—An uncommon species, of which I have only seen skins. Its plumage is of a warm-brown colour thickly striated with darker brown; the under surface is much paler, and the striations less distinct. Beak, legs and feet are pinkish.

A well-known and experienced aviculturist who has kept this species, records the sexes as being similar in plumage. Habitat: North America. All the Song-Sparrows subsist largely upon seed diet, but should also have access to some good insectile mixture, and be given regularly a few live insects.

Pileated Finch (Coryphospingus pileatus).—This is a quietly-clad bird, but is yet handsome in appearance; and when the fine carmine crest is erected, it is almost brilliant. As to song, there is but little of it, and this is rather scrappy; nevertheless, it is a favourite with most aviculturists. Its confiding demeanour and its quiet, chaste beauty secures it a place in most collections. It has been bred in an English aviary.

Adult Male: Upper surface dark slaty-grey, paler on the lower back and rump. wing coverts and quills, greyish-brown; tail black; top of head, black; with a longitudinal band of shining carmine extending from the forehead to the nape (this band it has the power to raise in the form of a crest); sides of head, pale greyish; eyelids, white; throat, breast and sides of body, grey; remainder of under-surface white; upper mandible greyish-fawn colour; lower mandible, whitish-fawn; legs and feet, brownish-flesh colour.

Adult female: Slightly smaller, and her plumage generally browner than that of the male; her crest also is brown. Diet: Seed, insectile mixture, fruit, and live insects. Habitat: Brazil, Venezuela and Columbia.

Red-Crested Finch (Coryphospingus cristatus.—A beautiful, rare and also quarrelsome species, which should not be associated with birds smaller or weaker than itself, and even with larger species it will need watching, or a tragedy may occur. They have not much song, but are nevertheless pleasing birds, and also confiding with those that supply their needs.

It is similar in form to the preceding species, and differs chiefly in the body plumage, being vinous. The crest is glistening carmine. The female is duller and browner in hue ond her crest is brown.

This Bunting in a wild state favours open country, and builds its nest at the top of thickets of scrub. The eggs are white, and three or four form a clutch. It has not been bred in this country. Diet: As preceding species. Habitat: Brazil, Peru, Boliva, Ecuador, Paraguay, and N. Argentina.

The Tropical Seed Finch (Oryzoborus torridus).—The birds of this genus cannot by any means be described as other than plain. This species bears a striking resemblance to the Black-headed Mannikin. I have at present one of this species, flying loose in my general aviary, where it has done well, and, in spite of its formidable beak, has not interfered with its smallest fellow captive. So far I have not heard its song, which I opine, does not amount to much; its chief attraction is its rarity. It was introduced to English aviculture by my esteemed friend, Mr. E. W. Harper, in the summer of 1907.

The male may be briefly described as black on the upper surface, and deep cinnamon on the under surface; large beak, blackish-horn colour; legs and feet, blackish brown. Total length, 5 inches; tail, 2⅛. It appears smaller, however, than the measurements indicated.

The female is olive-brown above, merging into the reddish-brown of the rump and upper tail coverts; wings and tail, blackish-brown; under surface lighter cinnamon than that of the male. Habitat: Brazil, Amazonia, Guiana, Venezuela and Ecuador.

The remaining species of this genus are as follows:—maximiliana, entirely black and blackish-brown, save for a white speculum on each wing; crassirostris, glossy black, with white wing speculums, slightly smaller than maximiliana; occidentalis glossy black, but may be distinguished from the above by its smaller size, smaller wing speculum and black under wing-coverts, which are white in both the preceding species; nuttingi, black, differing from preceding species in having no white wing speculum; funereus black, small white wing speculum, under-wing coverts and edge of the wings white; and atrirostris, black with steely gloss, small white wing speculum, short black bill, tail slightly rounded.

The Genus (Loxigilla).—I must pass with only the briefest mention of a few of the species. The Purple Grosbeak (violacea) also called the Rufous-throated Tanager by Lathan. The general colour is purplish-black, the line over eye being brick-red. Throat and ventral region are deep chestnut.

The Black Sparrow (noctis) known as the Rufous-chinned Finch. General colouring black, with throat and chin bright brick-red. Female mostly olivaceous-brown. The species propinqua is similar to noctis, but smaller, with the brick-red areas more restricted. In the anoxantha, the general colour above is yellowish-green, with black head and golden yellow upper tail coverts; lores, eye region, ear-coverts, throat and breast, sooty-black; remainder of under-surface, ashy-grey, slightly washed with olive and yellowish-green; under tail coverts, chestnut. Total length 4⅝ inches. Female lacks the black head of the male. Protoricensis: General colouring black, save for the top of head, throat and under tail-coverts, which are chestnut-rufous. The species, grandis, is similar to protoricensis, but a little larger and having the chestnut-rufous areas of a darker hue.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

The second show of the season under Yorkshire Union rules is now numbered with the past, and the Great Horton Good Intent O.S. have added one more to the list of successful shows held by this society. The entry, though good, fell short of that obtained last year, when this society established a record by an entry averaging 24 per class. This year the average was 18 per class for the 21 classes provided, the total number of exhibits being 383, put down by 138 exhibitors. The surprise of the show was the large entry in the novice classes, no less than 206 birds being staged in the six classes for Yorkshires, giving an average of 34 per class, compared with which the entries in the open classes sound very meagre, only 115 birds being staged in the 10 classes, averaging but 11½ per class.

The largest entry in any one class was 50, this being in Novice Buff hens, whilst that for Yellow hens contained 42, truly a marvellous display. The figures quoted are all in favour of the novices, the "back-bone of the Fancy," as they are termed, and should establish conclusively that their cry for "more classes" is a cry not to be neglected. Even here, however, much of the power is in their own hands if they would but use it. There is a minimum limit to the classes to be provided for novices, but no maximum, and if the novice members of societies would only attend their meetings and take a hand in the making up of the classes, and hold out for their just reward, much could be done.

Novice fanciers of the Cinnamon-marked variety of Yorkie are also assuming a "fighting attitude" regarding their rights. When these poor chaps wish to compete, they have either to exhibit in the open against all the champions (in an endeavour to secure a prize given by their own society) or show amongst the Ticked and Green-marked birds in the novice classes—and seldom indeed do they get in here. But now they are going to see if they cannot have novice classes provided for their own especial variety.

Ways and means of curtailing the show season now make one of the problems engaging the attention of a large number of fanciers in Yorkshire. Several schemes have been mooted, but one that will find favour with all seems hard to get. There is always someone who will be hurt. At one time it is the society holding the show, at another it is the small exhibitor; and thus the game goes merrily on. The fancier who can find a good, workable, "hurt-nobody" scheme to get over this difficulty will earn the everlasting gratitude of the 1,200 odd members composing the Yorkshire Union. Bradford City O.S. are making arrangements for a discussion on the above subject, to take place on Saturday, November 14th, the opener being Mr. H. J. Chittenden.

*The Robin and His Cheese.

While my father and I were out recently we saw a Robin, which I thought was very tame. We went into a shop to know the history of the bird, and the man told us he had been feeding it since it was a nestling, and now it came on the counter for its bit of cheese as if it were a customer.—Sent by Charley Tye, 25, Smith Street, Clerkenwell, London, E.C.

*Cleverness of Birds.

A gentleman, it is recorded, was one day walking by the shore when he saw two Turnstones busily endeavouring to turn over a dead fish fully six times their size. They were boldly pushing at the fish with their bills, and then with their breasts. Their endeavours were, however, in vain; the object remained immovable. On this they went round to the other side and scraped away the sand from beneath the fish, and they carried on their mining operations till they were able to turn the fish over.—Sent by N. Tebb, Sandfield, Putney Heath Lane, Putney, London, S.W.

Pussy's Strange "Baby."

A most remarkable freak of cat nature was to be seen at the residence of a Mr. Moss (Islington), showing how the deadliest enemies can become close companions. A Sparrow had sought refuge in the area of the house. Here a cat was affectionately nursing her young kittens. To the utter astonishment of its owner, the cat made violent love to the Sparrow, entirely deserting her offspring, who have since died from neglect. The cat and Sparrow were to be seen daily playing together and eating and drinking off the same plate. The young visitor became so tame that it went out regularly for its fly and returned in safety. When not in evidence, all the lady of the house had to do was to call "Bob," and from some neighbouring corner this precocious bird used to come home.—Sent by V. Pearson (age 14), 17, Lawson Terrace, South Shields.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

Green-birds appear to be unusually plentiful this autumn. The glorious summer has been favourable to so lusty a bird. Brood after brood of Green-birds has been successfully reared, and now they are gathered into flocks of various dimensions and may be seen out on the stubble; at a distance they appear like Sparrows, but anyone conversant with the ways of wild birds can easily distinguish them. The Sparrows are suspicious, fidgety and flighty, constantly on the move, keeping together when in flight almost as compactly as Starlings, while Greenfinches act differently; when disturbed they take wing and scatter in small parties, some flying off to the nearest hedgerow, others to the buildings, or remain in the air until the danger is past; they then return to the feeding ground, arriving from all quarters, in parties of a dozen or so, or just two or three together. The flight is drooping, and they glide more freely than Sparrows. The moulting of wild birds is a most difficult process to watch. Occasionally one may see a bird with a somewhat ragged appearance, or may note a deficiency of wing feather when the birds are in flight; but, as a rule, we see very little of the process; the reason, no doubt, being that individual birds are not daily under observation. Among all the familiar wild birds, I think the Missel Thrushes show most signs of the moult. They are big birds, and generally in small flocks at this time of the year; consequently they quickly attract attention. Some I have had under observation this autumn looked particularly ragged, and did they lose as many flight feathers at once as they do body feathers, would find it a difficult matter to fly. We have had an unusually large number reared in our district (Carshalton, Surrey) this season, and with those on migration, they form a goodly company.

The Silent Flycatcher.

The Spotted Flycatchers appear to be the most silent of all our smaller migrants. It is seldom we hear a note from them in the open.

The Punctuai Nightjar.

It is said that the Nightjar commences to utter its peculiar jarring note at exactly the same time each evening, that is at sunset, according as the day lengthens or the twilight advances.

Autumn Songsters.

If we should be fortunate enough to get a good autumn, bird music will increase, for many birds which cease to sing about midsummer recommence again when they have moulted, if the weather is at all favourable.

Strange Nest of a Skylark.

A strange nesting place of a Skylark was recently noticed. It was on a bank, and was placed in a hole formed by the root of an elm tree, and was more like the nesting place of a Robin or Wagtail than that of the Skylark. The bird loves the open field, with the waving grass or corn in which to shelter its treasures.

Habits of the Shrike.

In Stanley's "History of Birds," the author relates the following interesting account of the habits of the Shrike, the prey was a Hedge Sparrow:—"Having seized its victim, he immediately killed it, and then bowered with it in his bill for a short time over the hedge, apparently occupied in selecting a thorn suited to his purpose. Upon disturbing it, and advancing to the spot, he found the Sparrow already firmly fixed by the tendons of the wing at the selected twig. In another instance a Shrike was observed busily occupied near a thorn hedge. On examination three frogs and as many mice were found regularly spitted on thorns."

YOU MUST ASK A POLICEMAN

"Mr. P'liceman, which is the way to the bird show?"

If you don't know your way to a Show.

That is one thing "Cage Birds Annual" will not tell you.

But for Sixpence it will give you Priceless Advice on how to get your birds to the show in that lovely condition which captivates the judges.

Birds must be skilfully bred and selected. They must be skilfully fed and tended—skilfully moulted, washed and toileted. The "Annual" will tell you all about these things. It is admitted by all to be a Marvellous Compendium of knowledge on all Birdy Matters.

Such Stupendous Value has never before been offered.

See what You Get for Your Money.

Coloured Plate.

An exquisite portrayal of the noted Bramble-finch-Chaffinch Hybrid, bred by Miss Reeves.

Calendar.

A monthly calendar and diary, with novel table for ascertaining when eggs are due to hatch.

"Work of the Year."

A splendidly useful article, in which is set out the work amongst your birds for each month of the year. Perusal of it will enable the bird-keeper to anticipate his future wants, and be always ready to do whatever is needful and beneficial for his stock. Full of practical hints.

"Washing and Preparing Birds for Exhibition."

"The Breeding and Rearing of Canaries."

A very practical and thorough contribution from the pen of an old fancier, who gives many excellent "tips" as to the best ways to proceed. An article that will teach you something.

"Pairs Matched for Breeding."

"The Breeding of Hybrids."

An article on the fascinating pursuit of Hybrid breeding, by one who has made it a considerable study, and devoted much time to it. There are hints and advice in this contribution which may bring you profit and fame.

"The Keeping of British Birds."

A concise and practical article dealing with the mistakes of fanciers, and the keeping of birds in show condition, and giving valuable "tips" on feeding.

"Some Easily Obtainable Foreign Birds."

"Review of the Exhibition Year."

Every breed of Canary, together with Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, has its progress on the show-bench during 1907 dealt with by leading judges, specialists, and experts, and the names of the principal winning exhibitors are given.

"The Diseases of Cage-Birds."

A feature in itself worth the whole cost of the volume. Diseases and accidents are described, and the best medicines and methods of treatment stated in simple language, and very fully and completely. It will save you many valuable birds.

"Glossary of Terms."

The curious terms used by fanciers are fully explained. Reference to the alphabetically-arranged columns will at once tell you the meaning of such expressions as jonque, leafy feather, mooning, rowing, and the like.

In addition to these features will be found a

Directory to Cage-Bird Clubs, Associations and Societies, with particulars of subscriptions, etc., list of Officials and Secretary's name and address.
Directory to Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors of Cage-Birds.
Directory to Judges of Cage-Birds.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

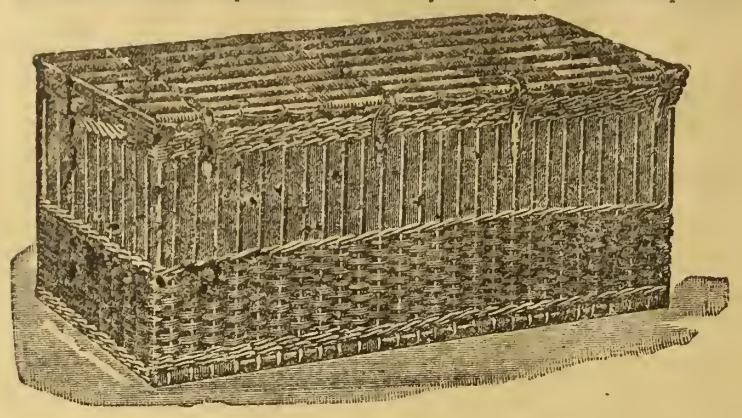
APPLIANCES.

OUTDOOR Aviaries; bird houses.—Sussex Portable Building Co., 10, Crown-st., Brighton.

FOR cages and bird-room appliances send for catalogue.—Rees, Glantaf, Abercanaid, Merthyr.

WHAT offers large close-wired aviary, new flight cage, sell 10/-, 5/-.—Davis, 30, Main-st., Bulwell, Notts.

AVIARY, 6 ft. high, 21 inches deep, 4 ft. wide, £1, cost £3; giving up fancy.—Rolfe, 574, King's-rd., Fulham.



LIGHT, STRONG AND CHEAP

TRAVELLING BASKETS.

Why send your birds to shows done up in a brown paper parcel? It is dangerous for the birds and a disgrace to you as the owner.

J. GILBERT & SON, 4 & 5, Arcade, Coventry, are the leading basket manufacturers in the country.

They have an inside knowledge of fanciers' requirements as their Mr. T. Gilbert is a practical breeder, Exhibitor, and Judge of Cage Birds. They are always ready and pleased to study fanciers' wishes and ideas. Baskets can be made to customer's specifications at absolutely lowest cost, and in shortest possible time.

Awarded 3 Gold Medals at the Crystal Palace.

THAT LYING JADE

"rumour" is again busy, the latest false rumour going the rounds is, that the testimonials I publish week by week are not genuine. To prove that this statement is false, I have sent the whole of the letters printed this week, together with scores of others that have never been published, to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for his perusal, and I publicly offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever solicited a testimonial, or published one that was not genuine. I believe in giving every customer sound, honest value at a reasonable price, and when a man does that, he can get plenty of trade and testimonials, too. If you want anything in the bird-catching line, patronise me just once, you will see I do not want extortionate profits. Clap nets made from genuine thread netting, ¾ mesh, 3 yards long 4/- pair, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds, 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds, 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair, all guaranteed fully 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All fitted complete with brass-mounted stave poles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate setting. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet poles 5/6, ditto 19 feet poles 6/6 each. Loose netting, made from 60's genuine thread, ¾ mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free. This netting is guaranteed finest procurable, and must not be confused with the American cotton fishing netting now being sold as bird netting. Self-acting spring net traps, by far the largest and most simple traps on the market, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 inches long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra. Single trap cages 6d. each; double ditto, 10d. and 1/-; Treble ditto, 1/3 each, all have seperate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Reg. No. 23927) guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Real Japanese birdlime, absolutely strongest made, does not run in sun, and guaranteed to hold a Hawk, 6d. ½ lb., 10d. ¾ lb., 1/6 1 lb; sample 3d., all post free. Round or square topped call-cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen, 27/- gross. Linnet or Goldfinch cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen. Lark runner cages, 3/6, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- dozen. Every description of cages in stock. Dealers should send stamp for wholesale cage list, prices and quality will surprise them. Everything required by catchers kept in stock; send stamp for full catchers' list. See following letters, all recently received:—"Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, October 10th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I had a pair last year from another firm, and found them to be made of twine, which is a failure and a fraud. Yours, T. Smith." "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbro,' October 5th. Sir, —Please send another tin birdlime. It is best I ever tried. You boast of it being able to hold a Hawk, and, strange to say, a Hawk was first bird over our twigs, and the lime held it on. Yours, V. Moody." "10, Steps-road, Sterhousemuir. October 5th. Sir,—We tried birdlime on Saturday, and found it a great success. Yours, C. Godfrey." "Woodford Grange, Thrapston. October 1st. Sir,—Please send me pair Sparrow nets for a friend who saw the clap nets you supplied to me and was quite delighted with them. Yours, W. Meacock." "46, Portland-row, Selston. Sir,—Please send following. The netting I got from you last year is best in the world. I had a hare in it, and it never broke a mesh. Yours, A. Fielding." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Sir,—Netting I had from you last year is as good as ever, and has done good service. Yours, P. Braidwood." "Grange-road, Kettering. Sir,—Very pleased with loose netting you sent. Yours, T. Green." "10, Dyke Nook, Frizington. Sir,—Please send two call cages. My uncle has his, and is very pleased with them. Yours, J. Jenkison." "65, Low Town-street, Worksop. Sir,—Please send 4 yards netting. I had some from another firm last year, and it did not last the season out. Yours, J. Richards." "Bright View, Old Rathay, by Blairgowrie. Sir,—Please send 1 lb. birdlime. I have had it this three seasons, and it is best and cheapest I ever got, and first-class stuff. Yours, W. Hovelsroud." "10, Alpine Cottage, Beeston. Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from one firm more like garden netting than anything else. Yours, W. Worthington." "13, Finsbury-terrace, Finsbury Park, London. Sir,—Please send another pull line, I was highly pleased with last, as it is better quality than I can get in London. Yours, G. Barfoot." "Turnhill-terrace, Nantyglo. Sir,—Please send ½ lime, I had some last year, and cannot get better. Yours, J. Wise." "94, Whitworth-road, Rochdale. Sir,—I am quite pleased with trap cage. Please send following. Yours, E. Dean." "7, Birkland-street, Mansfield. Sir,—Please send following. I had very good results with your lime last year, also with nets you sent. Yours, G. Barson." "East Haddon. Sir,—Received nets, and am quite satisfied with them. Yours, R. Pudney." Thousands of similar letters open to inspection any time, but these are sufficient to show that my goods are by far the cheapest and best on the market. Why pay extortionate prices when you can get better value for half the money? Remember everything is sent on approval; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully and promptly returned if every satisfaction not given. See "British Bird column for further advertisement.

ONLY ONE MAN

has written pointing out the incorrectly spelt word in my advertisement of British birds last week. Did you notice it? I still have just as large a stock, and prices are same as last week, but am too busy to write fresh advertisements. Orders and testimonials are absolutely streaming in. Will intending purchasers kindly note last week's advertisement, and they may rely upon the same straightforward and honourable treatment and prompt dispatch of all orders. For tip-top value at rock-bottom prices patronise Britain's premier bird dealer.

BRITISHERS. WORTH NOTICE.

Before sending for wild wasters, kept in all kinds of dilapidated sheds (often called aviaries), see my full list of caged-off Linnets, Bullfinches, Goldfinches, Siskins, before deciding elsewhere. If you want a genuine up-to-date exhibition Linnet, a quality songster, write me; you can be suited.—Read 1908 hard facts from hundreds. Gateshead. Oct. 16, 1908.—Received Linnet, more than delighted at price; he was singing well the day he arrived. I am sure if people would send to you when in need of a good bird, instead of buying such cheap rubbish, they would be more than satisfied.—J. S. Atkinson. Kingston-on-Thames. Oct. 11, 1908.—Cock Linnet received safely. I am more than satisfied with him at price paid. He is a beauty.—H. Burrows.—W. Rudd, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

HARRY ALLEN TO THE FRONT AGAIN!

Fox and Thomson ran a good second at Bolton Show; beaten, but not disgraced. See CAGE BIRDS for report. This is the class of bird I sell; my A1 specials can beat the world for steadiness, size, colour, and markings. All one price, 2/6. Gentlemen who are desirous of coming to the front must try my specials, which is in the reach of all-comers. Linnets in full song, with a beautiful polished cage and my book of secrets, a packet of my special mixture, 3/-. This is a real bargain. Fierce singing cock Linnets, with blood-red breast and extra loud voices, with new cage, right for catching or contest-singing, only 2/-. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same value for the money. Deposit your money with the editor of this paper for honest stuff, on seven days' approval. No waiting. Over 500 of these special birds in stock. Linnets taught by the world's champion; will sing anywhere; only 1/6 each. These special birds are real bargains. Goldfinches.—Real Peartree cock Goldfinches, full colour, the largest in England, with deep, square-cut blaze, beautifully buttoned and mooned, well tanned on breast. These prize-winners are 4/6 each; other fine Goldfinches, same size, full colour, 3/6; right for muling. Greypates, large big birds, beautiful wing bars, well buttoned, showing splendid colour; will make winners; 2/6. Full-coloured cock Goldfinch Mules, singing grand. They are splendid birds, 5/6. Splendid cock Siskins in grand colour and good size, sure winners, 3/- and 3/6. These are specials. Other cocks, 2/6. Keep your eyes open. My Roller Canaries will be fit shortly. Cock Canaries, singing fine, 6/- and 7/6 each; the best value in the market. Beautiful red-breasted Redpolls, the largest I have seen this season, right for muling, 1/6 and 2/-. I have the finest selection of Wood Larks in England. Cocks (guaranteed), 2/6 and 3/-. Larks in full song, grand condition, 1/- and 1/6. These are as steady as rocks. To encourage the Fancy I have lowered my book of secrets to 9d.; only a few left. Four packets of my special mixture, 1/-. Best Linnet whistle in England, 6d. Those who want a first-class team of British winners like Fox and Thomson, write or call and see Harry Allen, Bird Specialist, and judge. Leeds Market Tuesdays and Saturdays, or City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

ATTENTION PLEASE!

This is what you have been waiting for. I have just received my first consignment for this season of the world-famed- "Leipzig" Roller Canaries. (Cocks, no hens yet.) These cocks are in magnificent condition and full song, with long, hollow, and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble, runs soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trills, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and are guaranteed entirely free from harsh or objectionable notes whatever. Price 6/6 and 7/6 each. These birds are imported by me direct from Leipzig, and are same strain as have won innumerable contests both in Germany, and also England. Every bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole agent, no other dealer can get so much as one feather of this strain unless purchased from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, and are sent on full week's approval, solely at my risk during the whole time, either on receipt of cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS, and every penny of your money is refunded if bird fails to realise every expectation, and prove fully satisfactory. See British Bird and Appliance Columns for further advertisements.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey-talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 163 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

BLAYDON AND DIS. C.B.S.

Meeting held in Co-operative Hall, on October 16th, Mr. Jno. Hands, presiding. A letter was read from the Sunderland Society re "When is a clear not a clear." It was decided that the matter remain over to some future meeting, as it was a question which could not be settled at one meeting. Our schedule was read over as printed, and gave every satisfaction to members. There are 44 classes, all guaranteed, and no amalgamation, so we are hoping for a good entry.—GEO. HAVVER, Sec.

GREEN CANARY ASSOCIATION

Monthly meeting held at headquarters Sept. 24th, Mr. Handley in the chair. The Secretary, on behalf of the subscribers, presented the society with the two Novice Cups for competition this season. The Chairman suitably acknowledged same. The following notices of motion were given in to come up at General Meeting: By Messrs. J. Walker and W. Hale—To alter Rule 8: "That any two members showing together shall both pay subscriptions, and their partnership shall be registered by the 1st of September, with the Secretary, and shall hold good for the following show season. In the case of partnership, points shall count as one." By Messrs. Hadwin and Deacon: "That we take in the Green Border as a section, similar to the Yorkshire and Norwich Greens." By Messrs. Bretherton and Nimmo: "That nothing goes on voting papers except election of officers." By Mr. J. Abbott: "That the drinkers be stamped with the letters G.C.A." Will members please give these motions their serious consideration.—S. HADWIN, Sec.

LONDON FEDERATION OF CAGE BIRD SOCIETIES.

An enthusinstic meeting of delegates was held at the Feathers' Hotel on October 7th, for the purpose of further considering the scheme for the governing of the London societies. Mr. H. E. Tringham (Dulwich and Peckham) again very ably presided. The meeting was an unqualified success, and there can be little doubt now but that the success of the Federation is assured. The firm manner in which Mr. Tringham directed the meeting, and his ruling on the many intricate points raised, were such as were calculated to bring credit to the delegates on their choice of chairman.

The secretary, pro tem., Mr. P. Adamthwaite, stated that he had sent the revised rules to 30 London societies, and had at the same time extended an invitation to them to join the Federation. As a result, 21 societies had replied in some form or the other. Nine societies definitely decided to affiliate, nine were withholding their decision for the time being, one stated "no decision arrived at," and two had decided not to affiliate. The replies of the societies who were withholding their decision were such as to lead him to believe that in the near future each would affiliate; and the result of this meeting was being eagerly looked for.

The draft scheme was then further considered. There were very few suggested amendments, but what there were, were of the utmost importance. Four new rules were added; one allowing the Council of the Federation power to co-opt six persons to its numbers, either temporarily or for a period of one year, all to be eligible for re-election at the annual meeting of the Council; one dealing with members failing to discharge their liabilities to their societies; one concerning the clashing of shows; and one dealing with the notification of autumn shows held by affiliated societies. The question of the levies to be imposed upon all members of the Federation was discussed, and the delegates instructed the secretary to inform societies "that in the opinion of this Council the annual levy per member will not exceed one penny."

The most important business of the meeting was that arising out of a question put by Mr. W. Hodson, hon. sec. of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. He asked whether the rules of the Federation would in any way whatsoever supersede, or interfere with, those of the Cage Bird Union where societies were holding open shows? The answer, made by Mr. Adamthwaite, was in the negative. If a society was holding an open show under the rules of the union, he said, the Federation would not interfere in the settlement of any question that might arise; but members' classes would come under the jurisdiction of the Federation. The delegates were unanimous in agreeing to this understanding, and Mr. Hodson, the original speaker, said he had no hesitation in stating that so far as his society was concerned they would join the Federation. (Applause.) He saw no reason, nor any possibility even, and he believed none of them saw any, why the Federation and the Union should clash. (Hear, hear.)

It was decided that, for the time being, the Metropolitan police area be taken as the area of the jurisdiction of the Federation. At 11.35 the chairman declared the Federation to be an acknowledged fact, amid a scene of great enthusiasm. It was moved by Mr. A. C. Burn (City and Suburban A.C.B.), and seconded by Mr. Hodson (Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S.), "That this meeting wishes to put on record its high appreciation of the work done by Mr. Adamthwaite, the secretary, pro tem., in the formation of the Federation." This was carried with acclamation. A hearty vote of thanks to the chair concluded the meeting, representatives of eleven London societies being present.

CLYDEBANK O.S.

Monthly meeting held recently in McGill's Rooms, Kilbowie Road, Mr Thomas E. Dean (president) presiding. The following judges have been appointed for the show on November 14th:—Messrs. R. G. Wright (Edinburgh); M'Swinton (Methil); A. Nesbit (Galston), and W. Muirhead (Bonnybridge). The visiting committee gave a very satisfactory report of the young birds. A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the meeting.—A. KIRKWOOD, Secretary.

ULSTER O.S.

The committee held their first meeting in the Avenue Hall, Garfield Street, Belfast, on October 6th. In the president's absence Mr. J. Stewart occupied the chair. The secretary read letters from judges nominated at the annual meeting. Messrs. J. Arnott (Sanchie), and W. Mundell (Bradford), will place the cards at the coming show on December 4th and 5th. Several other matters were discussed, and in the opinion of those present our coming show will be one of the best held.—ROBERT TRIMBLE, Sec.

YORK C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters, Mr. T. Wright in the chair. A paper was read by Mr. T. Bryne on "The Washing, Staging, and Keeping in Health of British Birds." The Secretary reported that the annual show would be held in the Exhibition Buildings, one of the finest halls in the North of England on October 30th and 31st, and would be opened on the first day at 1.30 p.m. by Mr. H. H. Riley Smith, J.P. He had also been fortunate enough to secure the patronage of the Lord Mayor of York (Sir J. S. Rymer, J.P.), the Very Rev. the Dean of York, Canon Watson, G. D. Faber, Esq., C.B., M.P., Mr. J. G. Butcher, K.C., the Hon. L de Yarburgh Bateson, etc. A vote of thanks to the lecturer and chairmnn brought a very pleasant evening to a close. —A. WAUD, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting held nt the Globe Inn, Oldham, on Oct. 10th. fanciers being present from Hazel Grove, Glossop, Oldham, Denton, Rawtenstall, etc.. Mr. Garner in the chair. We finally settled shows for Club patronage. The following have been granted Challenge Cups and Medals, viz.: Oct. 23 and 24, Rochdale O.C., Lancs. and Lizards; Oct. 30 and 31, Manchester, Lancs. and Lizards; Nov. 7, Rochdale Good Intent, Lizards; Nov. 12 to 14, Nottingham, Lancs. and Lizards; Nov. 28, Littleborough, Lancs. and Lizards; December 4 and 5, Lizards; Feb. 5 to 9, Crystal Palace, Lancs. and Lizards. New member, Mr. H. Oooke, Stoke-on-Trent. Next meeting in connection with Littleborough Show, Nov. 28. Time and place later in Fancy Press. A vote of thanks to chairman concluded the meeting.—JOHN RUKIN, Hon. Sec.

NORWICH PLAINHEAD CLUB.

At the Cup Competition held nt the late Bolton Show, several members (whom I have written to) were exhibiting in cages not made by the Club's maker; other cages had not the regulation water tin. The Committee request me to say that they will not recognise them, and any member not using the Club's cage and drinker when showing under our rules will forfeit points and prize-money won at that show. There will be a general meeting at the Accrington Show on Oct. 24 (time and place to be posted in the Norwich Section), to consider the "Tick question"; the Cage Bird Union, as to whether we ought to be affiliated or not; and any other business that may be presented by any member, verbally or in writing, addressed to me at the show. Quite a number of members have not paid their yearly subscriptions; I should be glad if they would forward same at once; members in arrears and winning a prize are liable to forfeit same.—J. RAYNES, Hon. Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Usual meeting held October 10th in the Fawcett-street Cafe, Mr. John Farrar presiding over a good attendance. A letter from the secretary of the Wallsend Society was read, relative to the "Clear and Ticked question," which stated that their members were of the same opinion as ours, viz., that it was time something was done in the matter. But they regretted their inability to adopt the proposed classification this year, as their schedules were already drawn up and in the course of preparation. A large amount of business was then got through in connection with our forthcoming annual open show on November 20th and 21st. Several additional specials were also forthcoming for the members' section. The annual subscriptions of 5s. should be paid by October 31st to entitle members to exhibit in members' classes. This will not only relieve the secretaries from the unpleasant duty of asking for contributions, but will also prevent possible disputes at the time of making entries. If any members is quite unable to pay his contribution, and will kindly notify the secretaries, they will make arrangements which will enable him to show his birds and compete for all specials.—REID and MADDISON, Hon Secretaries

SOUTHERN NORWICH P.C.

The inter-club contest will be held at the February show of the L & P.O.S. The society has given us cash to defray all expenses that the club may be put to in connection with paying out extra prize money to our members at contest. The committee are anxious to extend this club's influence as much as possible amongst the breeders of the Norwich Plainhead, so that they may, if funds will permit, extend their patronage to sixteen societies next show season instead of twelve, as this present season. Will secretaries help us in this matter to their own benefit by giving the secretary names of all gentlemen who wish to belong to the club? Novice fanciers should note that Bristol has written cancelling the patronage we extended to them, but hope to receive same next year. Messrs. Conner Bros. have been asked not to show, at societies receiving our patronage, for two years, as the committee have suspended them until such time elapses. The secretary will endeavour to attend the shows the club are patronising so as to come in personal touch with all country members, and to bring forward to committee any cases that come under the jurisdiction of the club. Will members be careful to see that they have club perches in their cages, and to only use Canary seed during showing or exhibiting time.—F. S. MATTHEWS, Hon. Sec.

SINGING CONTESTS.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at King's Head, Shannon Street, on Oct. 18, when 24 birds sang. Judge, Mr. H. Allen; Timekeeper, Mr. Lacey. 1 and 2, Stead; 3, Hardcastle.—WILSON NAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

NEWTOWN (Leeds).

Usual contest held Oct. 18, when 25 birds sang. 1, Sissons; 2 and 3, shared between Sissons and Lauriman. Judges, Messrs. Jackson and Wood; Timekeeper, Mr. A. Jennings.—W. DEAN, Secretary.

THE SHOWS.

BIDEFORD.

Held in the Market on Oct. 21. The cage birds were very disappointing, as regards numbers, so many shows being held the same day, but quality was well in evidence. Mr. Sing makes an ideal secretary, while Mr. Symons made a capital steward. Mr. Dix placed the awards.

YORKS. N.P.B. AND CREST AMALGAMATED (10): 1, spl, best bird in show, F. German, Yell. CATERHAM.

Annual show, held October 21st and 22nd, was very successful. Mr. James Kirby, the highly-esteemed hon. secretary, seems to have earned and retained the goodwill of patrons and exhibitors alike, while his management of the show and the affairs of the society are pronounced excellent. The chairman of committee is Mr. J. W Rolls, and as for the committee they are true fanciers one and all. The show was well-arranged. The entry was a good one, considering the multiplicity of events on the same dates, and the quality was high-class throughout. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

CROOK.

The Crook and District C.B.S. held their annual show in the Mechanics' Hall, on October 17th. Norwich and Yorkshires formed a fine section some very nice specimens of both varieties being staged. Competition in all the sections was keen. The Crest, etc., class contained some good birds, notably Mr. Atess's Crestbred hen (winner at the last Palace show), which took the medal for best bird in show. British though not numerous were very good in quality. The secretary is Mr. W. Rutherford, and the ability with which he handled the affairs reflected great credit not only on himself, but also on the society. Mr. E. Brunekill judged.

EASTBOURNE.

A magnificent building for a show is the Pavilion, Devonshire Park, in which the show of the Eastbourne Society was held on October 21st and 22nd—grand top tight, no draughts, and well ventilated. The entry was not what it should have been considering the classification, but doubtless the multitude of shows this week pressed hardly on Eastbourne, which is not over well situated. As it was the entries were about the same as last year, whilst the quality was splendid. The show is run by a most excellent body of fanciers, and everything was done that could be to make the venture attractive and successful. There was a capital attendance of the public on the first day, and when we left the shillings were rolling in merrily. The committee were Messrs. E. J. Horn (chairman), C. Taylor (vice-chairman), C. Trywell, C. Attree, J. A. Howard, C. Packett, J. Tucknott, E. J. Speare, R. L. Newman, G. Tutt, J. Hobden, W. Wood. C. Cole, and E. Gausden, and a grand lot of workers they proved themselves, whilst Messrs. R. M. Daly and J. Gibbons, the hon. secs., were most energetic and courteous in the discharge of their duties. Mr. C. A. House judged.

NOTTINGHAM (Permanent.)

The Nottingham Permanent O.S. held their annual open show on October 10th, at headquarters, the "Grapes" Inn, Platt Street, the day being an ideal one. The room was packed with exhibitors and visitors all day long. The exhibits themselves were of the highest class, especially in the Norwich Plainheads, Crests, and Crestbreds. One hundred and thirty exhibits faced the judges, Messrs. J. C. Ley (Crests and Cresthreds), and Wm. Vardy (Norwich Plainheads, etc.), whose awards gave everyone satisfaction. The secretary, Mr. Davis and his willing band of workere did exceedingly well, and the success of the show is due to their efforts in no small measure.

CITY OF GLASGOW.

The 55th annual show was held on October 16 and 17, and proved a great success. Entries were well up to those of former years, all the classes being well represented, and very closely contested. Norwich Plainheads were strong classes, some grand birds being shown. Here Mr. McFarlane had a strong hand, and accounted for a goodly number of the prizes. Mr. Adams (Dundee) judged these varieties, and succeeded in pleasing the majority of exhibitors. Crests, Crest-breds, and Yorkshires followed, and here were found some hot ones, the cup winner being a beauty of a Crested cock. Crest-breds were a grand lot, every class containing choice specimens. Yorkshires, etc., were well filled classes, many good specimens being on view. These were judged by Mr. J. F. Dewar, and his awards were popular. Borders followed, and brought together a record entry, such a collection being seldom seen. Every class contained two sets of winners, and the birds must have been hard to separate. Mr. Smillie cleverly secured the B.F.C. medal with a topping Buff hen. These classes were under the jurisdiction of Messrs. Sommerville and Bennet, and right well did they do their duty. The Mules, British and Foreign were a show in themselves, such an entry and such quality being seldom on view. The pick of the Mule section was a gem of a clear Siskin, shown by Dr. Galloway, and bred from the pair that produced last year's sensations (we believe). The winning Hybrid was claimed at catalogue price. British were strong, but nevertheless the veteran, Mr. P. McQuilston, held a master hand, and had a good share of the spoils. The runner-up for cup was the blue-headed Wagtail, shown by Mr. G. G. Henderson. Foreigners were a gorgeous lot. These classes were judged by two well-known exhibitors, Messrs. Craig and Muir, and their awards were well received. The votes for the Challenge Cup resulted as follows: Crest cock, 22 points; blue-headed Wagtail, 17; Hybrid, 15; and Norwich Buff cock, 15. Sales were numerous, the yell. Nor. cock, 1st, being claimed at £5. The Green-cheek-Bullie fetched £9 9s. 9d., and the Scotch fancy pair in Breeding class at £20. The show was held as usual in the Stirling Road Hall, a very suitable place for a bird show, being roomy and well lighted. The arrangements for staging were grand, the birds being free from draught. The stalls of the various caterers for the Fancy gave a finish to the show. Mr. Young, the noted Norwich breeder, had a go at the Norwich, etc., section, as Secretary, and the way he worked was a credit to both himself and the Society. The Society is formed of a high class of fanciers, every one being keen to work for a good finish, and the way the arrangements were carried through reflected great credit on one and all.

In the Scotch Fancy Section the entries numbered 263, this being a slight increase over that of last year. The quality was distinctly in advance. In certain classes the leading exhibits pressed hard upon each other. The introduction of Novice classes was an experiment, but the result did not seem to justify the venture, though good birds entered the competition. In the Selling classes were a meritorious lot, which brought out smart bidding at the auction. The Belgians were not up to the standard wanted by Scotchmen, neat and good in position, but on the small side. They totalled 55. The President, Mr. Jardine, is the right man for the position, and has justly earned for himself golden opinions; frank, ready, and master of the situation, he kept the work of the day well in hand. Mr. Alex. Macdonald, the secretary of these two sections, has been many years in office, and is quite at home with the duties, in fact, a most excellent official. He could have dealt with many more Scotch Fancies and Belgians. The Scotch Fancy Committee were assiduous and painstaking, and got through the business of the day with credit. The prize for best bird in the hall was won by Mr. McClure, with his renowned winner, the yellow cock, and the bonour was fully merited, and popular. The Cup and Medal for best young Scotch Fancy or Belgian was won by Mr. Allan (Edinburgh), with a young yellow hen of exceptional merit and quality. The cup for best young piebald or green cock was secured by Mr. Kennedy (Paisley) with the same Buff Green cock that won the cup at Paisley Show. These cup contests were very keen, and those present followed the judges closely. It is a decided advantage to be in attendance during the judging, and every young fancier should spend a couple of hours during the judging at the City or other big shows. The judges were severely tried, but were equal to the occasion, and finished in good time. They did their level best to place the exhibits in order of merit, and it goes without saying that they succeeded. The Scotch Fancies were taken by Messrs. Low (Dundee), Holden (Muirkirk), Hope (Edinburgh), Knox (Glasgow), Clark and Martin (Rutherglen); the Belgians by Mr. Fulton (Partick).

The officials responsible for the splendid success of the show, and whose services the society are fortunate to be able to command, were: President, Mr. Andrew Jardine; vice-president, Mr. David Black; sec. for Scotch Fancy and Belgians, Mr. Alex. MacDonald; and for Nor., Yorks, Brit., etc., Mr. John Young; committee, Messrs. Cliff Bell, J. W. Anderson, Alex. M'Millan, Wm. Morton, J. J. M'Ilwain, A. M'Lachlan, Thos. Todd, Thos. Thomson, R. M'Quillan, Arthur Baird, James Ward, John Muir, John Park, Chas. Hunter, G. Marlin, J. M'Lay, A. Chalmers, H. Henderson, G. Smart, Alex. Begg, J. Lappin, J. Munro, G. M'Phail, Wm. Griffiths, John Roulstone, and Wm. Hutchison.

BRIT HARDBILL: 1, 2, 3, 4, vhc, Lister.—J. HOLROYD, Scc.

Not only is CAGE BIRDS useful to those who want to sell out, writes Mr. J. Lepla (Newmarket), but also to those who want to buy. I bought over 100 Canaries through my last advertisement. I look forward to each issue of CAGE BIRDS as I do to my morning paper.

NORTHAMPTON (Good Intent).

The 37th annual show was held in the Corn Exchange (a very suitable building) on Oct. 21 and 22. There was a fairly good entry. Norwich classes contained birds of excellent merit, as also the British, although these were not so well patronised. The committee consists of a number of well known fanciers, ably led by their genial and energetic secretary, Mr. G. M. Larkman. The Britishers were very ably looked after by that veteran fancier of British birds, Mr. G. Hobbs. Mr. J. Robson made the awards.

Open Classes.

NOR. CL. ETC. YELL. (10): 1, 3, Jells, 1st, nicely moulded, rare size for a yellow, rich quality; 3rd, just beaten in colour; 2, Cooper, grand colour, excels in head and body properties; 4, Cooper, smart, as tight as wax; vhc, Ette; hc, Claypole; c, Nason. BUFF (8): 1, Watson, grandly made and lovely meal, typical; 2, Mitchell, very fine, ticked on breast, sound colour; 3, Cooper, smart, tight as wax, excellent quality; 4, Breitenfeld, well made, but does not do himself justice; vhc, Claypole; hc, Law; c, Mills. NOR. VARGT. (5): 1, 2, Mitchell, 1st, rare colour, extra wide head; 2, fine large variegated, beaten only in quality; 3, Cooper, lovely quality, rare size, good head; 4, Jells, large variegated, will make a good stock bird; vhc (no name). UNFL. YELL. (19): 1, Gilbert, clear, good type and colour, would not, however, show himself, not properly trained to show cage; 2, Ball, finely moulded, marked on wing, rich colour; 3, Mitchell, clear, nice stamp; 4, Breitenfeld, very large, nice colour and quality; vhc, Cooper; hc, Ette; c, Griffin. BUFF (16): grand class, this, several good ones cardless; 1, Bott, some made this the most typical Norwich in show, grand head and body, short and well-carried flights and tail, good colour and condition; 2, Lawrance, lovely clear, beautifully moulded; 3, Cooper, very fine marked bird, rare size; 4, Ette, excellent clear, smooth as a bottle; vhc, Howe; hc, Dickens; c, Cooper, might have been higher but for the loss of half his tail. HEN, YELL. (7): 1, Ette, wonderful body, grand one; 2, Howe, well made damsel, extra good head, teeming with quality; 3, Irons, very nicely coloured, hardly equal in substance to winners; 4, Jells, excellent type, nice quality; vhc, Mitchell; hc, Barron; c, Payne. BUFF (11): 1, Towers, excellent clear, rare stamp, excels in size and quality; 2, Breitenfeld, very pretty damsel, choice quality; 3, Ette, lightly marked on head, we liked much; 4, Cooper, one of the best, correct type; vhc, Hall; hc, Cooper; c, Irons. NATURAL COLOUR: 1, Fennell, fairly good yellow, nice colour, well staged; 2, Jeyes, yellow. This bird is marked Ramsden's in catalogue. What Ho! It certainly won't take the special for hottest bird; 3, Muston, smart buff; 4, Jeffs, heavily-marked buff, the best bird in this class was No. 6, the judge knows best why he passed it. CINN. (9): 1, 3, 4, Brown Bros., 1st, rare-coloured yellow, very smart; 3rd, good yellow, beaten in colour; 4th, nice made buff, rather pale on breast; 2, Howe, equally good buff, nice quality; hc, Nason; c, Exton. CAN. MULE OR HYB. (4): 1, Lawrance, very smart Goldfinch Mule, marked on wings, otherwise clear, shown in the pink of condition; 2, Winstone, Canary Bullfinch, nicely coloured; 3, Baker, dark buff Goldfinch Mule, rare size; 4, Sargeant, looks like a Siskin Mule or Hybrid. TWITTERINGS.

Don't forget York Show. Send off your entries at once to A. Waud, secretary.—(Advt.).

Schedules for the South Shields Show, writes Mr. Wm. Duke, the secretary, have all been sent out.

A record entry at the Rochdale O.C. Show, writes Mr. J. Butterworth, the secretary, thanks to Yorkshire and Liverpool Greens. 730 exhibits in all.

The Deal, Walmer and Dis. F.A. are holding their fourth annual show (open to Kent) on November 18th and 19th, writes Mr. W. Wadhams, the secretary.

The schedule of the Lowestoft and Dis. C.B.S. Members' Show, to be held on October 29th, provides 36 classes. The show is to be held in the Public Hall.

The Camborne Fanciers Society, cage-bird section, are holding their show on November 19th, with Mr. C. E. Silk as judge, writes Mr. C. J. Allen, the hon. secretary.

Entries are coming in very slowly, writes Mr. F. Howes, hon. secretary of Wolverhampton Show, and we have extended the date of closing to first post Tuesday, October 27th.

In penning my report of Hayle Show, writes our representative, I inadvertently referred to both 2nd and 4th prizes Unflighted Yellow Norwich as "ticks." This was not so, for both were Clears.

Entries are practically nil in the cage-bird section of the Peterboro' F.A. Show, to be held on October 29th, writes Mr. Fred Jackson, the hon. secretary; and we have extended date to October 23rd.

Kindly state, writes Mr. J. J. Gifford (Cambridge), that I have sold my Yellow Unflighted Yorks. cock, 1st at Cambridge, August Bank-holiday, to Mr. A. E. Bishop (Worcester), for a good figure.

We are informed that one of the exhibits, a Thrush, at the recent Johnstone Show, died in its cage through pecking the green paint from the inside of its cage. The owner of the bird was Mr. Ralston.

The members of the Provincial Roller Canary Club, writes Mr. W. Whittaker, the hon. secretary, have decided to adopt no special cage this season. Therefore our show will be open to any style of cage.

We have a 5s. cash special "for rarest foreigner," condition (but not brilliancy or excessive steadiness) to count, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, secretary, Cheltenham Show. This has been given since schedules were printed.

We have now a total membership of 50, and much of our success is due to the reports appearing in CAGE BIRDS from time to time, writes Mr. Jas. Pollock, secretary of the Larkhall C.B.A. We intend holding an open show next season.

Mr. Geo. F. Hardcastle has resigned the office of secretary to the Sale Open O.S., owing to business pressure, writes Mr. James Irlam, and all communications for the society must for the present now be addressed to me at 101, Harley Road, Sale.

We are asked by Mr. A. S. Treasure, hon. secretary of the Cheltenham C.B.S. Show, to announce that the copies of the C.B.U. rules were received by him too late for insertion in their schedules. The rules will, however, be sent out with the labels.

At the Douglas and Isle of Man C.B.S. Annual Show, to be held November 12th, 1908, writes Mr. W. H. Kill, the hon. secretary, Mr. Thos. Hogg will judge the Canary section, while Mr. Jno. Gale (of Ramsey, I.O.M.), takes the British and Mule classes. Both being local judges, I feel certain that fanciers can enter with the utmost confidence, as they have had a life experience of all varieties, and are fully qualified.

I have sent schedules to all exhibitors at our last show, writes Mr. J. C. Hayes, hon. secretary of the Rotherham C.B.S., and any one not having received one will please send me a postcard, when I will send one along. We look for a bumping entry, as we have got a good hall, first-rate accommodation, and two first-class judges, viz., Messrs. Vardy and W. H. Shackleton. Members will note that entries close on October 24th.

In the advertisement of our show, which appeared in your paper last week, writes Mr. R. Robertson, secretary of the Newtown, St. Boswells F.S., the date appeared as November 9th. This was a mistake for November 7th, on which date we are looking forward to a good entry.

Owing to shortness of entries, writes Mr. J. Shearman, secretary of the Gt. Yarmouth Show, to be held on November 4th and 5th, we have extended the closing date to October 26th. Fanciers will also note that class 131a, Yorkshire Canary A.V., was omitted from our schedule. This is our 20th show.

This is the first time that the Y.C.C. cup patronage has been given to a northern show, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall, so that we expect the cream of the Fancy at Newcastle. Local fanciers should be present as early as possible on the Saturday (if they cannot get on Friday), as many birds have to leave by early trains in order to reach home that night.

A sample of the mealworms he is offering for sale through our advertisement columns, reaches us from Mr. J. Jones, 17, Cranborne Street, Brighton. We have rarely, if ever, inspected finer. They are of exceptional size, and absolutely clean and healthy. Mr. Jones states that he has been a breeder of mealworms for 12 years, and has a grand stock, produced in bran and middlings.

In your "Guide to the Shows," issued on October 10th, you give date of Tredegar Show as January 21st, which is quite correct, but the secretary should be J. Griffiths, 3, Glynn Terrace, Tredegar (Mon.). I should like you to put this right, as applications for schedules, etc., may be received by the wrong person. We intend holding this show under Cage Bird Union rules. Mr. Melhuish is to be the judge.

OBITUARY

Mr. JAMES FORD (Freuchie).

It is with deep regret I have to inform the Fancy of the death of Mr. James Ford (Freuchie), which took place there on October 7th, aged 79, writes Mr. C. Berwick (St. Andrews). A true and genuine fancier, he was well known in former years as an exhibitor at all leading shows, but of late he didn't trouble to run his birds out, rather preferring to have them in the house beside him. A fancier of the Olden school, it was an honour to have his acquaintance. I had the pleasure of spending an afternoon with him lately. Many reminiscences of fanciers in bygone days were brought up. Some have gone before while others are still going the round of the shows. While lighting his pipe he turned to me and said: "Man, I canna be here lang mysell noo"; but I turned him off that strain and told him we would have him at Edinburgh New Year Show yet. He laughed and said: "Weel, maybe I would like to gang, but I doot I'll no be able." Little did I think then it was to be the last time I would shake his hand, as within a fortnight I had notice of his death. The funeral took place at Falkland Churchyard, and was followed by a few fanciers in the district. The sympathy of all who knew him goes out to his sorrowing relations.

The secretary of the Ayr and Dis. C.B.S. is Mr. C. C. Irvine, 144, Prestwick Road, Ayr, and not R. McKay, 51, Queen Street, as it appears in C.B. ANNUAL, writes Mr. Robt. McKay, as I am the president.

Kindly note that I have removed from George Street, Kates Hill, to 80, Dock Lane, Dudley, Worcs., writes Mr. Rd. Russon, where I shall be pleased to see any old or new friends who may care to pay me a visit.

At Lesmahagow Show, to be held November 28th, we have taken an extra hall specially for the Canary section, writes Mr. T. S. Cunningham, the secretary. Having a nice few Border fanciers in the district we are looking forward to a good show; this is a new branch of our society.

At Great Horton show on October 10th a mistake was made in putting the prize cards on class 19, Novice Section, Buff hens, writes Mr. H. Schofield, the secretary. The 3rd prize card was on cage No. 26, instead of No. 23, as it should have been, according to judge's slip. Some got catalogues marked wrong.

By the generosity of our chairman, writes Mr. H. G. Whibley, hon. sec. of the Tunbridge Wells and Dis. F.A., ornamental prize cards will be issued in the cage-bird section. The awards during the show will be announced on small gummed slips, which will be placed on the cages, thus allowing visitors full view of the exhibits.

Those printers again! By some unaccountable means the names of Messrs. Archie Godfree (chairman), and J. Rushmer (vice-chairman), and Messrs. Cornish and Adams, the hon. secretaries of the Exeter Society, were omitted from our report of their show. We much regret the omission, for a better quartet of workers the Exeter and Devon Society does not possess.

We were recently favoured with a visit from one of our old-time West-country Crest fanciers and breeders, Mr. W. Radmore, of Plymouth, once a noted exhibitor of the variety, and for some years a judge at the Crystal Palace show. We were pleased to hear that he had again started to woo the "old love," and had succeeded in breeding an exceptionally promising lot of young Crests and Crestbreds during the season just past. Mr. Radmore has been able to acquire a few stock birds from his own former strain, and is hopeful of again exhibiting in the near future.

Kindly state that I have removed from Buxton Avenue to The Border Fancy Aviaries, 1, Liverpool Terrace, Crewe, writes Mr. Thos. L. Hancocks. In consequence of this I am forced to part with many of my birds. Shall be pleased if secretaries will note, and forward schedules to the correct address.

Mr. Carter (Dulwich), and myself are appointed stewards of the British and Foreign sections at the forthcoming show of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. (November 5th and 6th), writes Mr. E. S. Lugg, and fanciers can rely on their most delicate exhibits having every care and attention.

Though I informed you of the Brighton F. and F.A. Show, I am not the secretary, writes Mr. C. Pearson, but only a member, the secretary being Mr. Fred Perrin (Market Street, Brighton). We have added to the classification classes for natural colour Norwich, Yorkshire, and Borders.

A big batch of testimonials from delighted clients has been sent for our inspection by Mr. W. A. Gore, the well-known dealer, of 131, Gooch Street, Birmingham. From the post-marks on the envelopes we note that all are of quite recent date, and so large a number shows that his birds and goods give wide satisfaction.

It may interest some of your readers to learn that I received the specials which I won at Crook C.B.S. Show, held on October 17th, fully two hours before I received my birds back on the same day on which the show was held, writes Mr. J. Foster (Darlington). I think this speaks well for the management, and it would be well indeed if others would follow this example, at least as far as possible.

The Dulwich O.S., we learn, have hit upon a novel idea for visiting in a body the various shows around the London district. They engage a motor waggonette and all start from their headquarters and return together. Clapham, Battersea, and Watford Shows have been visited. Mr. Bonar Law, M.P. for Dulwich, who is president of the society, has sent a substantial cheque towards the expenses of the forthcoming show.

The Crested Canary Club handbook reaches us from the hon. secretary, Mr. J. Tyson (169, Sloane Street, London, W.), and as usual is produced in really excellent style, and contains very full details of the doings of the club up to the present season. The balance-sheet shows that the C.C.C. is in a very flourishing condition financially, a fact on which the officials are to be congratulated. The secretary will be pleased to send a copy to anyone interested.

Great Entry at Newcastle.

Just as we go to press this wire comes to hand: "Newcastle Show has secured a great entry, 1,600 birds.—CURRY AND HUTCHINSON, secretaries."

The Swift in Captivity.

Looking over my old diaries, writes Mr. J. H. Verrall, I came across a reference to the death of my Swift. I picked this bird up from the ground, unable to fly, and fed it on raw beef and flies; it lived a fortnight. I should think this about a record for such a bird in captivity.

A Postponement at Northampton

I went to Northampton to report the Hand-in-Hand Show, writes our representative, but found upon arrival that the fixture had been postponed. I had previously written the secretary upon the matter, but he did not advise me as to the postponement.

Hotter than Hot!

The judge who handled the Hybrids at Glasgow City Show, writes a correspondent who signs himself "Painter and Paperhanger," unfortunately forgot his blue spectacles, and two or three of the exhibits so dazzled his eyes that he was obliged to pass them by, and put them "on the shelf." They were scorchers!

Which is Which?

Overheard at a recent Scottish Show.

First Joker: "Whit dae ye think o' the Scotch Fancies?"

Second Joker: "Whit dae ye think? Mon, there's none."

First Joker: "Whit are they, then?"

Second Joker: "Belgians."

First Joker: "An' whit are the Belgians?"

Second Joker: "The're Scotch Fancies."

Golden Orioles in Essex.

On Monday, October 12th, on a lonely marsh near a wood about three miles from Brightlingsea, in Essex, I saw two Golden Orioles, writes "Essex" to a weekly contemporary. These birds are, of course, rare visitors to England, but I have never heard of one being seen here so late as October 12th. Was their appearance a tribute to our exceptional weather? The birds were too shy to let me come nearer than about a hundred and fifty yards, but I watched them comfortably for some time through strong field-glasses.

A Sad Loss.

We regret to say that our lovely Crested Cock, 1st Watford last week, died on the second day of the show, from inflammation, write Messrs. Jones and Crest (Ipswich). It was the first time he had been shown, and had he lived he would undoubtedly have made a name for himself. Mr. Jones was at the show, and is pleased to say the members of the committee did all they could to bring him round; it was no fault of the management of the show, as that was perfect in every respect, and the members are a lot of real good fanciers, who were as sorry as he was over our loss.

A Standard Show Cage for British Hardbills.

THE above photograph depicts the standard pattern show-cage for Hardbills adopted by the National British Bird and Mule Club, after a lengthy discussion, and the appointing of a special committee to give the matter full consideration. Its adoption is the outcome of a feeling amongst keepers of British birds that the many odd patterns and sizes—to say nothing of "funny" designs and perches—in common use among exhibitors of these birds do not look well on the show-bench, to say nothing of giving rise to expressions of opinion that they "influence" the judges. Hence this effort to secure uniformity. It is not to be taken as an attempt to dictate to fanciers on the point, or to imply that cages of other patterns at present in use must be thrown on one side; all the N.B.B. and M.C. hope for is that members of the club and other exhibiting fanciers will, when they are ordering new cages, purchase those of this standard type. Any cage-makers will make them, and the colour of the inside and wires is left to the choice of the exhibitor. The particulars supplied by the Club are: Small size, for bird up to size of Twite, 11 in. long, 9½ in. high, 5 in. deep; second size, for birds up to size of Bullfinch, 12 in. long, 10 in. high, 5 in deep; third size, for Buntings and Bramblefinches, 13 in. long, 11 in. high, 5½ in. deep; large size, for such birds as Hawfinch and Crossbill, 14 in. long, 12 in. high, 6 in. deep. The two smaller sizes to be made with fronts of 16 gauge wire ⅝ inch mesh, bottom rail 1¾ in. high, and one crossbar 1½ in. above bottom rail. The two larger sizes with fronts of 14 gauge wire ⅝in. mesh; bottom rail 2in. high, and crossbar 2 in. above bottom rail. All cages to be fitted with two perches only, plain turned, with boss on back end, and secured to back of cage so as to be on a level with the crossbar. They must have a trough, and not drawer, for seed, in right-hand end. Water hole to be on third wire from right-hand end (between 2nd and 4th). All fronts to be bowed at top for about one inch. No crossbar along top portion of front.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES.

Swelling Around Eye.

A.G.—Unless you understand something of the anatomy of the parts, the best advice I can give you is to leave the swelling severely alone and trust to Nature to repair the mischief. In the hands of a veterinary surgeon, or one who had dissected birds, and had at least a superficial knowledge of the part, it would probably be a simple matter to open and evacuate the contents, but the question is whether the bird is worth the cost of having it done. An amateur at the business might easily make matters worse, and the most I would advise such a one to do is to carefully pluck out the feathers from the top of the swelling so as to lay the skin bare, bathe it in warm water a minute or two, dry carefully on soft rag, and just touch the bare spot with the tip of a small feather dipped in tincture of iodine.

Hope Deferred, etc.

W.W.D.—Your patience has certainly undergone a long test, and has doubtless given way and brought you at last to the heart-sickening point. But hold on to a good thing (hope is certainly one of them) a little longer, and I feel sure your patience is about to be rewarded. The "good spirits," coupled with a "good deal of twittering," is probably the prelude to renewed song. To help on this desirable end discontinue your present mode of feeding, and adopt the feeding and general treatment advised to "Mrs. L. Smith." In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, six of syrup of squills, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence in the drinking water every second day for a fortnight. Also add five drops of sherry to the sponge cake each time you give it until the bird is in song.

Injured Health.

M. J. Gallagher.—It is likely the bird's health has been seriously injured by hanging in the window, and your treatment and the unsuitable room have not helped to mend matters. If you cannot keep the bird in a brighter and more suitable room you must at least try to find a position for it where it can get a fair amount of light from the window, but will be quite away from all draughts and in a fairly equable temperature. Perhaps a box cage hanging on the wall immediately opposite the window will answer these requirements, or, as the room is so poorly lighted, if it is quite free from draughts, a backcage, with wires in front and sides only, hanging on the wall at the side of the window, or in the above-named position, would do. Continue giving your staple diet as now, and in addition a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake twice a week, well mixing five drops of sherry in it each time until bird is well, and on each of the other days a scrap of green food. Discontinue linseed and all other items save those named. Give fresh water every day, and for the first week add twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash, two days in every three. After first week give twenty drops of chemical food every second day, and five drops of tincture of steel on alternate days for a week, at the end of which time drop the tincture; but you may continue the chemical food for two or three weeks longer, if it appears necessary Examine the cage well for red mites.

Crest-bred and Norwich.

Going Blind.—1. The crest-bred is suffering from cataract, and is probably quite beyond the help of any remedy, but you may, if you wish, just for your own satisfaction, try the ointment recommended to "Anxious" in our last issue for a Yorkshire going blind, and use it the same as is there advised. 2. The Norwich has probably been in a draught or caught a chill in some way. Keep it in a comfortably warm and equable temperature now, and give it a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with five drops of sherry mixed in it every second day. In the drinking water add twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days five drops of tincture of steel. Give the steel on days when you are not giving the sponge cake.

Tired and found Wanting.

Ginger Bob.—Try following treatment, which I have little doubt will succeed where the aconite has failed. Keep the bird in a comfortable and equable temperature, and in addition to its usual seed diet, give it a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with five drops of sherry in it every second day, and on the alternate days add five drops of tincture of steel to its drinking water. Discontinue this as soon as the feathers have ceased dropping out. To cure the cold add twenty drops of whisky, ten of syrup of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus to its water every second day, and give this on the days when you are not giving the steel. Shake it well to break up the oil. If the cold is very bad you might omit the steel altogether for the first week, and give the last-named mixture daily until the cold is relieved.

Quite Laconic.

M.M.R.—'Tis said that "brevity is the soul of wit," but too much of it in a query is not very conducive to giving a really practical and helpful reply. A little more insight into your treatment would certainly have helped me to understand better what caused your bird's looseness of bowels, and to have advised with more confidence. Try following: Give hemp two a week only, and not more than half a teaspoonful each time; and three times a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake. Give no green food until looseness is removed. In the drinking water give twelve drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts, for one day only, as will cover a sixpence. After this dissolve a piece of gum arabic the size of a pea and as much carbonate of bismuth as will lie on a sixpence in the water each day for three days. If this does not remove the trouble write again and give a few particulars.

Norwich Acting Strangely.

C.F.—You do not say how the hen is fed, and this might have helped to explain the origin of the trouble, which is doubtless of an epileptic nature. Feed as advised to "Bird," but omit the hemp, and give instead a small piece of bread dipped in milk, with two drops of the emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed. In the drinking water give twelve drops of glycerine, five each of dandelion juice and tincture of gentian, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, every second day for a week; then omit it for a week, and give it again the third week. But when an attack comes on stop this medicine if you are giving it at the time, and give instead twelve drops of glycerine and as much bromide of potassium as will cover a sixpence in the water each day for four days. Then start at the beginning of the above treatment over again.

Cramp or Fit?

Mrs. L. Smith.—If you had described the bird's ailment, and said what mixed seeds you fed it upon, it would have helped me to give a more explicit reply. Try following treatment for a week, and if the bird does not rapidly improve write again and give the necessary particulars. For staple diet feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape seed. Twice a week give separately a few grains of hemp; twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake; and three times a week a spray of green food. Give these extra items on different days, and alternate them so that a different one is given each day. Keep its cage clean and strewn with gritty sand, and see that it is quite free from red mites. Keep in a comfortable temperature, but do not overheat it nor subject it to draughts. In the drinking water give ten drops of glycerine, five of lemon juice, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence each day for the first three days. After that omit the lemon juice, and substitute twenty drops of whisky and give every second day for a week; on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food, continuing the latter for a fortnight.

Not Moulting.

J.R.D.—Place the bird in a cool part of your kitchen for a few days, but not in any draught, then move it into the warmest corner, but again see it is free from draught, and do not put it where it is very warm during the day and proportionately cold at night. When you put it in the warm place begin to give it twenty drops of whisky and a few shreds of hay saffron in its water three times a week. If it begins to go off song and show signs of coming moult give it a vapour bath, as you will see described in a recent issue of CAGE BIRDS, and keep its cage covered and the bird warm afterwards, and the moult should run its course satisfactorily. As you say you feed as advised in this column for Rollers you doubtless give it crushed sponge cake twice a week. Add to this one of the following powders each time for the next fortnight, and it should help on the moult. For powders take as much flower of sulphur as will cover a threepenny piece, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence, mix well together, divide into four equal parts, and give one part for each dose, well mixing it in the soft food.

Bad from Birth.

Bird.—If I had a Norwich hen that sat humpy all day, breathed heavily, and had been in this condition ever since it was hatched, I should not think it worth troubling to cure. A dose of chloroform would perhaps be the most merciful treatment, as it will probably never be of any use, but always a source of worry and anxiety. Your feeding will not help to make matters better for a bird that is evidently one of the physically unfit, so if you want to try further treatment proceed as follows. As a staple give a mixture of three parts Canary to one summer rape. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of hemp, twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and three times a week a spray of watercress or other green food. Give alternately, and on different days, so that a different one is on hand each day. Keep cage clean and strewn with gritty sand; see it is quite free from red mites. In a comfortable but not overheated place, and quite free from draughts. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for three days; after that five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food. Drop the acid at the end of week, but continue chemical food for a fortnight. At the end of the fortnight begin over again and repeat the fortnight's treatment. Report progress at end of month.

Samples of Rape Seed.

H.F.—The sample is not summer rape at all, neither is it the ordinary kind of winter rape, though in appearance it resembles the latter. It is seed of some kind of brassicæ, but I do not profess to know of what species without growing some to see the plant. I should scarcely think the seed was the cause of your four birds dying unless you had been using it some time. For birds in large aviaries, especially seed-eating Britishers, I should not be afraid to use it in fair quantities. Summer rape is a much smaller seed than the sample you send, and is of a reddish-brown colour.

Better and no Worse.

C.N.W.—Am glad to hear the cock has got on so well under the treatment. That the hen has not made quite so good progress may be due to the fact that the moult has taken a little more out of her than out of the cock, and consequently she is not in such a favourable condition for throwing off the trouble. It would materially assist her to place her in a room with a fire until the moult is quite finished. If you cannot manage this without subjecting her to draughts or great fluctuations of heat, cover cage over at night in the room where she now is, and do not give her cold baths. Continue present treatment except that you must omit the glycerine from the eucalyptus mixture, and replace with ten drops of oxymel of squills, well mixing in the sponge cake each time three or four drops of cod liver oil emulsion. This should enable her to make a more speedy progress, but you need not be surprised if a little wheeziness remains until the moult is quite over.

Obstinate Diarrhœa.

G.C.L.—Withhold green food for a fortnight, and add to your present dietary of plain Canary seed a small teaspoonful of rape twice a week, a few grains of hemp or two other days, and a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake three times a week. Discontinue the bread and milk and other items you mention. In the drinking water give ten drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for one day only. After this give twenty drops of whisky, a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea, and as much carbonate of bismuth as will cover a sixpence in each two tablespoonfuls of water for three consecutive days, and every alternate day after until the diarrhœa has quite ceased. Shake this last mixture until the gum is dissolved. When the primary trouble is overcome, you may give five drop doses of tincture of steel every second day for a week to brace up the system. Keep the bird in a warm corner during the first few days' treatment, as the prolonged diarrhœa will make her very susceptible to chills.

Squeaking and Wheezing.

G.H.—As you say the birds are quite healthy and the squeaking noise they make is not wheezing, I am somewhat at a loss to know what it is. Is it a nervous squeak they make from fear when you are amongst them? If so, you can do nothing but by careful training accustom them to your presence. Am inclined to think, however, that the trouble is in reality wheeziness, and that they are exposed to either damp or draughts. Try and ascertain this, and remedy it if you find this suspicion correct, and withhold cold baths until the moult is finished. In addition to present diet, give a small teaspoonful of summer rape to each bird twice a week, half a teaspoonful of hemp twice a week, and a spray of green food three times a week. Give these separately and alternately so that they have a different one each day. In the drinking water give ten drops each glycerine and oxymel of squills, and a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea for a few days. Shake until the gum is dissolved.

The Dreadful Plague.

Bewildered.—There does not appear the least doubt about your having a virulent form of septic fever among your birds. Sorry I cannot hold out much hope for your getting rid of it. Your best course lies in absolute and thorough cleanliness and disinfection right through, and in dealing with the trouble generally as advised in Dr. Clarke's handbook (7d. from this office). Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one of summer rape, with a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake and two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it each day, and a little green food every second day. Cover cage floor all round with a thick layer of sawdust, and remove and burn it at least every second day; every day would be better. Disinfect all food and water vessels by boiling them frequently, and cremate any bird that dies at once. In the drinking water give thirty drops of brandy and as much boric acid every second day as will cover a sixpence until the plague is over. It may help the birds to win. Be careful not to introduce any fresh birds until some time after the plague has been obliterated and everything about the cages and room most thoroughly disinfected.

Bareness and Silence.

E. Pettie.—Am afraid you will not do much good with the bird that has lost its plumage. Keep it in a fairly warm and equable temperature; see its cage is quite free from red mites, and out of the reach of draughts. Give it a tepid bath in mild weather in which you have added enough Condy's Fluid to make the water light pink. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part rape, and every second day give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and on the alternate days a spray of green food after the end of the first week. Withhold the green food for the first week whilst the diarrhœa is being got over. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts for one day as will cover a sixpence, and for the next three days a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea, and as much carbonate of bismuth as will cover a sixpence. Shake until the gum is dissolved. After this give twenty drops of chemical food in the water every second day for a month. If the new plumage is not apparent at the end of this time write again and enclose this reply. Feed the German cock as advised above for a week or two, but instead of the oil in the crushed cake give five drops of sherry. In the drinking water give every second day for a fortnight twenty drops of whisky, ten of oxymel of squills, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence.

Blackbird with Fits.

J.D.—I have not been troubled with birds that have had fits, so my personal experience in the matter is slight. A friend of mine had a Thrush which suffered more or less badly from them, at intervals, and the trouble began just after the moult. He had not been feeding the bird properly, however; when he changed its diet it recovered. He gave it bromide of potassium as medicine (on my advice), and doubtless this helped; it is reputed to be an excellent remedy for fits in birds. I invariably find, however, that the food of birds addicted to them is faulty (poor). You, for instance, give bread soaked in milk, wretched fare for any Blackbird other than a nestling. Get a bag of "Melox," or Spratt's Puppy Meal, from a corn-dealer's, and use this, softened with hot water, mixed into the other food you mention. The latter, used dry, will absorb any superfluous moisture. If you try the potassium, get a 10 per cent. solution of it from a chemist's, and when the bird has an attack, give 8 or 10 drops direct into the beak. Further, for the rest of the day stir a small teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of its drinking water. But you must improve the feeding.

Concerning a Nightingale.

Mrs. H. Le W. Barré Bayly.—I have had many Nightingales in my time, and all my birds have been affected adversely by the winter's cold. I should certainly advise you not to try and keep your bird in a cold room when you have a heated one available. In severe spells of frost, indeed, I always snugly cover over the cages of my own 'Gales before departing for the Land of Nod. There can be no possible object in keeping your 'Gale in a dark place; these birds are as fond of light and sunshine as we ourselves are. If they are restless at the period of migration, then it is wise to keep them in a sort of "subdued corner." If your bird is a male, and used to cage life, also thoroughly over the moult, he should begin to warble a little very shortly. I recently had one or two which had made a beginning. The cock Canary is not likely to affect him—adversely, at any rate. Of course, you must provide all the live-food you possibly can for the bird, especially in the summer-time; it is absurd to say they "will not sing" on artificial food. I know very well this is not true. By the way, have just noticed you say your bird is "very wild"; well, he won't sing until he settles down (assuming it to be a male) to captive life. You should cut up the mealworms and rub them well into the stock-food. My general methods of feeding were given last week in the reply to "Birdy."

A Mixed Medley.

Mixed.—1. What a problem! How to "catch birds in an aviary too small to get inside, and too large to reach them from the outside." Hanged if I know. I can give you some good advice: either after the aviary so that you may enter, or smash it up. Here are three ideas: If the birds are small softbills, a spring net trap might be effective, though you might catch all the rest of the aviary ere you got the particular bird desired. If they are hardbills, then a trap-cage might answer, though the same objection applies. If you can use a net, like a small butterfly net (obtainable from many bird-shops) in the place, then this might help. 2. The sitting hens in an aviary will not hurt if they get the same seeds, etc., as the rest of the inmates. Anyway, short of netting them in, it is obviously impossible to prevent the good ladies taking whatsoever they listeth. 3. Almost weekly I explain to some reader or other that hen British birds are very unreliable in the matter of sitting on their eggs, and rearing their young to maturity, when in captivity, and this applies to all other than exceptionally extensive, well-shrubbed aviaries. Odd hens, here and there, behave all right. 4. You must read up articles on Hybrid breeding; the matter is too extensive for these columns. There is a very good one in the "Annual." 5. No known nest-box will prevent eggs being smashed if the birds are intent on smashing them—"trick" boxes excepted, of course.

Loss of Linnets.

Hoping to Learn.—To learn how to successfully keep alive every fresh-caught Linnet one buys is, as I expect you are aware, rather too much to hope for. Still, I have not personally lost a single one yet this season, and I have invested in a fair number; indeed, I think it has been an exceptionally good season for "straight," "hard" youngsters, as the dealers term them. Possibly you do not give your birds crushed seed, soaked seed, and a fair helping of wild seeds, when first caged, then gradually weaning them on to the dry, hard seed. You should certainly do this, for if at first given a diet comprising nothing but the latter, they are very prone to stomach derangement of some kind or other, and this digestive trouble results (sometimes only after weeks in captivity) in the birds "going light" (wasting away), though apparently eating a heap of seed—the food is not assimilated, consequently mal-nutrition is the inevitable result. A friend tells me he has been very successful with the following medicine: one ounce each of tincture of rhubarb and tincture of gentian, mixed; dose, half-a-teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. You could give this a trial; but don't wait until a bird is three-parts dead before you do so.

A Freak Goldfinch; also Red Mite.

A Beginner.—Are you quite sure your freak Goldfinch is genuine? You say you bought it from some "gipsies," who asked a big price for it, but eventually sold it you, together with a cock Goldfinch-Canary Hybrid, for 3s. the lot. A rare bargain, if true. But the "sweeping reduction" smells suspicious. They are not the kind of folk to give much away, and the fact that they asked a "big price" in the first place seems to show that they knew such a freak would have its value. I should feel inclined to wager the cock Mule is really a hen, and the freak really a fake. However, you naturally are the best judge as to the latter, and if it is genuine, then such a Goldfinch is certainly worth exhibiting in a class for rare feathered birds. It would stand no chance in an ordinary Goldfinch class. Couldn't say anything about value without seeing it. Red mite are easy to keep down, and to free cages from, providing they are not left lurking in crevices of the walls, etc., of the room. All you need is one part of turpentine and half-a-part of paraffin, mixed. Use a flat (1½in. or 2in.) paint-brush, and run the mixture into every joint and crevice (don't miss wire holes) in the cages. Not a mite will survive, while their eggs will be killed, too. Quassia is of little use for cages. As regards rubs, which is the use of making them only to break them? They are very plain.

A Trio.

Saddler.—1. I don't think there is much wrong with your Thrush—a touch of "indigestion" may be. It is a good plan to give the majority of Softbills a little saline medicine occasionally, and I expect a dose or two will soon put your own bird to rights. Try a teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. 2. It is most difficult to break Goldfinches of the habit of cautiously getting on the wires, and roosting there. A piece of glass fitted from cross-bar to top of cage will prevent the latter; or a perch (one of the movable kind) should be stuck between the wires just at the spot where the bird clings, if necessary coaxing him down on to it. If in a good big stock cage, there ought to be no fear of an exhibition Goldie "spoiling his tail in the wires." He ought to be too steady to do that. 3. Plants are harmful if their presence results in the atmosphere being a very damp one.

A Stock Mixture.

Mixture.—I really cannnt see that two or three hoppers (or pans) are very much more trouble to fill and attend to than one. Certainly the great saving they ensure makes it well worth our while to have them. You should at least keep the hemp in one pan mixed sunflower and safflower in another, and the rest of the seeds in a third. This would be a really excellent compromise. However, here is the mixture you desire: Canary four pints, hemp and teazle three pints each, charlock and summer rape one pint each, linseed (in winter) one pint, sunflower and safflower up to about a pint each, the exact quantity depending on the number of Greenfinches, Chaffinches, Bramblefinches, and Bullfinches there are in the place. Of course, you would give other seeds (wild seed mixture, for instance), now and again for a change, and live food and soft-food for the Buntings. Then your aviary inmates should flourish like the fabled green bay tree.

Cure for Scaly Legs.

T. McD.—The "cure for scaly legs" is to remove the scales. I have often in this column explained how to do it. It is quite easy, providing one has confidence in the handling of birds; and it need cause the bird but very slight pain, but rather bring great relief in its train. I usually heat a little oil fairly hot (enclose it in a suitable vessel, and immerse the latter in boiling water), soak the legs well in this, and then pick off the scales with my finger-nails, also sometimes using curved nail-scissors and a pair of nail clippers, which occasionally come in handy. Afterwards I wash the feet and legs in warm water, dry them and anoint them with a little healing ointment—Zambuk, boracic, or mild carbolic. Last week I scaled a bird's legs quite easily after soaking them in a lather made with carbolic soap and hot water. It is quite easy, if common care is exercised, so as not to violently wrench a leg or a toe, which, of course, may spell dislocation. If any blood be inadvertently drawn from one or other of the toe joints, touch the spot (after washing) with Friar's Balsam, or "New Skin."

Young and old Greenbirds.

A.B.—All Greenfinches take after the hen in colour when in nestling plumage; therefore youngsters are not easily sexed by those not well acquainted with such matters. If you see the brood together, then the young cocks are invariably perceptibly brighter (more yellowish) in tone of colour than the young hens. This is an accurate sign of sex, which, however, is not very helpful to the uninitiated when they see only one young bird at a time. Experience is needed then. 2. It seems incredible that anyone living in the country should say that the Greenfinch does not sing. Yet you state that "most people about here say they will not." Those folk must be written down as shockingly inaccurate observers. Why, an old cock Greenbird "breezing" away in the spring, when his soul is stirred by love's fires, can be heard half-a-mile off—more or less. Further, he sings very freely in captivity. I don't intend, however, to convey to you that the Greenfinch has a fine voice and melodious ditty—his music is more forceful than elegant. Still, I love to hear him singing whilst on the wing, in a kind of love flight, which he is fond of doing in the breeding season.

Show Cage for Nuthatch.

British Birds.—There is no accepted "correct pattern" for a Nuthatch's show-cage. Most exhibitors follow their own ideas. You don't want to have any perches, however, but the back lined with bark for the bird to cling to. A very nice cage would be one of the familiar box pattern (wired at front only), about 14in. long by 14 to 16in. high and 10 to 12in. from front to back. I like the cage this shape (like those Woodpeckers are usually shown in) The inside uncovered by the bark should be coloured French grey. The bark, by the way, should be as flat a piece as possible; there should be no space between the bark and the cage back. If a "tunnel" is left there, then the Nuthatch, if at all possible, will find his way inside it, and the judge will seek in vain to find out his good points. The case outside should be black. The food and water vessels should be made of tin, and swing into the cage through openings cut into the bottom rail of the cage-front; this is the usual style in show-cage for most of the softbills.

Management of Goldfinch Mule.

J. R. B. B.—I think you are quite right in giving the Goldfinch Mule a little "richer" seed diet than that usually given a Canary. If you go on the following lines so far as the general feeding of the bird is concerned, it should thrive admirably. I feed my own Goldie Mules in the same way. Mules will certainly thrive well in the all-wire household cages; at the same time, the box pattern cage (especially that known as the Finch stock cage) is unquestionably the best. A good seed mixture at this season of the year is:—Canary three parts, teazle two parts, hemp one part, charlock and summer rape half-part each, maw and linseed quarter-part each. In the hot weather reduce the hemp and linseed, and increase the teazle. Any of the special Finch or wild-seed mixtures advertised in our columns will make a good and acceptable change, given twice or so a week. A little sunflower seed twice or thrice a week would also be sure to be appreciated; crack it if necessary. Any of the usual green foods may be given, flowering groundsel (not coarse leaves), chickweed, shepherd's purse, dandelion, lettuce, watercress, etc. The three first-mentioned may be given practically ad libitum. All Mules are very fond of shepherd's purse.

Brevities.

Muling Linnets (B.G.).—It is entirely wrong for anyone to say that Linnets will not breed until they are two years old. I think you must have misunderstood the matter, and that what was meant to be conveyed was that they would not breed until housemoulted. Even this is far from correct, however, though certainly house moulted birds are the best for Muling purposes

Linnet Ailing (Anxious).—If your bird is now in a warm room, change his quarters to a cold one (say, a bedroom), or hang him outside for a night or two if you can ensure his being well protected from rain and cats. If he is in a cold room, then hang him in a warm corner of a heated room. No doubt if he got well started in the moult, he would soon pull himself together again.

Thrush Not Singing (H.S.).—The case is a curious one. If two Thrushes cannot see each other, it does not usually make any difference to their song; still, many cases have been known where one bird has "sung down" another. It reads almost as though you have got a hen. Hang the bird out in the sun two or three days, which ought to bring him out. Failing the latter, I think you will be quite justified in purchasing a successor—with, I hope, better luck.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Pennant in Poor Plumage.

Grimston.—Unless it is a case of the so-called "French moult," it will recover its plumage a little later, and as it is at present it will take no harm if kept out of draught. At the same time, except when it is really warm I should hardly put it outside, as there is a slight chilliness apparent when still, even in the sun, and of course it does not (I take it) take much exercise. Don't keep it in your warmest room. Any sunny room will do if the cage is kept out of draught. I should have another try with the chemical food; take the water away over night, and then try it in the morning, only slightly colouring the water to begin with. Try it with a little boiled maize (see that this does not go sour, or any stale bits get left about, as it only keeps fresh one day); if it will eat a little of this you can dust it with flowers of sulphur, for a few days, and then spot chemical food over for another few days; "ring the changes" on these. If it will not take the maize, your present diet is very satisfactory (let it have cuttlefish), and if it is not a case of constitutional weakness, it will recover its plumage in due course. Any dryish place on the skin can be lightly annointed with clean vaseline or cold cream. I should still try it with a little bit of such fruit as you have at table Pennants have always taken a little; at the same time it is not really necessary, if they are taking green food freely. Hope there will soon be an improvement.

Budgerigars Out of Doors.

"Budgerigar."—I do not think your Budgerigars will take any harm if left out, without any further protection than that afforded by the shelter. Of course if the wire netting front of aviary faces a very exposed windy situation, it would be better to put say a screen half wood and half glass before it. However I don't think this will be necessary. You will not be the first one that has kept Budgerigars out of doors all the year round, north of the Tweed. Give them oats regularly and a little hemp as well, in addition to their ordinary diet, when the cold weather really sets in. Keep a watch on the birds during the first sharp bit of frost we get, and I think you will find them quite indifferent to it. Of course if you have young in the nest, when the weather keeps very open, there will not be much chance of their being reared, and such late birds are seldom of much use, and lack stamina. I consider all birds that are now fully fledged will be perfectly safe out of doors.

Red-crested Cardinal.

E. Butler.—If you have a closed shelter house attached to your aviary, which could be closed at night, and the Cardinals are in good condition, you could safely put them outside. However, if they have come to hand in rather a ragged and generally unfit condition then you had better keep them in a roomy box cage indoors for the winter, turning them out in the spring. You might add oats, hemp, and sunflower, as extras, in small quantities, to your dietary, also a little greenfood, such as lettuce, chickweed, etc. The only Domino Finch I know is the Spice Bird, and while this bird agrees on the whole with the description you give, it has its undersurface more or less regularly scaled with crescentic, or oblique markings. The name Domino Finch is almost forgotten; it took me a good time to rake it up, as my memory played me false. The sexes are alike as to plumage, but the male can be picked out by his prodigious efforts at song (very little sound produced). Canary and millet seeds, with greenfood, grit, cuttlefish and water for drinking and bathing will suffice to keep these pretty little birds in condition for years. Both species are hardy if not subjected to draughts.

Dietary of Grey Parrots.

J. A. Restall.—You will readily understand that all seed mixtures must be mixed with common sense, however plainly given; environment modifies cases to such an extent—for instance, the Parrot continually in cage and another allowed to range about for short periods daily or several times a day, with a possible fly round the room. This latter bird could have quite a generous diet compared with the former. The diet you enumerate is a very wholesome one, and your birds should thrive on it. And I don't think you can improve upon it, save that you appear to be overdoing the sunflower a little; the birds like it undoubtedly, but it is an oily seed and unless your birds get plenty of exercise I should cut it down one half. In my seed mixtures, even for Parrakeets out of doors, I never permit hemp and sunflower combined to form more than a fifth part of the whole mixture. However, from the above you will be able to come to a safe conclusion as to whether your conditions meet the case of a presumably generous diet. I am rightly not permitted to recommend any special advertiser, but I may say this, either buy locally or where you can go and see it first, and buy only an alert, clear eyed, lively bird, and one that is so without any stirring up. Hope your handsome birds will continue to thrive, and that you'll have luck with your proposed purchase.

Budgerigars, Cockatoels, etc.

Novice.—(1) I never care to remove all the nesting husks for such birds as Budgerigars, etc., as they use these as night shelters during the bad weather. Still, it is equally dangerous to let them breed during the winter months, for besides exhausting the old birds, their progeny lack the stamina of those reared during the normal breeding season. If you have a good shelter shed for them to retire to at night and during severe weather, it will be quite safe to remove the husks as soon as the young have flown, with any eggs there may be. (2) The ring-neck is as large as a pigeon, but slimmer and has a long tail. I do not consider they would be safe with small birds in such an aviary as yours. (3) You could keep a pair each of Rosellas and Cockatoels with your Budgerigars, and the lot combined would make a very nice show series. These would agree and thrive together practically on the same diet.—"Popular Parrakeets," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatoels," 7d., both post free from this office, will fully meet your requirements.

Brevities.

Cage for Yellow Budgerigars (G. Nevill).—A cage about 15 inches long and enamelled black outside and sage green inside suits most birds, as well as any colour; such however is largely a matter of personal taste, and I have given you mine. I may say, however, there are very few birds which the above combination does not suit.

A Recovered Parrot (C. A. M.).—Glad to note treatment has been effective, as I feared the case was hopeless, and that the bird could not recover. Continue chemical food as stated, follow directions already given as to diet, and you should have no further trouble with the bird. For a bird to get into the condition yours had done, it had certainly had something unwholesome, inadvertently given. Examine your corn and refuse.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Seed Sieve (Jas. Thompson).—We cannot quite understand your sketch.

Cutting and Information (H. Smith).—Thanks for your kindness. We will give the information you supply our careful consideration.

Bird-catching (Bird-catcher).—We have sent your query along to our legal expert. We only reply by post under conditions mentioned in rule 7 at head of Query pages.

Breeding Cage (W. P. Farquhar).—You do not give sufficient explanation of the breeding cage. For instance, What is the "moist stuff which keeps the eggs moist, instead of them drying up"?

Letters (A. Mallett).—We are very pleased to hear from you, and thank you for your kindness.

Cutting (B. W. Ground).—Thanks for your thoughtfulness. We will certainly use if space permits.

Breeders of Birds (H. T. Russell).—It is contrary to our rules to recommend any particular breeder or breeders. If you consult our "Annual" (post free sixpence), you will find several breeders' cards therein, and can make your selection there from.

Information (Nottingham Reader).—We are very much obliged to you for the trouble you have taken, and will make inquiries into the matter. We do not like anonymous communications, however. Why did you not give us your own name and address?

Bird-Catching (N. Underwood).—Note latter part of reply to "Bird-catcher" this week. Your friend must surely have misunderstood the remark of the magistrate. We have not a copy of the order under the W.B.P.A. as it applies to your county; send a request for one, accompanied by a stamped addressed envelope, to the town clerk or chief of police. You will then see what birds are protected all the year round; species not scheduled you can, of course, legally catch in the open season.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (H.J., Rochester).—"Cbill" or inflammation of the liver and lungs.

I am pleased to inform you that I am having a record sale for my show cages, through my advertisement in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. Have had orders from all over the country, which speaks volumes for your paper as an advertising medium.—J. MARTIN (Castle-Douglas).

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR UDDINGSTON.

SIR,—At a meeting of fanciers held in the Reading room, Uddingston, on Friday, Oct. 16th, it was arranged to form a society called the Uddingston and District Ornithological Society. Another meeting will be held on Friday, Oct. 23rd, at 7 o'clock, in the same place, to enrol members. Fanciers are invited to attend.

A QUESTION FOR BIRD-CATCHERS

SIR,—Will you please allow me space in answer to the would-be Woodlark catcher? The best trap for catching these Softbills is the spring net trap, which can be had from almost any of the advertisers. First go out and locate the haunts of these birds, taking with you a quantity of game meal. Then select your best patch of ground and throw your game meal about for feeding the birds. Continue this for a few days, then take out your net traps (about three in number which you can purchase for 4s.), and set same on your chosen spot about 6 feet apart. Always go out early in the morning, and in this fashion you can ensure success. Your correspondent will find that his birds will thrive well on game meal when they are caught. I wish him every success.

G. ANDREWS.

SIMPLE SWIVEL FOR BIRD BRACES.

SIR,—I am enclosing a rough sketch of a simple bird brace swivel. First get a short length of brass wire, similar to that used for rabbit snaring, and an ordinary pin. You will please notice that the sketch is made larger than the actual swivel, so that it can be clearly described. Both ends of the wire are to be twisted the same way (either to the left or right). In sketch No. 2, the end of pin is cut (say a quarter of an inch) then bent to form an eye to attach to brace. I find that this kind is lighter than the usual watch-key swivel, and can be made to suit one's requirements. The only tool required is a pair of ordinary cutting pliers.

THE JUDGING AT SCOTTISH SHOWS.

SIR,—Your correspondent "Listener" remarks on the judging of Scotch Fancy Canaries. I think it is high time something was done regarding the judging of Norwich Plainhead classes at the bigger shows. I was present during the judging at a recent Glasgow show and watched the operation of placing the tickets. I won't call it "judging" the exhibits, as there were dozens of birds in the various classes which were positively never looked at, far less examined as to their merits. Now, what is the hidden reason of this? Is it because judges are too much rushed for time that they have to hurry over their classes and thus cannot give the birds justice, or what? Another point should be looked into, and that is that the member of committee appointed to place the birds upon the judging tables be a member toally disinterested in that particular section. It certainly looks very bad to see a judge conversing with such an assistant previous to affixing his awards. This, I think, would keep matters entirely free from suspicion. Let it be the duty of the committee to see that every bird is judged, and that it does not leave the judging table without receiving proper attention. In accepting the entrance fees they take on a moral responsibility to that effect, and exhibitors have a right to expect it. If this be done it will remove the now prevailing impression that unless one belongs to certain "factions," or "cliques," it is waste of time sending entries under certain judges. I should particularly call the attention of show officials to these points, otherwise entries will most certainly suffer in the future. I trust the above remarks will not be taken as being from the proverbial "disappointed exhibitor," but in the spirit of pointing out to judges the necessity of conscientiously executing the duties they have undertaken, and of giving every exhibit due consideration ere putting it upon the shelf.

D. S. COWANS.

SUSPENDED EXHIBITORS AND THE C.B.U.

SIR,—Respecting the letter from "One Who Was There," dealt with in Twitterings last week, I wish to contradict one of his statements, as the Peterborough Society had (and I believe every show under the C.B.U. rules has) a full list of exhibitors who are at the time suspended. The exhibitor he seems to refer to, was not on the list.

SYDNEY L. COCKS.

"SEND STAMP FOR REPLY."

SIR,—Like some of your other correspondents, I have also been a victim, but I am happy to state it is now about two years ago. I felt a bit riled, and therefore afterwards, when answering advertisements, I bought reply postcards, and wrote my name and address on the reply side. If I fail to get an answer I have the satisfaction of knowing, at the least, that I have not been "done," as the reply postcard is of no value or use to them, though they have received same.

SOFT SCOTTIE.

[Our correspondent seems to have overlooked the fact that the reply side of the postcard could have another name and address written on it (his own crossed out), and then be used. —EDITOR.]

THE SAID-TO-BE CHAFFINCH-CANARY HYBRID.

SIR,—In the report of Watford Show, I noticed the following: "Hybrids, light Can., 1, Andrews, the disputed Canary-Chaffinch in grand feather." Everyone can bet their best hat, or anything they value, that the first Chaffinch-Canary Mule that is bred, will not be eligible for a light Mule class. I suppose this bird is either a clear yellow Albino, or a variegated yellow Chaffinch. These birds are uncommon, but I have seen them. They do not show the beak or action of the Canary.

J. H. VERRALL.

[The bird Mr. Verrall refers to has an admixture of both buff and yellow-tinged feathers among the ordinary coloured Chaffinch plumage. We believe it was shown several times last season, and was generally "wrong-classed." It is an interesting bird.—EDITOR.]

WILL MULES BREED?

SIR,—It is with reluctance that I write these few lines on the above subject; but as no one has mentioned anything as to positively certain experiments, I feel compelled to do so. Might I ask your many readers if it is within their knowledge that a fancier has given a good test for the purpose of proving whether Mules are fertile or not? My idea of a test is this: a number of hen Mules and cock Canaries first year; cock Mules and hen Canaries second year; and cock and hen Mules together in the third year. Until a test somewhat similar to the above is carried out no one should confirm or negative the discussion. Mr. Verrall's statement might be construed into meaning that because the young were Canaries the eggs must have been changed. Mr. Wallace's statement that the young are Hybrids will be answered by what I state below. A number of Hybrids in plant life and a few in animal life are fertile; now the offspring of these hybrids will produce the original cross pure and distinct either to the male or female side of the first cross, and some will breed true to the grandparent to which they threw, although the parents were hybrid. So the fact that Canaries were bred from a Mule only goes to show that they follow the usual course of other fertile hybrids as regards breeding. I would suggest to Mr. Shields that he pair up the Canaries together this coming breeding season if he has the two sexes in the young birds, and let you know the result. Do not put fresh blood to them. As regards calling to see Mr. Shields' birds, I would have been honoured for an invite to have been extended to myself to see God's birds as human selection has made them.

FORWARD.

SIR,—I am very pleased to hear from your correspondent, but sorry he would not "break" the Lord's day by coming to see my friend's "new feathers." But as my friend is at his work all other days, he might have come and not seen them. He can, however, come on Saturday afternoon, any Saturday after one o'clock. My friend says, what is the use of sending them to Avonbridge Show, for fanciers that have been to see them say they don't believe the Goldfinch-Mule cannot (? is "can" intended here—Editor) be the father of them. Your correspondent asks if there were any young in the first nest. There was one reared: it was variegated like the cock bird. The hen was a buff that was paired to the Goldfinch-Mule, and the hen which was the mother of the Goldfinch-Mule was a cinnamon hen. I am very sorry to say the last youngster that was hatched has gone and joined the great majority. So there are just two left to see. My friend says that if he lives, and the Goldfinch-Mule and hen lives, he will try them next season again, and if they breed again he will let your readers hear about it.

PENRHIWCEIBER SHOW.

SIR,—Kindly state that we, the undermentioned, have no connection with the Penrhiwceiber Show to be held on October 28. We consider this explanation necessary to cage bird fanciers who may be sending exhibits, as both our names appear in the schedule as committeemen, whereas we have no connection whatever with the proposed show committee, or management.

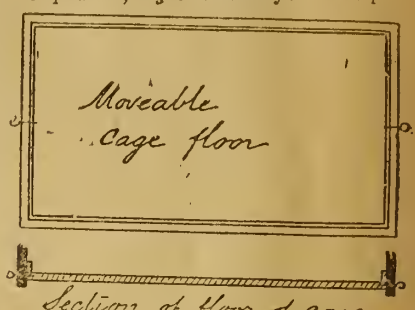
CARMARTHEN SHOW.

SIR,—Under the above heading last week there appeared a letter from Mr. Jack Francis, the hon. sec. of the Carmarthenshire Agricultural Society. I have plenty of work in connection with our show on November 5th, but I must find time to make a few little facts plain to your readers re the above. First of all, this show, as Mr. Francis states, is not the Carmarthen Xmas Show of fat stock, sheep, pigs, etc., but I maintain it is the Carmarthen Show of poultry, pigeons, and cage birds. I would like to ask Mr. Francis if his society has the sole use of the town's name, for I fail to see what other town's name I could use except the one where the show will be held? The Carmarthenshire Poultry, Pigeon, and Cage Bird Society is purely a fanciers' society, as its name implies, and I hope Mr. Francis will understand that the show which they are holding on November 5 is a genuine fanciers' show for fanciers. Mr. Francis wished to make it plain that his society had been in existence for 50 years. I don't contradict this, but at the same time I affirm there is such a thing as senile decay. My society has only been formed since last May, and we have nearly 100 names on the books, while I am having to call a special committee meeting to elect others. This show is our first venture, but we hope with the support of your readers it won't be our last. Everything is ship-shape, and I am now waiting only for entries. All exhibits will be in the hands of thorough practical fanciers, who will, I am sure, give every care and attention to their charges. I wonder why Mr. Francis did not write to you before re his society's claim to the word "Carmarthen," as I think it most unfair, and it seems as if his society is jealous of our prospect of success.

FRED KING, Hon. Sec.
Carmarthenshire P.P. and C.B.S.

A REMEDY FOR INSECTS AND MAGGOTS.



SIR,—On page 216 of CAGE BIRDS, October 10th, I see a query answered by your worthy expert (Claude St. John) headed "Insects and Maggots." I do not wish to dictate to your expert, and I feel sure he won't mind my taking the query up. We must all agree that the cleverest of men cannot be in possession of all knowledge whether theoretical or practical; at the same time, they do their best. I have had these pests, and was not satisfied till I found out the cause. If they are allowed to keep about, they will crawl all over the cages and bird-room, mostly in the sand-tray. But they do not interefre with the birds; they live on solids and not by suction, as the "mighty mite" does. Although they do not trouble the birds, they are detestable nuisances, and the smell of them about the place (especially when one is sweeping up) is like what we call "musty" or "mity" smell. If you had any sand from a tray where these were in, and took a watchmaker's strong glass, you would see thousands of them; they breed very quickly, and can scarcely be seen with the naked eye; but with the glass, they are seen to be little, clear yellowish insects, about the same colour as the little pebbles in the sand. This is the cause of their presence: using rice-husks or chaff in the cages; also husks from Canary seed, as some save it up and use in the cages; to make things more economical still using sand again and again, week after week without washing it; having the seed refuse and soiled sand after the excreta is sifted away, with the cells from the husks and the powdered seed from the birds beaks, getting wet and dry from bathing—this is the means of creating these insects, the same being food for them. The use of stale sand ought to be avoided, or at times the user will have to pay dear for it, not knowing the cause. A certain cure for this trouble is the following: Put a ½ of an ounce of eucalyptus oil into a bowl of water and wash all cages, always using clean sand. There will be no more trouble then. If the encouragement is not there, these pests will not come. How much better it would be for the Fancy if some of the fanciers would be more open and straight with their experiences, and not make so many so-called secrets, as is done amongst many working men especially.

A REMOVABLE CAGE BOTTOM.

SIR,—I have seen various letters, etc., concerning birds moulting, such as giving saffron, plunging them into heat, or vice versa, giving cold tea to drink, shutting up in a cupboard, tieing up in cloth (as Ma would the puddings). Nature says that birds shall moult every year, so watch and assist them in this manner. When the small feathers commence to fall out, avoid draughts, give better food, disturb bird as little as possible, and about the finish of moult add to the drinking water a little Parrish's Chemical Food or a little sulphate of iron (but watch bird does not get constipated) and nature will do the rest. If you have to answer the red-mite question, try this remedy: Get a piece of marble, sprinkle it with snuff, and the "fleas" will take a pinch and dash their brains out! Then in future his house will be in order. I am sending you along a pattern of cage bottom, which may not be known to many in our Fancy; no shaking bird up whilst cleaning out, or disturbing him in any way. I have used them for various sorts of cages, back cages and show cages. You simply have to pull out the pins, when out falls the bottom, with every particle of dirt. Scrape it clean, put on fresh sand, and you can put it back quite as easily. You need not wake your bird from his sleep, if you prefer slumber time for operations, as I myself am sometimes compelled to do. This bottom is easily made in wood, but if in metal a little skill with soldering iron is required. It is exactly like a tin lid which fits from the inside instead of on the outside.

G. HARDY.

THE ROSE-BREASTED GROSBEAK.

SIR,—I can assure Mr. Wesley T. Page that about thirty years ago, Rose-breasted Grosbeaks were imported alive into this country. I am not at all surprised that Dr. Russ praises this bird very highly. I consider it the most melodious songster of all the hard-billed foreign birds. About thirty years ago I wanted a live Pine Grosbeak. I had a stuffed one which had been shot in Sussex, and any bird that I saw advertised of somewhat similar colour to the Pine, I purchased, and that was how I obtained my first Rose-breasted Grosbeak in 1879. Being so pleased with its song, and its hardiness, and being able to feed it on Canary and hemp seeds, I afterwards purchased others; the last memo. note for them that I have is dated March, 1886: "Rose-breasted Grosbeak, found dead, too fat, in outdoor aviary." I did not buy any after this date, as although, as a rule, it was perfectly harmless to other birds flying in the aviary, I caught this last one making a meal off a nest of Goldfinch-Linnet Hybrids. I am surprised that these birds are never now advertised for sale. I gave 12s. 6d. each for all that I had. The rose colour on the breast is not very conspicuous, but when the bird flies, it shows distinctly under the wings. About the same time I had these birds I also purchased some Red-shouldered Starlings and Bob-o-links, which I never now see advertised. Neither do I see Purple Finches offered for sale—a bird that every Hybrid-breeder should buy to try to breed from. They are also excellent songsters and very hardy.

MEALWORMS AND SOME STRANGE BEETLES.

SIR,—"Very Anxious," in your issue of October 10, is deeply concerned about some strange insects amongst his mealworms. If he would try experiments as I have done, he would find they originate from decayed matter; neither the strange insects nor the decayed matter ought to be there. His mealworm box ought to smell as wholesome as a meal bin in a country windmill (which I have had some little to do with). Where do these fat, healthy, mealworms in a meal bin come from? You don't find dog biscuits, poultry food, dead birds, rags, etc., put in there to make them; when you do this sort of thing you add very unpleasant trouble to your box, besides creating these insects. Your best plan is to get rid of this trouble at once, sift your worms from the contents of the box, and put them into clean bran, till you can make a new box, and burn the refuse. After this, go to a little trouble (for the Fancy, although a pleasure and very interesting, is far from a lazy man's hobby, and cannot be made successful without a little trouble), and get some ¾in. wood and make a box a foot all ways, with a sliding lid like a pencil box. Tack strips of zinc round the top inside, 2ins. deep, to keep the worms from crawling up; bore half-inch holes in the lid covered with gauze for ventilation, or an unpleasant moisture will set in. Then fill your box (as described many times in CAGE BIRDS) with the fresh bran and meal bagging, with a little barley-meal mixed. Turn your worms in, and you will have no unpleasantness. If you want to give them a little change of food, put a slice or two of brown or wholemeal bread on the top, and your birds will repay you for your fat and healthy mealworms. I advocate wood instead of tin, as it is warmer. I trust the above may be the means of helping "Very Anxious."

A. MALLETT.

A POLICEMAN'S ALLEGED HIGH-HANDED ACTION.

SIR,—Being a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS I beg to ask if you could give me any information as to what would be best for me to do in the case which has befallen me. Living in a district where Goldfinches are plentiful, and having a great liking for this beautiful bird, I managed to get a trap-cage, and having an old Finch (in my possession for over 12 months) I endeavoured to get or catch a young one. Not having the good fortune to catch a young Finch, I last week bought one from an old friend. Yesterday morning I placed the old Finch in my trap-cage and set the trap, putting at the same time the young Finch I had bought in a small cage on the top of the trap-cage. It is a double trap, so of course I put the small cage on one of the trap lids and used only one trap. These cages I placed in my garden hedge, which was against another garden, a part of which was rented by our constable, P.C. T——. He was not on duty, but was on sick list. P.C. T—— on seeing my cages, came over the garden hedge and took the cages, with birds, away. My wife saw him take them, as I was away from home at work. There was no bird caught in the trap. When I came home my wife told me what had happened, and I went over to the constable and demanded my birds. He told me he should not give them up until he was of a mind to. He said, you had a young bird in the cage and you had no right to. When I told him I had bought the young bird, of course, he asked where? I declined to tell him; I told him that was no part of the case. He then said: "Well, now, the quicker you clear outside the better." So, of course, I wished him good night. Would it be asking too much of you to give me your opinion on the matter, as I am only a working man. My wife is also very ill (suffering from consumption), so I can therefore ill-afford to be put to a great expense. Do you thing the P.C. is justified in taking my birds in this manner? He said my cages were evidently put out for the purpose of catching Goldfinches, so the matter would be reported. If you could give me any little advice I should be very grateful.

HENRY SAUNDERS.

(Our correspondent's letter we sent at once to our legal adviser, a barrister-at-law, and his reply was forwarded on as soon as it came to hand. It read: "If the facts are as set forth in the above letter, the police constable has committed larceny. If he has seized the cage in the execution of his duty he should have reported the matter at once, and our correspondent would have learnt officially that he had done so. In any event, the officer has no right to retain the cage for his own personal use. That is nothing but theft. We advise our correspondent to threaten the officer with legal proceedings unless his property is at once returned, and if this is not effective, to place the matter in the hands of a solicitor."—EDITOR.)

WHAT OTHERS THINK.

Some Interesting Opinions.

The career of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL has been a phenominally successful one, on all hands being heard nothing but praise of its helpful contents. But the 1908 Annual has surpassed all that have gone before in the widespread outburst of congratulatory comments evoked by its beautiful illustrations and many practical articles and valuable special features. If you do not possess a copy, you cannot be up-to-date in your knowledge concerning the cage-bird hobby. We do not ask you to take OUR word for this; we ask you to glance down these letters from some of the leading fanciers of the day.

Mr. J. A. Eckersley.

(The respected President of the Norwich Plainhead Club, and a very successful exhibitor of that variety.)

Your ANNUAL contains a wealth of useful information that cannot fail to be immensely helpful to the beginner. It is also highly valuable as a handy book of reference for the experienced fancier, and it should certainly be found wherever there is a bird-room.—J. ANDREWS ECKERSLEY.

Mr. Thos. Robson.

(This well-known North-country fancier is secretary of the Northern Crest Club, and well-known as an exhibitor of the Crested Canary.)

The usefulness of the ANNUAL can hardly be over-estimated. I beg to say I got a dozen copies early in the year, and they were eagerly taken from me by fanciers the same night. I enjoyed reading the various articles very much, particularly those by Messrs. House and Houlton. I think, from the exhibition fancier's point of view, and, indeed, from all, it would be very hard to beat.—THOS. ROBSON.

Mr. J. H. Payne.

(There is no more popular and respected judge than Mr. Payne, who in his day was also one of our most successful exhibitors.)

It would be quite impossible to speak too highly of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. It is a grand publication in every way, most instructive to the novice, and very interesting to the oldest hand. Certainly no bird keeper should be without a copy. I am sure if such a book had been on the market during my early days in the Fancy, there would have been no difficulty in getting for it ten times its present price.—J. H. PAYNE.

Mr. Geo. Crabb.

(A keen lover of birds, and for many years the honoured President of the L. and P.O.S.)

During the holiday times I have had another opportuuity of again looking over your CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, and I must say I consider it a wonderfully useful book of reference both for novices and for breeders of experience. It would, perhaps, be invidious to single out any particular points of merit, but the items that appealed most to me were the beautifully-drawn and well-coloured sketch of the Bramble-finch-Chaffinch Hybrid, and also the "Washing" sketches and description. Novices should not neglect washing their birds. Many a prize has been secured by "finish."—G. CRABB.

Mr. J. Trengove.

(Holder of the Challenge Cup of the Norwich Plainhead Club, and famous as a winner of numerous prizes.)

Allow me to congratulate you on your latest (1908) issue of CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I think it is far superior to any previous number. Its illustrations are works of art, and the book is a real help to the champion, and guide to the amateur.—J. TRENGOVE.

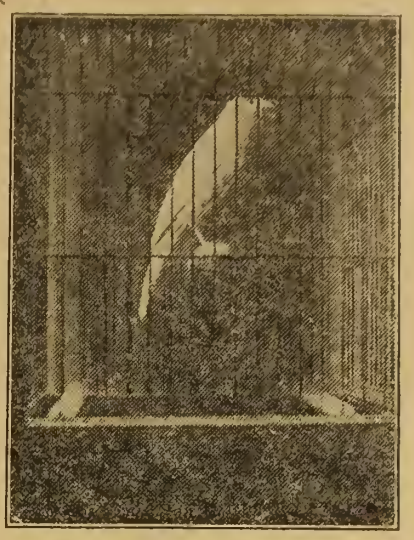
Mr. J. Bailey.

(The firm of Messrs. Bailey and Swanger is known wherever there are lovers of the graceful Yorkshire Canary. They are holders of the splendid Y.C.C. challenge trophy.)

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, I must say, is A1. I am sure it improves every season, and the 1908 issue is splendid. I don't wonder at your having such a large sale for it, as I call it most valuable, especially to beginners.—J. BAILEY.

Mr. W. Vardy.

(Another of our present-day judges, and a highly popular official. A past winner of the Norwich Plainhead Club's Cup, and still an exhibitor whose birds have to be reckoned with.)



I think no fancier should be without CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I refer to it for many things myself. It is useful to us old fanciers as well as to new ones—the cheapest six-pennyworth it is possible for bird fanciers to get.—W. VARDY.

Mr. Paddock's Yorkshire.

With reference to the above photograph, Mr. Paddock writes: The bird depicted is one of my Yorkshires. It is a most typical bird, and has won in very keen competition, several times over our Northern friends. In all, it has placed about 12 firsts to my credit, and won the King's Heath bowl twice following, besides several other specials. Judges: Payne, Battye, Russell, Bexson, and others. The picture accentuates that which you have often commented upon, viz., the great difficulty in photographing Canaries. I thought it might interest readers.

THE SHOWS.

PLYMOUTH (W.C.O.S.)

What Newcastle and Manchester are to the North, Plymouth is to the West, and in the long stretch of country from London to Penzance is easily first in the realms of cage birds. The position of the W.C.O.S. is and has been unique for more than a generation; in its younger days it was lusty and strong, and even now, when ripened and mellowed by age (next year being its jubilee), it is as vigorous and thrustful as ever. Of its intense virility the show held in the Corn Exchange on October 20th and 21st gave ample proof, the magnificent entry of 622 being recorded.

Yorkshires, with five open classes, had the splendid entry of 71, and the quality right through was very high class. A number of the exhibits have not yet got used to the show cages, and were very timid and shy when handled, whilst a number had not quite finished the moult. Yorkshires are evidently making headway down West.

Norwich which, like the Yorkshires, were judged by Mr. House, were under the patronage of the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club, had eight classes, and totalled 143, whilst the quality was simply wonderful. Plymouth from its early days has ever been one of our strongest centres of Norwich breeding, and never was it stronger than it is to-day; it was therefore to be expected that the local breeders would come well out of the contest with their brethren from a distance, and this they did in no mean style. Mr. Colling's was second in buff ticks with a lovely bird which notched the first win for his persevering owner on the new challenge cup. Our readers will hear with deep regret that Mr. Collings has for some weeks been suffering severely from a most painful internal malady, but we are pleased to say that although still confined to his room he has turned the corner. Amongst the exhibits from a distance deserving of note were those of Messrs. E. Baker, J. Hodder, J. W. Rennie, C. H. Withers, Hopkins and Allsop, T. J. Rickard, and W. R. Miles.

Mr. Robson had a grand display of Crests and Crest-breds to test his powers of discrimination, and he got through well. Local breeders did not do so well as we have seen them in the days of yore, the only first prizes which they captured being those secured by Mr. W. G. French. Other local breeders who staged good birds and caught the judge's eye were Messrs. R. B. Tope, C. T. Hoar, J. Ryder (who was fortunate enough to keep one of the C.C.C. specials in Plymouth), and A. Richards. Amongst the birds from outside were some gems of the first water, and with the exception of the fine team which Mr. Lazarus sent down from London, and which did so much execution, most of them came from the home county, to wit, those of Messrs. Bale, Evins Bros., and Piper, whilst the West was also well represented by the teams of Messrs. T. J. King, Menadue, J. and J. Symons, and Rev. J. G. Joyce. The Hybrid and British section were both rather short in numbers, the clashing with Bristol evidently affecting the entry. The exhibits were of good quality, notably the light Mule class; here almost any bird might have been selected for premier honours so closely did they press each other. The cup for best Mule or Hybrid bred during the year was won by a lightly-marked Goldie Canary, the reserve bird being a Greenfinch-Bullie, good colour, nice size.

The management of the show was splendid in every detail. As the birds arrived they were unpacked, their numbers checked off, immediately staged, fed, and watered. There were plenty of willing stewards, and everything was done that could be done to render both exhibits and visitors comfortable. Judging started at 8.40, was over about 1.30, and catalogues with awards in the margin were on sale by two o'clock. Mr. T. Pope again acted as secretary, having as his assistant Mr. W. A. Dyer, and two better secretaries the W.C.O.S. has never had. Prompt, business-like, and courteous in all that pertained to their office, they did much to further the success of this the forty-ninth show of the society. Mr. Dart, the popular chairman, was most energetic in directing the work of the stewards, amongst whom were included such good and tried fanciers as Messrs. W. French (vice-chairman), F. Wills, E. Lott, W. C. Deeble, C. Hoar, G. Garland, J. Ryder, F. G. Snell, W. H. Tottle, H. Farmer, C. Jewell, C. Reed, S. Tucker, J. C. Rowe, L. S. B. Clark, and G. Pridham, whilst others who rendered valuable assistance were the veterans Cheney and Spillman. The venture was most successful from a fanciers standpoint, and we trust it was so financially. Next year is the jubilee, and we believe the committee intend celebrating it in a manner worthy of the occasion and the reputation of our oldest ornithological society.

Mr. House's Classes.

YORKS. YELL. (10): 1, spl, Ellis, slim, stylish cheek-marked, fine head and neck, rare wings and tail, lovely feather and position; 2, Lovell, very slim and magnificent shape, colour, and quality, but does not get up on his legs so well; 3, Woodley, grand body, rare shape and quality, nice colour, very racy and stylish, beaten in head; 4, Burton, a grand stamp of Yorkie, but not so tight in feather as the leaders; vhc, Pope, very shapely, nice quality, but needs training; hc, Chirgwin; c, Jewell. BUFF (17): 1, spl, Banks, sweet clear, very smart, racy, and stylish in carriage, grand silky feather, tapers away very nicely right through; 2, vhc, Woodley, grizzled on cheek, very shapely bird of lovely quality, very racy, but does not get up to his work; 3, Parnell and Son, very slim and grandly modelled, rare quality of feather, grand position, but hardly ready; 4, Tringham, rare shape and style, full of nerve, grand wings and tail, but not tightened up yet; hc, Stone and Elstow; c, Clark. VARIEG. (9): 1, spl, Burton, three-pointed cinnamon-marked, a bird of wonderful quality, rare shape and style, stands like a soldier, and feathered like a Java; 2, Banks, beautifully feathered, eye and wing-marked, rare carriage and action, not so slimly built; 3, Harries, a variegated, feathered like glass, wonderful position, handles extremely well, just a shade too corpulent; 4, Tringham, another very stylish variegated, better shape than 3rd, but not so fine feather or carriage; vhc, Large, grand eye and wing-marked, not ready; hc, Chirgwin; c, Parrish. UNFLIG. (13): 1, spl, Parnell and Son, very charming eye and wing-marked, as tight as wax and rare sheen, grand shape, full of nerve, and handles well; 2, Woodley, very slim, grandly shaped yellow, nice colour and beautiful shape, but does not get up straight enough; 3, Jeffries, neck ticked yellow, beautiful shape and quality of feather, very smart and stylish, needs a bit more length; 4, Hodge, nice shaped, stylish buff, good head, back, wings and tail, stands well, but has not yet tightened up; vhc, Ellis, grand positioned, nice feathered buff, bit stout in waist; hc, Lovell; c, Wills. HEN (16): 1, spl, Banks, very smart little lassie, full of style, grandly figured, and her coat fitted her to perfection, a wing ticked yellow; 2, spl, Lovell, wing ticked buff, a really grand Yorkie, full of stylo and quality, nice shape and position, hardly ready; 3, Gregory, grand topped yellow, stands to attention like a soldier, beautiful quality and shape, but opens her tail a bit; 4, Harries, grandly feathered, grizzled cap and tail yellow, very stylish, handling well, but has just a trifle too much waist; vhc, Jeffrey, sweetly modelled buff, grand feather, short on leg; hc, Wills; c, Tringham. MEMBERS' YELL. (6): 1, spl, Woodley, very slim and sleek, handles well, and comports himself as a high-class Yorkie should; 2, vhc, Harries, longer and also stouter, grand style and quality of feather; 3, Olver, ticked on head, very sweet and neat, grand feather; 4, hc, Clark, grand shape and feather, not so steady. BUFF (7): 1, spl, Harries, wonderful feather and style, capital shape, well shown; 2, Woodley, not so neat in head, grand shaped body, beautiful feather and carriage; 3, Jewell, grandly shaped and nice feathers, not used to show cage; 4, c, Large; vhc, Olver; hc, Clark. VARIEG. YELL. (3): 1, spl, Olver; 2, Clark; 3, Large; nothing special in this class. BUFF (4): 1, spl, Jewell, very sweet up and wing-marked, nice quality and style; 2, Clark, beautiful quality, capital shape, and very showy; 3, Harries, nice shapely cinnamon-marked; 4, Large. HEN, YELL. (8): 1, c, spl, and challenge cup, Clark, a charming yellow, lovely head and neck, grand wings and tail, beautiful figure, and carries herself well; 2, Harries, eye and cheek marked, grand quality and style, needs length; 3, vhc, Jewell, eye and wing ticked, rare shape and feather, grand carriage, hardly ready; 4, hc, Olver; wrong class 5, Clark, too mealy for yellow. BUFF (5): 1, spl, Harries, beautifully feathered, sweet head, grand position, and rare style; 2, 4, Jewell, hardly so slim, grandly feathered and very stylish; 3, Clark, nice shape and feather, but did not like handling; vhc, Large. NOR. YELL. (21): 1, spl, Spillman, rare Bullfinch shape, stout chubby head and cheeks, rare neck and chest, very short wings and tail, grand quality, and holds himself well across perch; 2, Rennie, much richer in colour, grandly feathered, nice deep wide chest, good wings and tail, not so stout in head and neck; 3, Gill and Pethick, smart stylish beautifully-feathered bird, very sound and rich in colour, nice head, not so chubby in body; 4, Hodder, very short, compact, chubby-bodied bird of grand colour, shows himself well, but was not well put down; vhc, Collings, a grand-shaped bird, not ready; hc, Miles; c, Banbury. BUFF (14): 1, spl, Hodder, not so chubby in head as he might be, yet his grand-shaped body, with his rich even colour and tight glistening coat pulled him through; 2, E. Baker, very hot in colour, lovely quality and finish of feather, grand-shaped body, could do with a bit more head; 3, Spillman, very tight and compact in feather, rare chest and back, capital wings and tail, hardly so much colour; 4, Kilby, splendid colour and quality of feather, grand chest and back, neat wings and tail, not enough rise of skull; vhc, Yates, rare colour and quality, nice shape, bit open; hc, Rennie; c, Miles. TKD. YELL. (13): 1, spl, Spillman, very short, plump, cobby grizzled cap bird, neat wings and tail, rare quality of feather, nice even colour, but somewhat pale, won 1st in young class last year; 2, Midgley, thigh ticked, wonderful colour and quality, magnificent head and neck, rare chest, but quite long enough, a good big 'un; 3, Parish, wing-marked, grand colour, nice chubby body, well feathered, shows just a suspicion of browing; 4, vhc, E. Baker, very sweet wing-marked, grand colour and quality of feather, not tightened up yet, and was a bit horny; hc, Collings; c, Banbury. BUFF (18): 1, spl, Richard, wing-marked, very short and chubby, nice even colour, well and regularly mealed, very tight in feather, and hold himself well; 2, Collings, takes members' challenge cup, eye marked, richer in colour, very bold-looking bird, nice head and chest, not so well mealed; 3, Tottle, ticked wing, hardly so chubby in head, lovely shaped body, superb colour, and quality of feather; 4, Rennie, wing and eye marked, not so stout, but magnificent colour and quality of feather; vhc, Garland, sweet eye marked, lovely quality, hardly so stout; hc, Snell; c, Boyden. UNFLIG. YELL. (20): 1, spl, Hopkins and Allsop, eye marked, very compact in body, grand rich even colour, feathered to perfection, a very smart and typical bird; 2, Withers, grizzled tail, a bird of wonderful quality, rich level colour, nice shape and holds himself well across perch; 3, Rennie, very hot in colour, rare shape, grand quality of feather, needs steadying, wins Sandiford's colour-feed special; 4, Spillman, grand shape, nice even colour, capital quality of feather, in fact a bit too fine, and horns slightly; vhc, Midgley, grand colour and quality of feather, not so deep in chest; c, Collings. BUFF (18): 1, spl, G. J. Baker, very handsome grizzled cup, short chubby bird, grand head and neck, beautiful colour, and very tightly feathered; 2, Spillman, saddle-marked, stouter head, neck, and body, very short wings and tail, nice even colour, compact in feather but just lacks polish of winner; 3, Gill and Pethick, grand showy clear of rare quality and colour, in grand form, hardly so stoutly built as the leaders; 4, Rickard, eye ticked, one of the best shaped birds in the class, nice even colour and grandly moulded, shown in a very dirty cage, and needed a wash himself; vhc, Rennie, rare colour and quality, nice-shaped body, hardly so stout in head; hc, Garland; c, Miles. HEN, YELL. (18): 1, spl, Collings, short, stout and cobby right through, an almost ideal Norwich hen, beautiful rich even colour, and the finest of silky feather; 2, Spillman, lovely colour and quality of feather, rare chest and back, capital wings, not so chubby in head; 3, Miles, very nice shaped, eye ticked, beautiful colour and quality of feather, does not carry himself so well; 4, Tottle, marked eye and vent, as tight as wax, beautifully even in colour, rare shaped body, loses in head; vhc, hc, Bailey, grand shape and colour, not quite ready; c, E. Baker. BUFF (21): 1, spl, E. Baker, ticked on head, very short and compact in shape, rare quality of feather, rich even colour, and beautifully frosted; 2, Hodder, variegate splendid shape and style, capital colour, nice fine feather, but not so tight as winner; 3, Hopkins and Allsop, a wonderful clear for colour, shape and quality of feather, but she is a bit awkward with her wings; 4, Gill and Pethick, not so chubby, but lovely colour and quality, and beautifully mealed on rich undercolour; vhc, White, grand-shaped saddle-marked, nice colour and quality, bit horny; hc, Collings; c, Stroud. MEMBERS' YELL. (11): 1, spl, Collings, a bird of rare shape, colour, and quality, was reserve for challenge cup; 2, Tucker, not so nicely moulded in head, capital chest, neat wings and tail, good colour and feather; 3, Ruse, very hot in colour, rare quality, nice type, but horny; 4, vhc, Spillman, nice feather and colour, not so stout; hc, Parrish; c, Bailey. BUFF (18): 1, 3, spl, Rowe, not the largest, but rare nice type, with splendid colour and quality of feather; 2, Bailey, grand shape and quality of feather, even but not so hot in colour; 4, French; vhc, Tope; hc, Tucker; c, Collings. TKD. YELL (10): 1, spl, 2, Garland, heavily variegated and a wing-marked, two grand-shaped birds, beautiful colour and quality of feather; 3, 4, French, two grand-shaped birds of nice quality, but not so steady; vhc, c, Spillman; hc, Baker. BUFF (15): 1, spl, Tucker, wing-marked, grand shape, colour, and quality, very smart; 2, Collings, thigh marked, grand shape and feather, not so even in colour; 3, c, Spillman, nice shapely head, marked, not so rich in colour; 4, Garland; vhc, Ruse; hc, French. HEN, YELL. (10): 1, spl, Ruse, very short cobby bird of lovely colour and feather, ticked on head; 2, Collings, clean, of good feather and colour, not so short; 3, Garland, rare shaped clear, not so steady, nice feather; 4, Spillman; vhc, Bailey; hc, Parrish; c, Tucker. BUFF (15): 1, spl, Ruse, very neat-bodied, saddle-marked, capital colour and feather; 2, Spillman, nice shapely clear, not so fine in feather; 3, vhc, Garland, check and neck marked, grandly feathered; 4, Bailey; hc, Snell; c, Collings.

It will be seen from the report published in another column that the proposed Federation of London Cage Bird Societies is now no longer a proposal but an accomplished fact. The question of 'clashing with the Cage Bird Union seems to have had no existence in fact, seeing that the Federation will exercise jurisdiction only over members' shows and the members' classes at open shows held within the Metropolitan Police area.

GRIMSBY.

The second annual show connected with the Grimsby and Dist. O.S. was held on October 20, 21. There was a good classification, as well as good prize money and specials. Entries turned up to the tune of 307, just about the same as last year's total. The Corn Exchange, where the specimens were housed, is very spacious, lofty and of nice light (electricity by night), and is situated in close proximity to the station. It commends itself as a very suitable place for such an occasion. At the opening ceremony Lady Doughty, wife of Sir George Doughty, M.P., officiated, making a most dainty speech. Miss Dolly Stubbs, young daughter of Mr. H. E. Stubbs (chairman of the Society) presented to her ladyship a very pretty bouquet of flowers; needless to say, it gave great pleasure. The vice-chairman is Mr. R. Robinson. The committee consists of well-known and well-tried funciers, in Messrs. Cotterill, Cartwright, Dowie, Drayton, Good, Moore, Metcalfe, Pett and Way. Each and every one did all in their power to help things along in the way they should go, and are to be highly complimented for the exertions they put forth. The treasurer is Mr. B. Harding, and the hon. auctioneer Mr. J. W. Harness, a couple of most useful officials. The secretaries are Messrs. Moore and Crowston. A better pair of workers it would be very difficult to find. Both are extremely courteous and obliging, being always on the move, and great praise is due to them for the manner in which they manipulated their work. The catalogue opened with the Norwich Plainheads, which were admitted to be grand. Most of the plums in this section fell into the hands of the following: Messrs. W. H. Moore, A. H. Waters, W. T. Pepper, W. J. Allen, G. Harland, and Mrs. D. Hope, wife of the late lamented Dan Hope. One missed Dan's birds amongst the short and chubby ones. The novice Norwich provided a very good assortment. What a grand clear buff hen is that of the worthy sec. (W. H. Moore), admired by all present. It was shown in the £3 limit, and won Hyde's and Members' Specials. Yorkshires, the birds of grace and beauty, were up in rather strong force; 36 birds in the two open classes, and 22 in the two novice classes. Capital specimens were those owned by Messrs. Foden, Allen, Holmes, and Precious. Crests and Mules helped to swell the show, with one or two good ones amongst them. British captivated one; the Wryneck, owned by Mr. J. Milne, looked as well as ever, and was closely followed by a smart Nightingale owned by Mr. T. Arnold. The foreign gave an excellent tone to the exhibition, drawing great attention. The staging was done in grand style. The benches were nicely draped with red muslin, and bunting hung about all over the show-room, very tastefully. Chrysanthemums, ferns, and foliage, kindly lent for the occasion by A. Sutcliffe, Esq., assisted greatly to enhance the function. Sandiford's special went to Mr. F. Emerson, his ticked yell. Nor. doing the trick with his "red-hot" appearance. Ramsden's was captured by Mr. W. Johnson, his marked yell. Nor. hen (passed as a cock) answering to the call. The stewards were Messrs. Dowie, Harding, Oliver, Cotterill, and Cartwright, who proved themselves a capital lot. Prize slips were displayed quickly as each class was judged. Everything went off well. The judges were Messrs. Roe and Medley.

BRIDGEND.

First open show held October 21st in the Drill Hall, and same was a decided success, the entry far exceeding expectations. Six classes were provided, and totalled 62 birds; very good, considering show was not under C.B.U. rules, which this young society did not know of until too late. Next year they intend to double the classes and hold same under C.B.U. rules. The secretary, Mr. Stanley Davies (although his first attempt) made an ideal official, and was well backed up by a good body of workers. Mr. D. A. S. Longden made the awards, which gave general satisfaction.

NORWICH (11): 1, vhc, Love, cl. buff of rare size and shape, good colour, in fine order; 2, 3, Miles and Bowen, 2nd nice quality yell., medium size, neat wings and tail; 3rd, buff, not quite ready yet, still a neat bird; 4, c, Hughes; hc, Jenkins. SANDY LANE.

The annual open show was held on October 17th, in the Baptist School, Sandy Lane, Bradford. Mr. E. Radley, a well-known Skelmanthorpe exhibitor and fancier, making his debut as a judge at open shows, and we are pleased to say that his awards seemed to give general satisfaction throughout, though one or two were somewhat of an upset of previous form. The room is a splendid one, good in size, with plenty of light, and altogether well adapted for a show, and within easy reach of the cars. Mr. Benj. Buckle makes a very courteous and obliging secretary, and had everything well in hand, his painstaking assistants being Mr. S. Ratcliffe (assist. secretary), and Messrs. Wilson, Bailey, Edmondson and Son, Watmuff, Slater, Coates, Moore, Drake and Shaw Bros. as stewards. Such a list of well-known fanciers is in itself a guarantee of good and capable management. During the afternoon a large number of visitors put in an appearance, and the number would undoubtedly have been greater had the weather been brighter, as Sandy is a well-known beauty spot, beloved of town dwellers. At this show, visitors can obtain on the premises a real good tea at a very low charge, and a large number availed themselves of the privilege. The schedule comprised 25 classes, one of which was for British birds, but this had to be cancelled, owing to insufficient support. The remainder attracted an entry of 315, giving an average of only 13 per class, this being a big drop from last year, when for a similar schedule the society secured 4 entries. Messrs Towers and Shaw Bros. were the top scorers in the competition for CAGE BIRDS prizes for the amateurs of the Yorkshire Union.

(Our Sandy Lane friends might find themselves well repaid if they patronised the columns of the Fancy Press with a show advertisement or two, instead of "hiding their light under a bushel."—EDITOR.)

The Open Section.

YORKS. CL. YELL. (12): 1, Edmondson, hot colour, well drawn out, lengthy, fair position and quality, not quite steady, takes a little coaxing to show himself; 2, 3, spl, Wilson, two good typical birds, paler in colour; 2, wonderful position and type, grand quality; 3, not quite so good in wing carriage; 4, Shackleton, long, slim, plenty of leg grand back, wings and tail, seemed a trifle loose under; vhc, Wilcock; hc, Bailey and Swanger; c, Mountain CL. BLACKWOOD (Mon.)

The second show of the Blackwood and District F.S. was held on October 15th, in the Council Hall, a capital place for a show, being well lighted, and free from draughts. The exhibits were nicely staged at one end of the hall, and were well looked after by a few ardent fanciers The quality was first-rate in most of the classes. We think another year with the classification amended the committee may look forward to a larger entry. Messrs. Christmas and Smith are a pair of ideal secretaries, and had everything well in hand, being most obliging and courteous. The awards were made by Mr. J. H. Payne.

GREENWICH.

The annual show of the Greenwich and Deptford C.B.S. was held on October 8th and 9th in the Amersham Hall, New Cross. The arrangements were most efficiently carried out, and the tiers were decorated with ferns and other plants, which added not a little to the pleasing effect of the show. The committee, under the leadership of Mr. A. Hamer, the indefatigable hon. secretary, worked hard to secure a successful issue for their show. Mr. J. Robson judged. The quality of the exhibits was excellent, especially in the members' section, and the competition was very close in some instances. The special for the best Norwich or Yorkshire in show was won by a member, Mr. E. Meades, who beat the winners in the open section. There was an excellent attendance; on the first evening visitors were treated to a splendid concert, which was much enjoyed. The following are the winners of the specials other than the class specials:—Hyde's, Mr. G. Hill; members' Yorkshire cup, Mr. C. Edwards; Norwich Plainhead cup, Mr. E. Meades; best novice Norwich, Mr. F. W. Hamer; best Norwich or Yorkshire in show, Mr. E. Meades; Sandiford's, Mr. G. Hill; best in classes 5 and 11, Mr. E. S. Lugg; in classes 7 and 8, and also in classes 9 and 10, Mr. F. Easterling; in classes 20 and 21, Miss F. Davies; in classes 31 and 32, Mr. C. Edwards; and in classes 47, 48, 49, Mr. W. Allison. Mr. E. Meades won the challenge cup for most points scored throughout the year. The novice cup for most points in Yorkshires at the young stock and autumn shows was won by Mr. Cobley, and that for Norwich by Mr. Hamer.

The Open Classes.

NOR. CL. YELL. (2): 1, spl, Kilby, a rattling bird of quality and size, beautiful shape and feather, we liked so much at Clapham; 2, Males, neat and nice, scarcely the substance, but will improve much. BUFF (4): 1, spl, Spinner, rich undercolour, nice feather, a good exhibit; 2, Richardson, similar in many respects, should do some winning later; 3, Russell, neat one, just a trifle open in feather; vhc, Hill.—TKD., ETC. (2): 1, spl, Lugg, grand quality, heavily variegated yellow, good shape, rich colour; 2, Hill, yellow, just a trifle, long in flights. NOR. HENS (7): 1, spl, Bellamy, good shape, rich soft blooming feather, a nice one; 2, Spinner, hardly so stout, but of rattling quality, should make up grandly; 3, Ellis, also very bloomy, fine shape, good one; vhc, Dr. Sedgwick; hc, Wootton. NOR. UNFLI. (10): 1, spl, Lugg, rare quality, close as wax, buff, if it gets enough size for the colour will be a really grand one, claimed at catalogue price; 2, Spinner, buff, stout, grand close feather, we liked well; 3, Kilby, yellow, bird of rare size and quality, but very soft at the time we saw it, will improve yet; vhc, Males; hc, Bellamy; c, Wootton. NOVICE NOR. A.V. (2): 1, spl, Allison; 2, Simants, both good birds well staged.

LISKEARD (Cornwall).

The exhibition held in the Market and Public Hall, on Oct. 14th, and promoted by the Liskeard, Devon and Cornwall F.A., was a very creditable event, taking into consideration that the show has been restarted after a lapse of several years, the entries numbering over 500. This was the more creditable, considering the contra attractions of two important shows, Hayle and Exeter, and which militated, no doubt considerably, against the entries. The Cage Bird section included some very fine specimens, a noteworthy exhibit being a Cornish Chough, shown by Mrs. W. Thompson, and won premier honours in the British Bird class. Among the Yorkshires were some capital birds, both in style and quality, and the Crests made a nice display, Messrs. J. and J. Symons, the noted Crest breeders, of Cornwall, securing special for best bird and best young bird in show, with an ideal Crest, a credit to its owners. The Mayor of Liskeard, Mr. S. Bone, made a very worthy President, and Dr. W. Curtis a very painstaking and courteous secretary. These officials were backed up by a good working and energetic committee, consisting of Messrs. Burleigh, Carlyon, Hambley, Nicholls, Roberts, Toy, Ough, Skinner, Wills, Hicks, Edmonds, Jos. Symons, Lavers, and Hoskin, who did their work in a very methodical way, and looked after the exhibits in a most praiseworthy manner. After the judging was over a most excellent luncheon was served at Welsh's Hotel, for the judges and committee, presided over by the president. After some loyal toasts had been given, some good speeches were made, and the judges, in responding, spoke very highly of the quality of the exhibits, stating they would compare favourably with those of many larger shows. The cage birds were judged by Mr. S. Tickell, whose awards gave every satisfaction.

YORKS. A.V. (6): 1, Pincombe, clear Buff, well drawn, good position, neat head, compact wings and tail; 2, Thomas, clear yell., good colour, long and typical, well up on legs, would have been an easy first, but for a slight frill on breast; 3, Thomas, cl. buff, good head and wing carriage, nice piped tail; vhc, Wills; hc, Lobb. NOR. CL. YELL. (2): 1, J. and J. Symons, non-flight, rich colour, neat head and lovely type and quality; 2, Trevena, good, but scarcely so stout as winner, close up. BUFF (4): 1, Trevena, good head, neck, and wings, good quality, type and feather; 2, Hart, not the substance of winner, but good type and quality; 3, J. and J. Symons, good Norwich, could do with more substance; vhc, Lobb. TKD. ETC. (3): 1, Smith, thigh ticked buff, soft rich-toned feather, good type and quality; 2, J. and J. Symons, short and chubby, good chest, neck and head, short flights, very typical; 3, Hart, similar to 2nd, but loses in substance. CREST-BRED (4): 1, 2, J. and J. Symons, former green, with good broad skull, well lashed, dense feather, coming well over beak, a good one; 2, cl. buff, nice cushioned head and feather, but pinched a wee bit in frontal; 3, Bellman, nice length and width of head feather; vhc, Hicks and Thomas. CREST A.V. (5): 1, J. and J. Symons, 2 specials, a big body, nearly evenmarked, very heavily feathered, neatly centred, and well formed drooping crest, taking special for best bird and best young Canary in show; 2, Rabey Bros., clear body, dark crest, very evenly radiated, well drooped and veiny feather, grand exhibit; 3, J. and J. Symons, neat grizzle crest, little short in frontal; vhc, hc, Bellman, 2 good Crests, a grand class. GOLDFINCH MULE CL. ETC. (2): 1, 2 Gaved, both 6-pointed, good shape and markings, in good condition. DARK MULE (1): 1, Gaved, nice Siskin Mule. BRIT. GOLDFINCH, CAGE MOULTED (2): 1, c, Large, not ready in blaze, but well buttoned and depth of yellow on flights; 2, Hicks and Thomas, bit smaller than winner, and not quite ready yet. PAIRS CAN. MORPETH.

Morpeth and District C.B.S. held their exhibition on October 17th in the Town Hall, a large hall, free from draughts, which suited the occasion admirably. It was a surprise to all concerned to see such an excellent display of birds, which came from a great many places in the North, and also in the Midlands. The classification in the open section (which comprised 23 classes) called out no less than 310 birds, Norwich being the most prominent variety. In 8 classes 140 of these were staged, being on an average 17 per class. The Borders were greatly admired, there being 62 in the three classes. Taking the exhibits throughout, the show, with the open and members' classes combined, numbering 34 classes, had a grand total of 460. It was regretted by all that Mr. J. Patterson's birds arrived too late to be judged. Mr. E. Cowling is the secretary, and this being his first attempt in that capacity, is to be congratulated. He is the right man in the right place, and with the assistance of Mr. Wilks and a band of willing workers, such as Messrs. Summers, Clark, Mackay, Stevinson, Woollett, Graham, Griffiths, Rowell, the birds were packed up and sent to their respective owners in good time, the hall being practically cleared by 8 o'clock. Messrs. W. P. Barnes and A. Brown judged, their awards giving every satisfaction.

JOHNSTONE.

This show was held in the Johnstone Town Hall, on October 17th. There was a large entry in the different classes in the cage bird section, where they were much the same as last year. The Glasgow City Show was responsible to some extent for the shortcomings in numbers, although there was nothing of an outstanding nature as regards the quality, which was fair throughout. The Town Hall is well fitted for show purposes, being entirely free from draught, and well lighted from the roof. The staging of the different classes was splendidly arranged with an eye to the comfort of the visitors, of whom there was a large turn out. Much credit is due to the secretary, Mr. D. Ritchie, and committee for their courtesy and for the general conduct of what proved a very successful show. The judge for the cage birds' section was Mr. Wm. Ettles, whose awards in general were favourably received. The president is Mr. Wm. Wilson, and the vice-president is Mr. Wm. Gimmell, both of whom worked hard and long, and are deserving of great praise. There were five classes for cage birds.

COM. CAN. DARLINGTON.

Darlington Canary and British Bird Association held their third annual open show in the Corn Exchange, on October 17th. This room is really one of the finest in the Kingdom, being well lighted from the top, every specimen can be seen to perfection. The exhibits were well benched, and attended to in fancier-like fashion. High credit is due to the hon. secretary, Mr. R. S. Black, who is very obliging and capable, and his hard-working committee, Messrs. Cleminson, O'Conner, Metcalfe, Hawkins, Wilcock, Lawson, Cooper, Oliver, Lobson, Wildsmith and Simpson. The Yorkshire section was made up of five classes, and some tip-top "straight'uns" were staged. Messrs. Cuthbertson Chittenden, Foden, Hewson and Broughton took away most of the "pieces." The Norwich were a grand lot, and made a very attractive section. Messrs. Hill and Stewart, Dalgetty, Sherrington, Hesp, put down some nice exhibits. The British section turned up well, both in numbers and quality. Messrs. Wildsmith and Hawkins, Duncan, junr., Todd and Son, Axe, S. W. Birchley, and Stamp putting down fine birds securing most of the spoil. The bowl for best members' bird was won by Mr. T. Cuthbertson, with a splendid buff Norwich, the second best falling to Mr. C. W. Cooper (with a real good yellow Yorks. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford), made the awards.

FROME.

The tenth annual show of the Frome F.A. was held in the Market Hall on Oct. 15. The show was opened by C. T. Foxcroft, Esq., in the presence of a large company of visitors. The entry was very good, especially in Crests, Novice, Norwich, Yorkshire and Lancashires, but one or two classes were disappointing. The special for best bird in show went to Mr. Simmond's grand Crest, and that for the second best to Mr. C. I. Young's clinking green Crest-bred. Mr. J. Robson judged. Mr. C. I. Young makes an admirable secretary, and knows how to manage a show to a nicety. Messrs. P. Edwards, H. Pickford, H. W. Dodge, and E. Austin acted as superintendents, and ably seconded Mr. Young's efforts. The Committee offered medals for the best drawing of a Goldfinch to the Elementary Schools, which proved a great attraction, the hall being crowded at times.

NOR. CL. (4): 1, withheld; 2, Hopkins and Allsop, yellow, fine quality, splendid condition, takes special for best P.H. in show; 3, Jupe, very good buff, big, typical bird; vhc, Baker; hc, Fulbrook. LEICESTER C.B.S.

A most successful table show was held at headquarters, Hare and Pheasant Hotel, on October 14th. A good number of members and friends turned up. Mr. T. H. Ride gave every satisfaction in placing the cards, entries were good both in quality and number; in the open class especially the birds were a very level lot, the judge being some considerable time before coming to his final decision. Twenty birds were staged in this class, and the novices turned up well with 14.

A.V. BUFF NOR. UNFLIG. OPEN: 1, Warmington; 2, c, Gray; 3, Curtis; extra 3, Heighton, vhc, Claypole; hc, Tyler. NOVICE: 1, Warmington; 2, 3, c, Christian; vhc, L. Smith; hc, Dyson.—J. A. TYLER, Sec.

SELKIRK.

Annual show held on October 15th. The entries were unfortunately rather sparingly dealt out to this old established Border fixture, probably owing to the City of Glasgow and Kelty shows being held about the same date. Also many breeders on the Border have experienced a stoppage in the finishing off of their birds, which also accounts for a deficiency in numbers. Borders, as usual, were the leading feature, and all the well-known firms were represented, every one of them keenly contesting for breeding honours. The plums of the day, however, were scooped by the magnificent team sent by Mr. Gilchrist, who secured no less than three firsts, a medal, and two seconds, with an entry of 5—a grand performance. Every one of these was staged in masterly fashion. Messrs. Bennet, McKenzie, Patterson, Philips, Duncan and Logan also had some splendid all round specimens, and the Borders on the whole were grand in quality. The greens especially were a good feature. This variety was judged by the esteemed Earlston secretary, Mr. J. Brockie, his awards were received with general satisfaction. Norwich, British, Mules, etc., were a nice lot, some outstanding birds being on view. The pick of the British section was undoubtedly the Goldfinch shown by Mr. Pringle; it was a gem in size. This section was judged by the esteemed President of the Society, Mr. Thomson, and his awards were well received. The Hyde's special was secured by Mr. Philips. Mr. Reid had the secretarial duties in hand and his past efforts were on this occasion even excelled, everything being grandly conducted, and the exhibits were comfortably staged in an ideal hall. He was ably assisted by a young and energetic society, and we hope that next year the society will be awarded with a bumping display, as they fully deserve it.

Mr. John Brockie's Classes.

BORD. YELL. CK. HUCKNALL TORKARD.

The 15th annual exhibition in connection with the Hucknall Torkard C.B.S. was held on October 16th and 17th in the large room attached to the Coffee Tavern—a very adaptable room for such an occasion. It possesses nice light, is fairly spacious, and well ventilated, and is of a cosy nature, being also free from all draughts. The entry obtained was excellent, creating a record, with a total of 315, against 247 of last year—a most pleasing item to chronicle. The staging that had been erected to accommodate the specimens was gallery-like, and those responsible for it are to be complimented. Every bird could be seen at a glance. A capital light assisted the adjudicators in their hard task. Competition was exceedingly keen in all the classes. The Norwich Plainheads were superb, in fact a "hot lot." Messrs. Severn, Fox, and Adnitt and Driver staged some real eye-openers here. The Crests and Crest-breds made a magnificent section, and surprised one greatly, both as regards quantity and quality. Charming exhibits were benched by Messrs. Colledge, Brown, Bowers, Cowperthwaite, Drakeford, Smithurst, Goode, and Hutchinson. The Mules provided the "mixtures," headed by the well-known Buff four-pointed Goldie Can., owned by Messrs. Leam and Stinson. The British birds simply captivated one, amongst them being some real gems. The Wryneck and Blackcap, the property of Mr. J. Milne, were staged in faultless condition. Messrs. Leam and Stinson had on view a lovely Nightingale, and the Bullfinch shown by Mr. Harrison found many admirers. Yorkshires, although not up in very great force, contained a few really good ones. From out the selling classes one could have selected many bargains. Specials were captured by Messrs. Marshall, Mellors, Severns, and Cowperthwaite, Twine, Bertie, Adnitt and Driver, Fox, Colledge, Bowers, Drakeford, Smithurst Hutchinson, Goode, Leam and Stinson, Milne, Truman, Pass and Jacklin The president is Mr. A. Mason; the vice-presidents Drs. W. H. Coates and Saunders. The committee of management consists of a band of well-known and well tried fanciers, who know how to manipulate things correctly, and great credit is due to them for their exertions. The secretaries are Messrs. H. Marshall and E. Mellors, who trot well together, and are the right men in the right place. The success obtained on this occasion, no doubt, has been brought about by their most excellent and praiseworthy generalship. The stewards were Messrs. Pass and Hutchinson, who worked like Trojans, and are to be complimented on their business-like methods. Cards were displayed quickly, and everything went smoothly and well. The adjudicators were Messrs. Vardy and Norwood, who got through their task in a masterly manner.

BUSH HILL PARK.

If a good entry and a big crowd of visitors are any indication of progress then the Bush Hill Park F.S. is indeed making good headway. We have never been in so crowded a show as the one held by this society in the Percival Road Institute, on October 17th. Locomotion was almost impossible, and the huge crowd appeared to be taking the keenest interest in the exhibits. The arrangements were ably carried out by the committee, and the cage birds were nicely staged at the end of the hall out of the way of all draughts, and very nice they looked. The Crests were a nice little lot, and amongst them was found the winner of the special for the best bird in the show, a very smart, and evenly marked bird, shown by Mr. Irving. It is a bird of capital quality, with well arranged headgear, Yorkshires were fairly good. Norwich made a capital class, and the quality was of a high order. The British and Foreign classes contained some very choice and smart exhibits. We particularly admired the long-tailed Whydah of Mr. Williams, also the same gentleman's Chaffinches, and Mr. Saville's Bullfinches. Mr. R. J. Lewis judged, and his awards were well received.

CAN. CREST OR C.B. (3): 1, spl, and spl. for best bird in show, 2, Irving; 3, Hann. YORKS. (6): 1, 2, 3, res. vhc, Bulgin. NORWICH (9): 1, res., c, Hayden; 2, 3, vhc, hc, Bulgin. BRIT. SMALL (6): 1, spl, Saville; 2, res., Williams; 3, Saville. FOR. (5): 1, 2, 3, spl, Williams.

ASHFORD (Kent).

Only five classes were provided for Cage Birds at the show of the Ashford F.S., which was held in the Swan Buildings, on October 15th and 16th, and these were judged by Mr. Clem Watson. The quality of the exhibits was fairly good, and members also, except in the British class. The birds were nicely staged on tables in the centre of the hall, well away from all draughts, and their needs were attended to by the stewards. Mr E. J. Browne made a capable and most courteous secretary, and his efforts to make things move swiftly and smoothly were ably seconded by the committee, which was composed of the following fanciers:—Messrs. L. G. Knowles (chairman), Bury, Ferguson, Hoile, Corke, Packham, Hooker, Grant, Offen, and Rev. F. T. Gregg. The fixture was favoured with beautiful weather, and the many visitors displayed great interest in the Cage Bird section, which we would advise the executive to extend another year.

NOR. (13): 1, 2, vhc, hc, and three spls, Bury and Mitchell, 1, very nice shape, close feathered Buff, very free in colour; 2, variegated Buff, a bird of capital shape, grand rich colour and well mealed, we liked better than winner; 3, Wardley, rick coloured Buff, nice shape, neat wings and tail, not so well shown; absent 12, Toppenden. YORKS. (6): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, c, and two spls, Offen, the three leaders were all yellows, the first two being ticked in neck, they were nice stylish birds, and of good colour, but were hardly through the moult. CREST OR C.B. (5): 1, 2, 3, vhc, Grant, 1, nice-shaped, variegated Crest-bred, of good quality of feather; 2, neat, showing variegated crest; 3, a very pretty, nicely shaped, good centred, clear crest of beautiful quality; c, Toppenden. BRIT.: 1, 3, Ward. SELL. (10/-) (8): 1, 2, 3, hc, c, Bury and Mitchell, very useful team of Norwich, nice shape and quality; vhc, Offen.

A Breakfast Cup for a 1d.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM.

Kelty and Blairadam held their third annual show on October 17th, and it proved a record, drawing together the magnificent entry of 563, which is an advance of 163 over last year. The programme opened with Scotch fancies, and, taken on the whole, the quality was good, some outstanding birds being on view. The cock classes, if anything, were better than the hen classes, and in the green buff cocks there turned up the Local Cup winner, a bird belonging to Mr. Fotheringham. Mr. Low selected the winners in his usual careful manner, to the satisfaction of the majority. Borders were forward in force, some real outstanding birds being on view, in fact, two sets of winners might have been found. The medal winner turned up in the shape of a yellow cock shown by Mr. Craig. Yorkshires were here in great numbers, and one would have thought to look round he was in the land of the broad acres. With the hot colour and black edges the birds were a great contrast to their smaller brethren. All the classes contained specimens of very high merit. Mr. Patterson judged these varieties, and his awards were received with great satisfaction. Norwich were a warm lot, some real toppers being staged. Mr. Howie, of Baudee, however, held a master hand, and secured the greatest amount of prizes and successfully captured the challenge cup with a buff variey. hen. The unlighted classes brought together no less than 43 entries, and the pick of the lot was staged by Mr. Barclay; a novice we heard. Crests and crest-breds were on the whole good, and here the renowned Mr. Reid held a strong hand. Mr. Adams judged these varieties, and his awards were well received. Mules, British and foreign, were a grand collection, almost everything in the British line being catered for. The Mule classes were good, the darks being strong. Light Mules were numerous, and were headed by a four-pointed Goldie in rattling trim. British birds were large in numbers, and some good ones were on view. Bullfinches and Linnets were the best classes. Brambles, Greenfinches and Redpolls were simply splendid, and here the plum must go to the winning Bramblefinch. In the Softbill smalls only one bird was entered, and here the judge wrong-classed it, a Yellowhammer (this is open to controversy, many being of the opinion a Yellowhammer is practically a Softbill). Foreigners were a nice collection, and were headed by a Whydah. Unfortunately, Mr. Martin's birds arrived too late for judging. Mr. Farmer, the late secretary of the S.B.B. and M.C., judged these varieties, and considering the varieties and numbers he acquitted himself well. The hall is an ideal one, being free from draughts and well lighted. The management cannot be surpassed. Such a crowd of willing workers it would be hard to find. The secretarial duties were in the hands of Mr. Ford, and the society have been fortunate in securing such a capable manager. He had everything in apple-pie order, and was most obliging to all the many enquirers that are to be met with at such fixtures. He had a sterling assistant in the worthy treasurer, Mr. Fotheringham, and the pair proved equal to the occasion. The show was largely patronised, and we expect to hear the third fixture proved a record success.

The Scotch Fancy Section.

SCOT. FCY. CL. YELL. CK. (9): 1, Laing, raking bird, fine length of side, good free drive, nice reach and depth across, fine exhibit; 2, Strachan, built on similar lines, heavier in shoulder, nice action and condition; 3, laglis, smaller frame, good top end, free working bird; vhc, Balfour; hc, Leslie; c, Gibson. HEN (6): 1, Stewart, good quality for a lady, nice size, well filled shoulders, fine reach and droop; 2, Stenhouse, shade slimmer and longer but not quite so well packed on back, still a good second; 3, Hunter, stylish, not so thick across chest, good all round; vhc, Cowan; hc, Inglis; c, Strachan. CL. ETC. BUFF CK. (2): 1, Miss Braman, wins, fine depth throughout, good shoulder and reach, neat side and drive, in grand order; 2, Down, neat, scarcely the weight or style of winner. HEN (4): 1, spl, Wilkie, stylish, fine free action, good shoulders and nice snaky head, grand length of side, well put down, in good trim; 2, Gillies, plenty of go, well up in depth, scarcely the reach of winner, good worker; 3, McGregor and Balfour, sweet hen, good front and top end; vhc, Strachan. YELL. PIED ETC. CK. (5): 1, 2, 3, Laing, good trio, leader best in shoulders and reach, 2nd grand depth all over, but straighter in appearance, 3rd good, close up; fine team, a credit to owner; vhc, Wilkie; hc, Chalmers. HEN (4): 1, 2, Cowan, leading with good one, nice depth across, fine top end, good free action, 2nd also stylish, could do with a little more substance, well placed; 3, Gibson, very showy bird, which handles well at times, nice depth, well filled up, fails only in size to the winners; vhc, Sneddon. BUFF, PIED ETC., CK. (10): 1, spl, Fotheringham, leading with good one, buff green cock, fine length of side, good top end, nice snaky neck, good depth throughout, very clean got up; 2, 2 gals, Leslie, long sided, great length, free and stylish, lacks the top end and depth of winner; 3, spl, Allan, nice all round exhibit, scarcely so well got up as winner but nice substance throughout, well placed; vhc, Stenhouse; hc, Hunter; c, McGregor and Balfour. HEN (9): 1, Allan, sweet one, very free exhibit, good top end, nice head, gets to work freely, grips perch well, fine size and quality, good exhibit; 2, Gibson, close up, plenty of substance, good shape, not quite so stylish as winner; 3, McGregor and Balfour, nice all round exhibit, fine substance and quality, inclined to be dull; vhc, Fotheringham; hc, Spence; c, Gillies. "CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON.

LIMAVADY.

This show was held in the Alexander Memorial Hall, on October 14th. There was a very fair entry of 159 in 19 classes. Norwich, Yorkshires and Mule were fairly well filled, and exceptional birds of merit were shown in the above-named sections. The judge, Mr. Connolly Sherrard, got through his work in good time, and we think he left very little to be commented adversely on. Mr. Richard S. Hull, hon. sec., and Mr. W. J. Wilson, assistant sec., did all in their power to make the show a success, and certainly succeeded in so doing.

SCOT. FCY. (7): 1, 3, and 2 spls, Bell, clear, yellow and variegated Buff, winner, grand position, plenty of substance, fine top-end, good shoulders, nice drive, latter grand action, well staged; 2, vhc, hc, Hargin, good one, shade slimmer, beaten by first; c, Gilfillan. CREST. (7): 1, 2, bc, Gilfillan, Buff variey. green, large crest, rough at back, fair type, rather open in centre, could do with a little grooming; 2, smaller crest, nice body, but bad in moult; 3, Slater, fair one, gone in moult; vhc, Scott; c, Bell. PLAINHEAD (12): 1, hc, and spl, Mulligan, grand fronted Buff, very fine in feather, typical, good quality, nice head and neck, short flight and tail, well staged, latter nice type, neat, bit soft; 2, Slater, typical, neat head, nice chubby body; 3, vhc, Owens and Magee; 3, good colour, crosses wings at times; vhc, nice quality; c, Gilfillan. A.V. BRED 1908 (12): 1, 3, and spl, Owens and Magee, 1, fine Buff, nicely mealed, rare chest, nice wings and tail, grand head, real good one; 3, extra good chest, might be better on wing carriage perhaps; 2, Mulligan, Crestbred, good Bullie type, very fair entrance, well staged; vhc, McCagherty, nice and typical. COMMON CAN. (10): 1, Kennedy, nice colour, in good condition; 2, Tait, nice steady bird, larger than first, but gone in moult; 3, Neill, in nice bloom; vhc, Alcorn; hc, Mullen; c, Wilson. Nos. 424, 436, and 431 were wrong classed. CL. YORKS. CK. (10): 1, spl. McQuade, yellow, neat head, straight upstanding bird, nice colour, good barrel, a topper; 2, Devins, yellow, neat and slim, good position and quality, crosses its wings a little; 3, c, Mulligan; 3, Buff, medium length, good conditiou; c, nice feather; vhc, Tighe, not yet in form; hc, and local spl, Moore, yellow, nice slim bird, but rather small. HEN (6): 1, 3, Tighe, 1, nice upstanding hen, well drawn, good even colour, fine quality feather, graud head and tail; 3, fails a little in length to winner; 2, vhc, Devins; 2, good type, nice wing carriage, well up on legs; vhc, real good stamp; hc, Harvey, fair. No. 447 wrong classed, good, might have been well up in the cards otherwise. TK. ETC CK. (6): 1, 3, and spl, Devins, leader rare fine long drawn bird, good colour, nice style, well packed tail, some considered the best Yorkshire in show; 3, nice style and length, well braced wings, well up on legs, and good feather; 2, hc, McQuade, 2, marked Buff, largest in class, fails in head and not quite so good in wing carriage as winner; hc, nice colour and condition; vhc, Mulligan, neat one in moult, wants training. No. 250 absent. TICK. ETC. VARIEG. (4): McQuade, neat and slim, good position and quality, well packed tail, nice length; 2, vhc, Devins; 2, good quality, and tight as wax; vhc, nice one, but rather on the small side; 3, Mulligan, another good one. MULE, GOLDFINCH AND CAN. DARK (9): 1, spl, McCaldin, nice size, and blaze, very steady, good bars, well polished; 2, Harvey, fails only in blaze, very fair body colour, very steady; 3, McCagherty, nice size, falls in colour only; vhc, c, Hargin; hc, Barnes. A.O.V. MULE (9): 1, spl, Owens and Magee, variegated Buff, Goldfinch and Canary, regular little gem, in grand bloom, tight as wax, wins easily; 2, Mulligan, Goldfinch and Canary, light variegated Buff, soft in feather, good size, but beaten here; 3, Harvey, dark Linnet and Canary, good size, and colour, close in feather; vhc, McCoIdin, Goldfinch and Canary variegated, very nicely staged; hc, O'Hara, Linnet and Canary variegated, good size, fine colour, very unsteady or would probably have been higher up in the prize cards; c, Kee. BRIT. GOLDFINCH (13): 1, spl, Gilfillan, nice one, well cut moons, fine tanning, good blaze and buttons; 2, Algeo, somewhat smaller than winner, nice feather; 3, McClelland, nice colour, but small; vhc, O'Hara; hc, Hargin; c, McMenamin; they were good birds in this class, and many grand ones had to stand down, owing to being in moult. A.O.V. CAN (6): 1, Bell, Buff Belgian, wonderful size, loose in feather a little perhaps; 2, Moore, clear capped silver Lizard, nice one. Nos. 490, 491, 492 and 493 wrong classed. SELL (15/-) (15): 1, Sleater; 2, 3, Tighe; vhc, hc, Taylor; hc, McQuade; hc, Owens and Magee. There were a good many cheap birds in this class. (7/6) (13): 1, Kincaid; 2, Anderson; 3, Mulligan; vhc, Harvey; hc, Taylor; c, Slater. BRIT. SMALL (5): 1, spl, Mulligan, very nice Linnet, nice pencilling, neat shape, good size and steady; 2, Maxwell, Bramblefinch, rather out of condition; 3, vhc, Kennedy, Siskins, not in colour yet; hc, Scott. LARGE (6): 1, Heavey, Thrush; 2, Callaghan, Thrush; 3, Black, Thrush; vhc, Thompson; hc, Kincaid; c, Black. Very poor class for plumage. FOR. Canary Breeding for Beginners - - Post free, 7d.

By Claude St. John.

A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting, the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

BOLTON.

Bolton and District O.S. held their annual open show on October 16th and 17th, in the Co-operative Hall, Bridge-street, Bolton. The hall is one of the finest in Lancashire for the Cage Bird Show, being very well lighted and absolutely free from draughts. The show was a record in every way and was without doubt the most successful ever held in Bolton. Entries came up splendidly, totalling 616, not one class being cancelled. Yorkshires opened the ball, and made a grand show. The quality was well maintained, in every class, birds of the highest merit being staged, conspicuous amongst them being the specimens exhibited by Messrs. Norris, Brooks, Jim Smith, Cavanagh, Hodgson, Rhodes and Calling. Norwich, as was to be expected at the first N.P.C. cup show, turned up grand, and seldom have more real "good 'uns" been seen at one show. Perhaps the bird which claimed most attention was the magnificent ticked yellow, exhibited by Mr. S. Cook. It was acknowledged by many prominent fanciers to be the best seen for years. Another exhibit which found a host of admirers, was Mr. T. Seed's old veteran "Little King II," looking as well as ever. Other grand birds in this section were staged by Messrs. Shaw, Evans, Howe, Trengove, Irons and others. Crests, although not strong in numbers, were grand in quality. The Unflighted Crest of Mr. Joseph Ogden was voted by many fanciers a real good one, and should do some winning The same gentleman also staged another very nice bird in his Unflighted Crestbred. Messrs. Hart and Godley also put down two magnificent exhibits in the old bird classes, whilst Messrs. Godley and Dormer held the sway, as usual, among the Cinnamons. Borders came up well in the two classes provided, Messrs. Bayley, Cherry, Hancock and Blackshaw accounting for the principal awards. The British, Foreign and Mule classes contained some grand exhibits. The Redpoll-Bullie, looking in perfect condition to-day, won in the Hybrid class. British birds came up very strongly so early, except Goldfinches, which always hang back in moulting the blaze well up in colour. Exhibitors who are anxious to get their Goldfinches ready should use the silk handkerchief every day now. It is surprising what a help it is to the blaze, and indeed the whole plumage. Linnets were splendid, all the card winners of very high merit, and a little condition may easily alter their various positions week by week. A fine Hawfinch won, followed by a grandly-marked yellow Bunting, and a very steady Corn Bunting. Softbills saw extremes meet, a grand Chough winning, followed up by a splendid Nightingale and Whitetbroat all in perfect condition. It is difficult competition when large and small are grouped together. Foreign birds were a numerous and very fine lot, not a bad feathered bird in them, a grand King Parrakeet winning. The Novice classes were a gratifying success and competition in this section was exceptionally keen, many birds being staged which would do well out in the open. The principal winners were Messrs. Stirrup, W. H. Fletcher, Millingcamp, Elsegood, Bevau, Boothman and Venables. The arrangements were in first-class order, and Mr. James Stringer, the worthy secretary, deserves the praise and thanks of every member of the Society for the admirably prompt and successful manner in which he carried out bis numerous duties. He makes an ideal show manager. He was well supported by the popular president of the society, Mr. James Smith, the vice-president, Mr. S. Smith, the treasurer, Mr. R. Hollis, and Messrs. J. Gerrard, T. H. Cooper, W. Longworth, J. Nelson, J. Lomax, T. W. Burgess, Jim Smith, J. Brooks, W. Richardson, F. Proctor and others. Amongst those fanciers present from a distance we noticed Messrs. J. W. Clemmson, E. Godley, J. Cavanagh, J. Cheetham, T. H. Dent, J. Trengove, W. Booth, H. Riding, T. Sandiford, R. Braybrook, and the newly-married T. Seed, to whom we offer our heartiest congratulations. Messrs. J. H. Roe and C. Houlton judged, and we heard no complaints.

OLDHAM.

The Oldham and District C.B.A. held its annual show on Oct. 10th, in the large room at rear of the Globe Inn, Huddersfield Road. When trade is in a flourishing condition it is the natural order of things that all's well and prosperous; such is not the case at the present in Cottonopolis, where for a fortnight the mills have been closed through a lock-out in the staple industry. The gate, therefore, was not as good as usual, neither were the entries, which, no doubt, were also penalised by reason of the backwardness of the moulting season. Entries in the eight open classes provided an average of about 8 per class; whilst the members' and Federation classes brought the total to 156. The United Kingdom Lizard Association gave their patronage and competed for their medals (Champion and Novice). In the Gold Lizard class Mr. Hampshire (Oldham) staged a full cap that should do some winning. By the way, this bird was eagerly sought after by a well-known exhibitor. Mr. Fisher (Glossop) put down a very fine pair of Silvers. In connection with this show, the Federation of Cage Bird Societies (Ashton-u-Lyne Centre) competed for their cup, and this was an attractive feature, Ashton coming out at top with their team of six birds, gaining 37 points. A long list of special prizes (members) had been got together, and were won as follows: Best bird shown by a member, open classes included (E. Lowe), best, members only, F. Steeple; best Lizard, J. Hampshire; best Yorks., F. Nelson; best second Yorks., Fitton; best second Nor., Young. Points specials went to Messrs. Fitton, Eckersley, Hampshire, and Sharples. The secretarial duties were in the able hands of Mr. Steeple, and right well did he fulfil the undertaking, having everything in readiness, and the catalogues out early. He was well backed up by Messrs. Sharples (president), and Nelson (vice-president), who kept the judge, Mr. Bowyer (Leek), well employed. The awards seemed to be well approved.

Open Classes.

LEAMINGTON.

The fifth annual exhibition of the Leamington and District F.A., was held on October 15th and 16th in the Winter Halls—an excellent venue for such an occasion. The Mayor, Mr. Holt, presided at the opening ceremony, which was gracefully performed by the Mayoress, who wished the show every success. A vote of thanks to the Mayor and Mayoress for their kindness in attending was proposed by Mr. T. Berridge, and seconded by the Rev. A. H. M. Russell. The Mayor, in reply, said that the more shows they held in Leamington the better, and he hoped he would receive the support of those present in regard to the flower show, which he hoped to arrange for next year. The total entries all through the show exceeded those of the previous year by over 500, the cage bird section contributing its share of the increase. Canaries afforded quite a show in themselves, and were greatly admired by the crowds of visitors; in fact they were better both in quality and in numbers than on any previous occasion. The arrangements were in the hands of the capable secretary, Mr. F. T. Pritchard, who is deserving of every praise for his skilful guidance of affairs. The chairman is Mr. W. H. Potter, the vice-chairman, Mr. A. H. C. Hunt, and the committee consists of the following: Messrs. P. L. Stanley, G. W. Hassell, G. A. Moss, E. Wildsmith, G. Hall, G. Wildsmith, W. Hems, C. E. Kent, J. Knight, E. Powell, H. G. Masters, and R. Moore. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

NOR. CL. ETC. YELL. (7): 1, G. Cooper, good type, nice even colour throughout, good wing carriage, hot one; 2, Gilbert, fine, marked bird, well balanced eyes and wings, very slight tick on back of head, good type; 3, Lewin, large, good type, slightly deficient in colour and quality; vhc, Broadhurst; hc, Hall; c, Dipple. BUFF (9): 1, G. Hall, romping, big, clear, good type and quality, nice wings and tail, wins well; 2, Walton and Noakes, very typical clear, grand quality, inclined to cross wings at times; 3, Gilbert, eye and wing marked Buff, good type, beautiful quality; vhc, Emery; hc, Broadhurst; c, Hall. UNFLIG. CL. ETC. YELL. (11): 1, Hall, wing marked, good type and quality, nice short wings and tail, wins well; 2, Emery, hardly so typical, but grand colour and quality, good wing carriage; 3, A. Bull, ticked eye, grand colour and quality, not quite so large as winners; vhc, Broadhurst; hc, Peacock; c, Hall. BUFF (14): 1, Bellamy, large bird, good type and head, nice wing carriage, wins; 2, Lawrance, grand colour and quality, nicely mealed, just a trifle long; 3, Cooper, tick wing, grand colour and quality, minus a few tail feathers; vhc, Broadhurst; hc, Walton and Noakes; c, Peacock. HEN CL. ETC. YELL. (7): 1, Emery, good type, nice even colour, carries wings well; 2, Lucas, good colour and quality, fine wing carriage, trifle longer than winner; 3, Walton and Noakes, very nice unflighted, grand type and quality, crosses wings; vhc, Peacock; hc, Barratt, also wins Hyde's special; c, Growdridge. BUFF (9): 1, Walton and Noakes, good type, grand quality, nice short wings and tail, wins well; 2, Hall, nice type, good colour and quality; 3, Lewin, very typical, but patchy in colour; vhc, Cooper; hc, Brotherhood; c, Gilbert. CREST AND CB.: classes cancelled. YORKS. CL. ETC. YELL. (8): 1, Brotherhood, lengthy bird, nicely drawn wings and tail; 2, Howes, variegated, good length, carries wings and tail nicely, but not quite the quality of winner; 3, Burke, good length, nice wings and back; vhc, Beck; hc, Bromfield; c, Hawes. BUFF (11): 1, Mole, grand colour and quality, nice, neat wings and tail, wins; 2, Paddock, tick head, good length, nice wings, fails only in colour and quality to winner; 3, Howes, nice quality, on the small side; vhc, Burke; hc, Williams; c, Mole. UNFLIG. YELL. (6): 1, sp, Burke, long and slim, full of quality, even colour, nice, neat wings and tail, good position; 2, Brotherhood, nice quality, fails only in neck; 3, Beck, rather short and thick compared with winner; vhc, Beck; hc, Hawes; c, Howes. BUFF (10): 1, Paddock, good length, nice colour and quality, grand wings and tail; 2, Sutton, variegated, wonderful quality, fails in colour, not yet ready; 3, Hawes, smaller bird, nice quality; vhc, Howes; hc, Mole; c, Teeding. MULES (except Bullfinch-Canary) (13): 1, Lawrance, wing marked Goldfinch and Canary, the Longton and Peterboro' winner in fresh hands, grand colour and quality; 2, Gilbert, Goldfinch and Canary, ticked on neck, grand quality, fails only in colour to winner; 3, vhc, Lees, even marked Goldfinch and Canary, and lightly marked Linnet and Canary; hc, Gough; c, Chillingsworth. A.O.V. MULE: cancelled. BRIT. SM. (6): 1, Victor Williams, Grey Wagtail in fine condition; 2, Brotherhood, Nightingale, also in good condition; 3, hc, Poole, Golden Crested Wren, in fine form; vhc, Gilbert; c Knight. LARGE (5): 1, Victor Williams, Cornish Chough, well shown; 2, Poole, Ring Ouzle, good size, in fine feather; 3, Gilbert, Thrush, well spotted, very steady; vhc, Hall. SELL PAIRS (20/-): 1, Dipple; 2, Midwinter; 3, Gilbert. SINGLE (15/-): 1, Butler; 2, Gilbert; 3, Hawes. (10/6): 1, Emery; 2, Hawes; 3, Midwinter. AMATEUR CLASSES: NOR. CL. ETC. YELL. (7): 1, A. Bull, marked eyes, wings, and rump, good colour and quality, nice type, wins well; 2, Lucas, heavily variegated, good colour; 3, Soden, large bird, grizzle on head, good colour, not quite the quality of winner; vhc, Brookes; hc, C. Bull; c, T. W. Hall. BUFF (11): 1, Mann, good colour, may improve; 2, A. Bull, good size and quality, fails in colour; 3, Bott, grand colour, fails only in quality; vhc, Nelson; hc, C. Bull; c, Soden. UNFLIG. (13): 1, A. Bull, yellow, good quality, nice even colour, grand wing carriage, fine short tail; 2, C. Bull, Bull, on the small side, but very typical, nice colour and quality; 3, Bott, variegated yell., good type, nice wing carriage, teaming with colour; vhc, Hall; hc, Soden; c, Barratt. LOCAL CLASS CAN. A.V. (10): 1, Rawlings, green Crest, good size, nice neat crest; 2, Trueman, variegated Buff Norwich, good type, lovely colour and quality; 3, Ward, nearly green Crest, smaller, but very neat.

THE PORTRAYAL OF PRIZE WINNERS.

Preston Show, Nov. 13, is added to our list of fixtures visited.

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154 Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER: The next Show will be Manchester, Oct. 30 and 31.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

Here is the list of shews referred to above:—
October 30th and 31st.—Manchester.
November 11th and 12th.—Carlisle.
November 13th.—Preston.
November 14th.—Nottingham.
November 27th.—Leeds.
December 11th.—Gateshead.
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.
Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*A Clever Cockatoo.

I went into a shop in Dunstable recently and observed a Cockatoo sitting in great state on the end of the countor. No one coming to attend to me I knocked. Then the Cockatoo steadily gazed at me and said with grave courtesy, "Ring the hell, please." Then the gentleman came in, and I told him what the bird had said, and he was very pleased with it.—Sent by W. C. Barrows (age 11), 12, Cavendish Street, Mansfield, Notts.

*The Doings of the Martins.

One evening I went for a walk. The road I went along led me by a large pit. Hovering over it were several birds which I recognised at once as Martins by their forked tails. Presently they swooped down and went skimming along the surface of the water; then up they flew. This they repeated again and again. At first I wondered what they were doing, but then it occurred to me they were catching insects.—Sent by Ellen Gooch (age 12), Damgato Street, Wymondham, Norfolk.

Some Antics of Maggie.

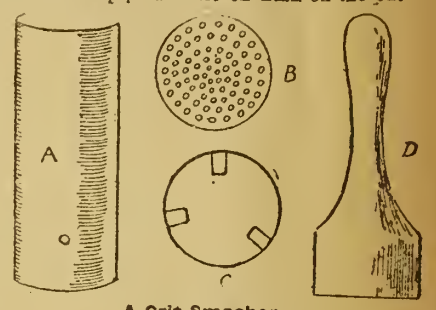
My father used to be very fond of Magpies, so one year we got a young one from a nest. It could carry a thimble full of water without spilling any. It would also play hide and seek behind the shrubs in the garden. Mother took her rings off sometimes, and it would take them and hide them. It would also go into the bird-house and hide there, and when we went out it would open the door with its beak and let the birds out. For a long time we wondered who did this, and at last found the culprit. As it grew older it used to fly about the village, and a woman accused it of killing some of her chickens. When she caught it she killed it, and we were all very sorry.—Sent by J. Oglethorpe (age 13), Dover House, High Hill, Keswick.

Though I am only a beginner in the hobby, since taking your grand paper, CAGE BIRDS, each week I have got more and more interested and will try my best to further its circulation.—JAMES ROBINSON (Hulme).

The proprietors of "Danysz Virus," the preparation for the extermination of rats and mice, are offering a prize of ten pounds for the suggestion of a word, short and easy to pronounce suitable for the designation of their article, and capable of registration as a trade mark. Each word sent in will be acknowledged on receipt, and the prize money paid as soon as the word selected has been definitely accepted by the Registrar of Trademarks. Competitors should address, "Prize Word," Messrs. Danysz Virus, Ltd., 52, Lendenhall Street, London, E.C.



ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird-room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A GRIT SMASHER.

Sent by L. Toon, 34, Derby Road, Burton-on-Trent.

I enclose a sketch of a grit smasher which some of your readers who can get rough grit may find convenient to make and use. Take a piece of steam pipe about 1 ft. long and about 3 ins. diameter. Three inches from one end drill three ⅜in. holes round the pipe, and tap them. In the holes screw three ⅜in. studs, allowing them to project about ¼in. on inside of pipe and file off flush on the outside. Take a piece of wrought iron plate ⅛in. thick, and of the same diameter as inside of pipe, and drill all over with holes to suit size of grit required. Drop this plate inside the pipe so that it rests on the three studs. Anything heavy and suitable may be used as the crushing implement. Even egg shells, etc., may be placed on the perforated plate and crushed. A, piece of pipe; B, perforated plate to fit inside pipe; C, end view of pipe showing studs; D, a crushing implement. If the reader cannot make it himself, any blacksmith, etc., will do so at a very trifling cost. —L. TOON.

No. 251.
AN EASILY-ARRANGED DRYING APPARATUS.

Sent by Fred Allen, 26, Mount Street, Cleckheaton, Yorks.

Seeing the show season is now at hand, I enclose a sketch of a drying cage. Instead of the cage bottom being of wood (as in most drying cages) it is a flat tin vessel, 16in. by 11in. by 1½ inches, with a brass saw set in a cork at one end. When you are ready for washing your birds, fill the tin vessel with boiling water and screw the cork tightly in. Then place the cage about 2 feet from the fire. A sheet of cotton wool is the best to put in the cage bottom. Place the birds, as they are washed, in the cage, when the cotton wool absorbs the water from the birds. As soon as they can jump on to the perch, put the cage with birds in on to the mantle-shelf. The heat in the vessel, and cotton-wool being damp (through birds being laid upon it) cause a moist heat to rise, and the birds dry beautifully. There are no curled feathers, as with a dry heat.—FRED ALLEN.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS.

By C. P. ARTHUR.

(with additional notes by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., and W. Laskey).

The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognized as one of the most profitable and pleasure giving slots of foreign bird-keeping. In this thoroughly practical handbook an eminent authority and highly successful breeder of these two species gives very full details upon

How to Keep, Feed, Breed, Tame and Teach to Talk.

A handbook which should be on every bird-lover's book shelf. Two full-page illustrations.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

WHO was the prominent official of one of the specialist clubs seen wending his way to Queensbury Show a week too soon? Better a week too soon than a week too late; I think he won't forget the date now. What a good thing he tumbled across another fancier who knew the correct date; he might have been looking for the show yet!

THE third of the series of shows held under Yorkshire Union rules was held at Sandy Lane on the 17th inst., and proved somewhat of a failure as regards the number of entries, averaging only 13 per class throughout the show. The biggest drop was in the six Yorkshire novice classes, only 103 birds being staged, as against 203 at Gt. Horton the previous week; exactly 100 less. Now, ye novices, if you want more classes you will have to keep up better than this.

IT is with great regret I have to mention the sudden and tragic death of one of the members of the Great Horton O.S., Mr. A. Brayshaw, one of the partners of Messrs. Brayshaw and Jowett, well known as exhibitors and breeders of Cinnamon-marked Yorkshires. Mr. Brayshaw was in the employment of the Bradford City Tramways, as wireman, and it was in the execution of his duties that he met his sad fate. It appears he was on the Duckworth Lane route, in Toller Lane, and was at the top of the travelling platform used for fixing and repairing the overhead equipment, when by some means he lost his balance and fell a considerable distance to the ground, sustaining dreadful injuries to his head. A special car was brought out to convey him to the infirmary (which is on the same route), but sad to relate, he expired before reaching that institution. He was respected very much by all who knew him, was always greatly interested in the Yorkshire bird. His removal from our midst at the early age of thirty-six will be deeply regretted by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

SOME OBSERVATIONS ON THE LINNET.

By GEORGE A. WIDDAS.

Towards the end of the season the birds are more wary and become less in numbers, owing to a large quantity of them having been caught and also to the fact that the birds are partly migratory.

Haunts and Habits of the Linnet.

The Linnet is pretty generally distributed over the United Kingdom, and is very common in Ireland. It is also found in Southern Norway and throughout the southern part of Europe to Algeria, Morocco, Maderia, and the Canary Islands.

A few words of advice as to the feeding of Linnets would be very welcome to some, and as the majority of Linnets that are bought are young ones in their first feather, it follows that they need more attention than old birds if they are to be got on to hard seed, which they have never as yet fed on. One way is to soak summer rape until it is ready for sprouting and to mix a little crushed hemp with it; but at the same time one must have a feeder with the mixed seed, which they will have to live on in future, and also give a fair supply of fresh gathered groundsel, shepherd's purse, chickweed, or any of the wild seeding plants one can get. As the birds take to the hard seed, give less soaked seed, but keep up the greenfood until after the moult.

Another way is to dip the seeding plants in water and rub the hard seed on to it; it will adhere to the plant and will then be picked off by the birds.

A Good Stock Mixture.

The old birds do not require much assistance but it is as well to crack the hemp seed for them at first. A good stock mixture for them is as follows:—Two parts Canary one part summer rape and charlock mixed, half part hemp, and a quarter part linseed, with a nice pinch of niger; but in winter give less Canary and more hemp. With plenty of grit, clean water, and green food, you will be as kind to your birds as nature herself.

Bird Catching for Amateurs.

A Paper by Mr. H. J. Hawes (Forest Gate) read before the Members and friends of the L. and P.O.S. on September 17.

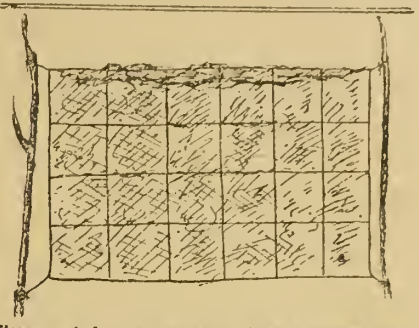
Having determined the position you will stand in by the end of your pull line, we come to yet another important item. We must again go to the tool bag and get out our three "bobbers." These little implements are to carry your "flirt-sticks," to which, when all is ready, we shall attach our braced birds. Having driven two bobbers into the ground, about a yard inside the net (one on either side), you must then drive the last one in between these two, but about a foot in advance of them. (This, and other operations, will be found made clear in the illustrations.) We must then find the flirt lines to control both the flirt stick and bird attached. If one examines a bobber, one will find they are made from some hard wood—mine I made from mahogany; but when I make new ones I shall use oak, as this wood does not split so quickly in the driving, which mahogany might do in hard ground. They are made about 9in. long and ¾in. in diameter, with a slot cut about 1in. long at one end, and about 1in. from the top, for your flirt-stick holder to work in, on a spindle. Above this slot a hole is bored right through the bobber, through which you must pass your flirt-lines. Then, tying your flirt lines on to your flirt stick, you must pass the lines under the "choppings" in the pull line. Then run out the whole length of line to the end of pull-line.

When the three lines are all paid out, you are then ready to hook your braced birds on to your flirt sticks. There are two ways of doing this: one is an old way, the other (which I employ) I claim as an improvement of my own. I use fishing tackle swivels, as they save time, and on very cold days, when one's fingers are nearly frozen, they may save a bird or two from escaping. You may also use a "runner" or two pegged down in your nets, as you may want them for catching "sharp" birds, that is, birds that are knowing or timid. A "runner" is a bird braced but not attached to the flirt-lines, so able to move at will on the ground. After putting your seed down, and your ground drinkers for your braced and runner birds, you may call your net complete.

But before leaving this part of the business, I must mention that in laying out the nets you must study which way the wind blows, for it is common knowledge that a bird invariably flies against the wind; also, if you stand to pull adversely to the wind, one of the wings of your net will get what is termed "windbound." Some catchers use a small pulley to counteract this wind-binding, but by studying the wind you will not need this, for instead of allowing the wind to hinder, you may gain assistance from it. So you must face the wind, and as sometimes you may wish to get laid out before daybreak (to catch the birds on their first feed), when only a gentle breeze is blowing, and you cannot discern a single leaf moving, you may ask, "How am I to be guided?" Well, I've proved this is the surest method known. It was told me by a seafaring friend of mine. By placing one's finger in one's mouth for a few seconds you will obtain your body, or blood heat now withdraw your finger, and hold it above your head. On whichever side of your finger you first feel a sharp twings of cold, from that direction does the wind blow. However slight the breeze, this is a "tell-tale."

Now that we have got our nets laid out, and the brace birds or bobbers, with pull line and flirt lines all in order, we must see to our call birds. I myself generally carry four stout singing Linnets; four singing Chaffinches and two stout singing Goldfinches; this is the kit for "branching" time, song being what you principally want at this time, as the only chance one has is to paralize the youngsters, as it were, with song. The old birds are not so easily caught until flighting time has begun, and then I carry six Linnets, four Chaffinches, and one hen Goldfinch or cock Green bird. This comprises my pack, or kit, for catching with clap nets.

I would impress upon intending recruits not to abuse the braced birds by pulling them heedlessly up and down, as by that means you will not only frighten any birds that may be in the mood to chance their luck, but also cause your own braced birds unnecessary worry. Of course, if you see your sport coming towards you and heading for the nets, let them have their heads, and the bird is yours for sure. But should they get off scent and wheel round, just calmly show your intended catch the braced bird of whichever species he may be, and if he is to be caught, he will come down to it; if he is not to be caught, you may show him a whole seed factory, and it will not impress him in the least.



The Flue Net in Use.

How to use Flue Nets.

So much for the clap nets. I will now deal with a very favourite method of mine, and one which can be undertaken and enjoyed, by either walking or cycling, as I do, to any spot, in quest of one's favourites, no one being able to say whether you are out catching birds, or a train. I allude to catching by a net called the "Flue Net." This net is made in various sizes, but I find the most convenient net is one 2ft. 6ins. square, and which can be carried in one's vest pocket.

You must select a spot in some sheltered place in between a double set hedge, or round some watering place which you know birds frequent; and as birds have their flys, just as rabbits have their runs, these will be found to be the best places to select. In this particular mode of catching, the natural instinct of hunting and trapping, which I find within myself, and am convinced is within every Englishman, will assert itself: for as a race, are not we Englishmen, from the earliest times, by nature hunters? You will happen on a shady spot on a very hot day, perhaps, close to a spring-fed pond or brook, and you will, without hesitation, take out one of your "flue nets" and look out for a suitable overhanging twig on either side of you, and upon these you will tie the two top corners of your net, after making sure that the upper part of your net is hung so as to enable you to draw the lint or surplus netting through the top, so that when a bird strikes your net, he will make for himself the purse by which he captures himself.

You must then see to the fixing up of your bottom strings, and if you cannot find a convenient root or twig upon which to tie your net down, you must construct one by taking out the pocket knife (which is a most essential tool for would-be catchers), and cut two prongs or crooks; then sharpen the end, drive them square to your two top corners, hook on your bottom string, and your net is ready to receive the smallest donation—the smaller the better for the catcher, as they turn out to be, as a rule, of the most value; a Golden-crested Wren is, you'll agree, more valuable than a Starling or Thrush. In fact you never know your luck. You may catch, as I did a few weeks ago in Essex, a Haw finch, Nightingale and Blackcap at one "beat" (my friend, Mr. Childs, who was with me at the time, nearly collapsed at the sight, "so did I"); or you may have gathered in as lovely a lot of Hedge and other Sparrows and Starlings as you wish to see. So much for the "Flue nets."

On Saturday, August 1st, youngster No. 1 made its appearance, fully fledged. Three others followed on Sunday, or rather, to be correct, two flew out and one popped its head out of the log; so I know that my patience had been rewarded, and that I was the proud and happy possessor of four young Andaman Starlings.

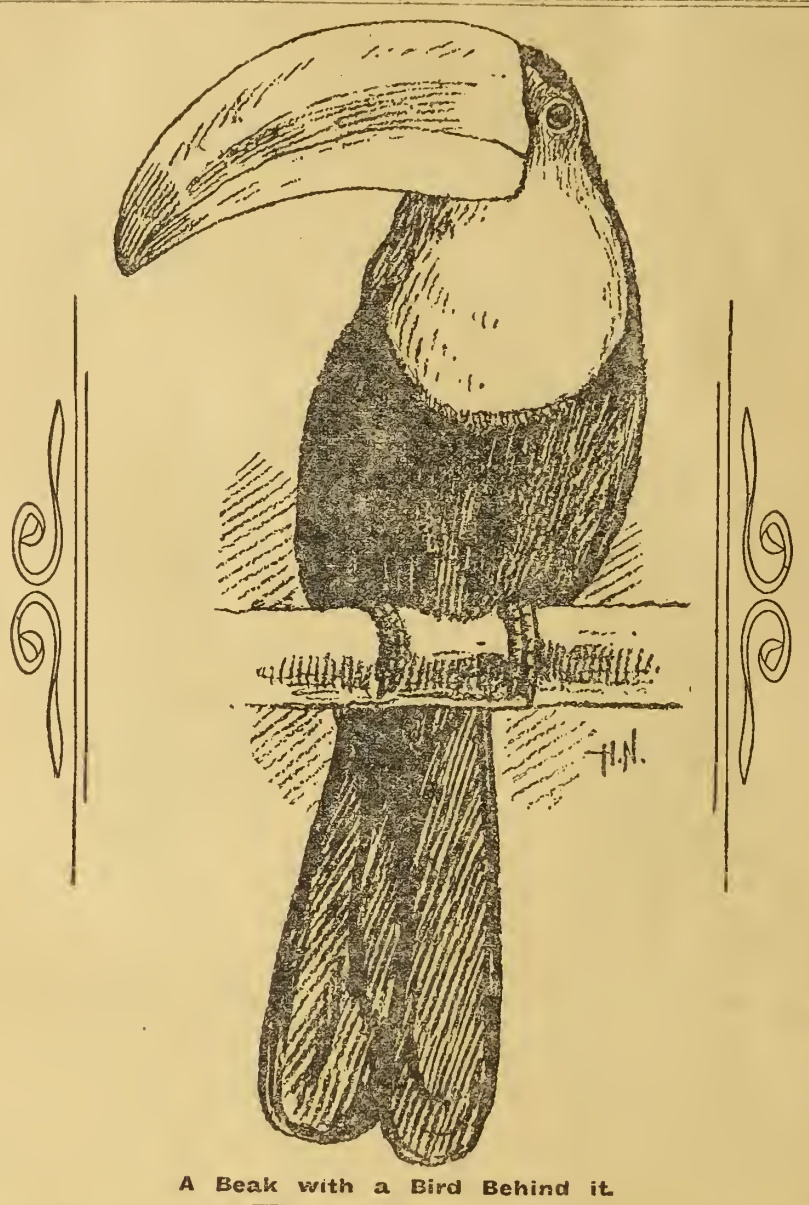
The youngsters have the black on their wings beautifully laced with white, their waistcoats are snowy white, their tails greyish, their beaks pinkish, as also their legs; their eyes are the same as their parents. They have a grey mark down the back of the head, where their parents are white.

It was a pretty sight to see the old birds feeding. The youngsters sit on the ground or on a branch, and as they open their beaks with a little shudder of pleasure, the old one runs at them and pops—not one, but—half-a-dozen fat mealworms into the open mouth. You wonder where they have all gone!

Feeding begins at daybreak and ends at about 6.30, when no doubt the parents have had about enough of it. As I stand and look at these youngsters, my feelings are of the kind known as "indescribable," for human happiness consists in having what you want and wanting what you have, and I firmly believe with the immortal Josh Billings that "it is a darned site easier tow find six men who ken tell exactly how a thing ought tew be did than tew find one who ken do it."

I may end up this article with a note of warning. Always cover the glass windows on the inside of the aviary with wire netting, as when youngsters leave the nest they fly out with a rush straight before them, and being unable to distinguish glass from light with their untrained eyes, fly bang against it, and either break their necks, or so badly injure themselves that they have to be put out of their misery. How often the same thing happens with our English birds! Hardly a week passes but there comes a thud on our dining-room window, and when we go and look out, there is some hapless Blackbird or Thrush lying dead on the bed beneath.

Chapter xx.—My American Mocking Birds.



For four years I have been trying to breed the American Mocking Bird. Of course, there will be failures. For three years I failed dismally. Successes, by which we proposed to make our rivals green with envy, do not come off. Birds on which we set our hopes go to the Crematorium, but still we are not disheartended. Hope springs eternal in the human breast, and so it did in mine.

For three years I tried valiantly to breed off two cocks. Perhaps my readers will smile, but it is none so easy to tell a hen Mocking Bird as some people may imagine. I know what they say in books and "Advice Columns" in the papers. I, alas, followed these blind judges, only to meet with disappointment. For three years I had most beautiful nests, but no eggs were ever laid. I blamed the cat and all sorts of things, but never suspected the true cause—the gender of the birds. What at last undeceived me was a battle royal that I fortunately witnessed, in which one of the contending parties lost an eye.

Then my mind was at rest. I knew why I had failed, and at once proceeded to look for a remedy. It was a case of cherchez la femme again, a very difficult task in this case. The only way that I could see was to get half-a-dozen Mocking Birds together and compare them, on the off-chance that there might be a hen amongst them.

I sent to a friend, who kindly allowed me a consignment to pick from. For long enough I examined them, but for the life of me could not detect any difference. Some had more white on the wing; some were lighter some darker in body colour; but I felt sure they were cocks by their build and carriage. At last I thought about Parrots; in some you can tell the sex by the eye. I looked over the Mocking Birds, and lo, two out a big cagefnl had green eyes, all the rest were red or gravel. "Eureka," I cried, "I have found out the secret." And I had, for with the green eyes went a general look of femininity.

The hotter of the two hens I lost as nearly as a "pop," as we say up here. I was ill in bed for a week, and the attendant who looked after the birds for me forgot to fill the water-pot. I never saw a bird more nearly gone, but by superhuman effort I managed to pull her round.

A Beak with a Bird Behind it.

This curious and interesting foreign bird, a fine example of the Sulphur-Breasted Toucan, secured first prize at the recent Battersea Show for Messrs. Smith and Son, and was much admired by the visitors.

In the early spring, I liberated this hen with the one-eyed cock in a nice big aviary, thickly planted—a regular Mocking Bird's paradise. Their companions were a pair of Bearded Tits, a pair of Red-Cheeked Bulbuls, and a pair of Blackcaps, and the Chinese Painted Quails. The Mockers, in spite of the bad character many give them, molested their neighbours in nowise, but confined themselves to their own domestic affairs.

For a few days the cock sang most magnificently, and no one who has not heard a Mocking Bird has any conception of his vocal powers. He can imitate any bird to the life. I have heard mine call like a hen Manycolor wanting to pair, and for all the world could have sworn that the Manycolor was there. I have heard him scold like a Peggy Whitethroat to the life, squawk out like a Blackbird when frightened, sing like a Blackcap, and all in the most life-like manner.

A DEMONSTRATION OF BIRD WASHING.

Given by Mr. A. W. Curtis before the City and Suburban A.C.B. on October 12th.

The announcement that Mr. A. W. Curtis was to give a washing display, drew a large number of members, especially novices, to headquarters on October 12th. Letters were read from Messrs. J. W. Ramsden (on C.B.U. Meeting), A. Lazarus (disputing Essay award), and Secretary C.B.U. (on Medals Competition). The result of the Norwich Plainhead competition was announced as follows:—Champion, F. Easterling, 16 points; Amateur, J. Buckman, 12 points. Nov.: W. Sanders, 14 points. Silver medals were presented by the chairman; also medals for the essay competition, viz.: Gold, W. Page; silver, Mrs. Morrison; bronze, F. Vincent. Foreign birds (with hybrids runners up) resulted as the draw for the shield. The adoption of the report of the London Federation by the delegate (Mr. A. C. Burn) was carried. The chairman then called upon Mr. Curtis. The association's large, up-to-date washing equipment being all in readiness, Mr. Curtis commenced to prepare the water, at the same time declaring against the practice of using the water too hot, with the object of taking out of a bird all they could, for the purpose of reducing it to a state of docility whilst in the hand; also a word of warning to remove rings from off the finger, and that the hands be properly clean. He used hot water that had previously been boiled, into which he put a piece of borax as large as a Barcelona nut, and for the purpose of cooling it he used boiled water that had become cold; by that system it was the nearest approach to soft water. Londoners were greatly handicapped in the matter of the quality of water, and well did he (Mr. Curtis) remember Jimmy Bailey (one of the best in the art of staging a bird) in the presence of a leading judge at the Palace say "that he didn't like our water," when asked how he got on with washing his friend's birds here.

Taking a Plainhead (his favourite bird) from a show cage, Mr. Curtis placed it between his thumb and first finger of the left hand, and commenced operations by well soaking it by the aid of a hair shaving brush, using Vinolia soap, and remarking that Pears, curd, carbolic, and several more were good soaps, but he preferred Vinolia Butter Milk soap, as this came away from the bird in lumps. He then proceeded to wash from the top of the wing, as it had a tendency to keep a bird quiet, and continuing down to the tail he placed that upon the edge of the basin, explaining that by that means it was possible to wash the dirtiest of tails, but if only soiled he placed it upon his wrist.

Turning the bird over, he proceeded to wash its breast and inside wings, not forgetting to rub it well under the beak. Turning it over once more, he proceeded to wash the neck, this being the most important part; and, lastly, the head, using the brush delicately whilst operating upon the cheeks, and not too much about the eyes and over the top of beak (which he washed with a tooth brush).

At the Next Basin.

Moving to the next basin, he proceeded to rinse the bird under the wings, afterwards holding it more upright to keep the water from entering the beak, and rinsing it with a small teacup, advocating the use of plenty of water, although two rinses over the head he considered sufficient. He never allowed a bird to stick its head into its shoulders, or he would be unable to rinse the soap out, and avoid as much as possible nipping the neck to prevent the feathers curling.

Before commencing to dry the bird, he sponged it several times, not with the object, as some might think, of removing the soap, but to impart a little more warmth into its body. With a piece of cloth that had previously been used for wrapping up meat that had been conveyed to England (which he considered was warmer and softer than linen and excellent for absorbing the moisture) he commenced to dry it, warning the members to be careful how they dried the tail, never to draw it downwards, but push it up as though one were pushing it in. (Here Mr. Curtis related a story how when he started to wash his first bird he pulled out its tail.) After drying, he placed the bird into his cylinder drying cage without any previous wrapping, but to show those members who did not possess one, he rolled it up, telling them to always place it tail towards the fire, so that the feathers would lie the proper way when dry.

Some Words of Advice.

Whilst the birds were drying, Mr. Curtis gave a few words of advice. It was necessary in London, he said, to wash birds three clear days before a show. Before starting to wash he would draw their attention to the importance of having a well-cleaned cage to put them in and of not removing the birds to it until their body feathers are dry. One point he must be severe about, and that was not to advise novices to wash their own birds, as they had a tendency to do it before the birds were properly through the moult, the result being that after two or three shows they were practically washed out. Before transferring birds back to their stock cages it was absolutely essential that they also be spotlessly clean, otherwise it was often observed that when baths were hung on the consequence was they would rub their cheeks and beak against the wires and backs of cages, and nothing could look worse on the show bench, thus reducing as it were the washing process to a mere farce. Always see that the bird's claws and beak are cut before proceeding to wash them.

Be sure to have perches properly fixed, and six inches apart to prevent hinged tails. It had been his (Mr. Curtis's) privilege for many years to act as steward at various shows, and he had seen instances where birds could not get a proper grip of the perches, and nothing was more annoying to a judge. He might also refer to Crests, whose perches were sometimes as high as Norwich Plainheads, instead of being low down, so that the judge had an uninterrupted view of the formation of the crest. He greatly deplored the sending of rusty and leaking water tins, for he could not conceive anything more harassing to officials than to fill up a water tin and immediately witness the contents trickle down on to, and sometimes into, the cage below, and from that to the floor. Surely tins at 1d. each, or 9d. a dozen, were well within the reach of all. Get birds accustomed to the show cages, and when taking them to a show, see that they are well wrapped up.

Novices should not be discouraged at their first attempt at washing, but rather should they be spurred on to experiment upon the worst bird in their room. Questions were asked by Messrs. W. Page, A. S. Wheller, A. C. Burn, and T. Kelly, and ably answered by Mr. Curtis. The chairman moved that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered to Mr. Curtis, which was enthusiastically carried, Mr. Curtis suitably replying.—V. WYNN, Hon. Sec.

OUR COLOURED PLATE OF NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARIES.

Our coloured plate this week, as we announced in our last issue, marks an entirely new departure in the portrayal of prize-winning cage-birds. It is, in short, in the nature of a coloured photograph, being taken direct from the two Norwich Plainhead Canaries after death, and when they had been set-up and mounted by that well-known Gloucester taxidermist, Mr. Alfred Thomas, in an artistic and life-like manner to which, we think, the result bears ample testimony.

As to the success or otherwise of the plate itself—its acceptability to fanciers—we are content to leave that in the hands of our readers. We venture to think, however, that the realistic nature of this picture—the birds being life-like, their good points unaccentuated, their faults retained—is sufficient to secure for it a measure of appreciation.

Coming to the birds themselves, the Clear Buff was bred by Mr. G. Gwilliam, of Gloucester, in 1906. It won for him the following prizes:—1906-7, First and Special Cheltenham, Second Gloucester, and Third Coventry; 1907-8, First Bristol and First Gloucester. These were the only occasions on which it faced the judges. The Unflighted Yellow was bred by Mr. A. E. Wasley, also of Gloucester, who has been good enough to pen an account of the bird and his methods of management generally.

Mr. Wasley tells how the Unflighted Yellow was Bred.

I am delighted to hear you have portrayed on your coloured plate my unflighted ticked yellow Norwich plainhead cock, and it gives me much pleasure to supply you with a few notes concerning the same. This bird, I am sorry to say, had a short career on the show bench, being exhibited only at the following shows: Gloucester C.B.S., first and spl.; Cheltenham C.B.S., second; and Leeds C.B.S., second. When he returned from the last-named show he had a severe cold and unfortunately died on the following day.

The bird was bred from a large clear buff cock with an exceptionally good head and neck and excellent feather, but a stock bird. The hen was a ticked yellow, and she also had a good head and neck with nice feather and colour; she was also very short and thick for a yellow. She was related to my clear yellow cock bird which won second at the Palace this year. This pair seemed to "hit" well, as I bred several very typical birds from them, both during last year and this.

My aim as a Norwich Plainhead breeder is to produce a bird with a large, full and neat head, short thick neck, short body, flights and tail, with nice quality of feather, which must be well carried. I am convinced that to be successful on the show bench an exhibitor must have a good "top" on his birds. The Norwich Plainhead Club's scale of points gives 25 for a round, full and neat head with short beak and thick neck; and I think the majority of our judges never forget to give them when sorting the birds out. We hear of judges passing or disqualifying birds in the classes for "long 'uns" for being over length; why not in classes for the "short 'uns?"

When pairing my birds I always bear well in mind the good and bad points of each pair I intend to put together, counterbalancing any particular bad point. For instance, I would never think of pairing two birds with bad wing or tail carriage, and so on. I don't know anything more likely to prove hereditary than the last-named. I do not mean to say that if I had a bird which had either of these defects, but which was good in other respects and bred from birds with good wing and tail carriage, I should dispense with it; I should not. But be sure its mate is extra good on these points. So when pairing up I always keep well in mind the good and bad points in the birds during the last two generations.

Hens on the long side I don't like unless they are extra thick ones; then I would pair them to fair-sized typical cocks, and the best birds from this pair I should use for the purpose of keeping up size. Taking breeding hens on the whole, I like them to be short and typical, with good quality of feather. The cocks I like to be as large as possible; I don't mind if they are a shade on the long side, providing they have size, as I find that the continual pairing up of two short birds decreases size.

Double-buffing I do not like. No doubt good buffs are bred this way; but my reasons for not doing so are that if you pair yellow to buff you get more buffs than yellows among the youngsters; every breeder knows how difficult it is to get a good yellow cock or hen. How much more difficult it must be if we double-buff! Should I want to introduce a little fresh blood into my stock I should always keep my eye open for the fancier's birds which are very strong in points where mine are weak. I might say I am a great believer in breeding for style and carriage, and also for colour, as no amount of colour-food will make a naturally poor-coloured specimen a good-coloured one.

I prefer a double breeder for each pair, this being less trouble and a more healthy method. One cock to one hen, is my motto, unless I have a special object in view; I think the young are then larger and more robust. I feed on egg and breadcrumbs (not giving too much of the latter), with a teaspoonful of boiled rape or the same quantity of maw mixed with it. When the young are three or four days old, I commence to give crushed hempseed, giving them fresh food three times a day. I like to feed as early as possible in the morning, so as to induce the hen to leave the nest and get to work. I also give a little milk-sop each day when the hen has young; I find they thrive well on it. In fact I find this encourages many a bad-feeding hen. I consider it, too, one of the most useful things in cases of illness, having done more for me in the way of cures than any drug I know of. For green food I prefer ripe chickweed as long as I can get it; but I always give a plentiful supply of this, so that the hen will only feed on the seeds. When I cannot get this I finish off with lettuce, taking care to remove all stale greenfood. I give it fresh three times daily.

When the young are able to feed themselves I turn them into a large flight so that they may develop and grow. I never allow any of my hens to hatch after about the middle of July, preferring to get them all through the moult as early as possible. I always moult the young in good-sized flights, so that when they are three parts through the moult I am able to pick out any I think will make up well, and cage them off in two's or singles.

I am not one of those who tell you they never take the seed away in order to make them eat the colour food, because I do so each day for three or four hours until they get well up in the neck with the moult. Then I generally find they will eat sufficient colour food to bring the head out to about the same depth of colour as the body. Those birds which are no use for show I run in the flights, as they then give much less trouble. This gives one more time to attend to those intended for show purposes. My breeding hens I run into the flight, where they remain all the winter. They have a diet of plain canary seed, with a "tit-bit" of the following mixture: hemp, inga, linseed, rape and maw seeds about three times a week, until about February, when I give a little egg food once a week and a little inga seed. This prevents egg-binding. And with this diet they are usually kept in good, sound breeding condition. The cocks I treat as occasion may demand, some coming into condition without any assistance.

Before the breeding operations commence I give everything a good spring cleaning; then with an occasional hunt for that terrible pest, red mite, I find that my birds run very well over the breeding season. Then, of course, I go through all the breeding cages again.

Accidents, they say, are liable to happen in even the best regulated families. The colour-printers, well-behaved as a rule, are responsible for our accident this week, for by some unfortunate mischance, which we very much regret, they have transposed the names of the owners of the two birds on our coloured plate—Mr. Wasley's should be under the Ticked Yellow Cock, and Mr. Gwilliam's under the Clear Buff Cock.—EDITOR.

"SYPHON" STOVES

Require no Flue.

Give no Smoke or Smell.

Bird Rooms, Aviaries, Bed Rooms, Nurseries, &c.

Mr. J. B. Holroyd, Breeder and Exhibitor of Champion Yorkshire Canaries, Shipley, Yorks, writes:—

I have great pleasure in speaking in the highest terms as to the qualities of your "SYPHON" STOVES. I have had one in use for several seasons in my Bird Room and have found it excellent. It is most economical and does away with the labour of attending to a fuel stove. There is no dust to fly about, a great consideration when exhibition birds are kept. Another great feature is the absence of smoke or smell.

GENTLES: HOW TO BREED AND KEEP THEM.

By G. MOORE.

Gentles, as most people know, are the larvæ of the common blowfly, and being easy to breed and procurable practically all the year round, they form one of the most useful live foods we have for insectivorous birds, either to the fancier with his pet Thrush or Lark, or to the exhibitor with his team of delicate softbills. Second only to mealworms, in fact, for the more delicate ones, I think they are to be preferred, the skins being more easily digested, especially when quite fresh.

Not only Softbills, but also some members of the Finch family are fond of them, particularly Goldfinches. No doubt the reason we hear so many of these dying when they are first caught is that they miss the small grubs that naturally form their food, especially in the late autumn, when most thistle and hardheads contain one or more. Small gentles greatly resemble these grubs, and if a few are added to their seed, the Goldfinches soon get on them, and the deaths will thus be brought to a minimum; at least, that has been my experience.

How to Breed Them.

The usual objection to breeding them is that it is rather an offensive job; but with the following method, this is greatly reduced. To start breeding, get an old tin, size according to quantity required. The tins that pine-apples, etc., are preserved in do well for the job. Then get from your butcher two or threepennyworth of scraps of meat, if a bit stale so much the better. Place this in the tin and stand it in the open, if the weather is cool a sunny spot should be chosen; this will soon get blown. Then place the tin in a larger one half full of dry sand. When gentles have done feeding they will crawl into the sand, and in two or three days will thoroughly scour themselves, and be as clean to handle as mealworms; the inner tin can then be buried, and another one started.

If you want them to keep fresh for some time separate them from the sand with a fine riddle and put them in some meal or bran, adding a little chopped suet that has not been salted.

The time taken to breed gentles is from two to three weeks in the warm weather and a little longer as the weather gets cooler. If they have to be bred near a dwelling it is best to start the tin with a small piece of meat first, and add a little more each day or two as they grow; they then consume everything eatable as they go along; the tin never gets stale, and the smell is practically nil. Otherwise the best place in which to breed them is an old outhouse or shelter, in the far corner of the garden, taking care that no wet gets to them, or they will crawl out, and the whole lot be lost.

Keeping Them Through the Winter.

To keep them through the winter is the most difficult part, and the later you can breed them for this the better. Look out for the blowflies on sunny walls, ivy blossom, etc.; they are generally to be found there up to Christmas time. Catch them carefully and put them in a tin with a perforated lid. Then put in a small piece of meat, and stand them in a warm, but not hot, place. In a few hours—generally about twelve—they will have blown.

Keep the tin warm a day or so, until they have hatched out, and then you can go on breeding as usual; but they must be kept where the frost will not get at them. When they are ready let them crawl into an old pail, or vessel, half filled with ordinary garden mould, or sand, not too wet, but damp, and stand it in a cool, dry place. They will keep fresh then for a considerable length of time.

Should some turn to chrysalis, they are still useful; most birds like them just as well this way, and if a few are picked out, put in a tin with a perforated lid, and kept in a warm place, they soon hatch out into flies, and are a welcome tit-bit to caged Flycatchers, Swallows, etc., when it is difficult to procure any winged insects. When they are wanted open the tin in a room with doors and windows shut, then if they take to the wing they immediately fly to the window and can easily be picked off.

We hear that the Sunderland C.B.A. are offering 60 open classes at their annual show on November 20th and 21st next.

Another large consignment of Birds of Paradise is, according to a daily contemporary, on its way to the "Zoo," where there is already the finest collection of these lovely creatures ever seen alive in Europe. To find room for the newcomers will be no easy matter, for the cages in the Insect House, as well as those in the Small Birds' House, are full. The Bird of Paradise can no longer be termed rare in captivity, for in the course of a few days, if all goes well, the Regent's Park collection will contain something like fifty specimens.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

October Notes.

The migration of birds cannot be influenced entirely by cold weather and the scarcity of food, for at the present time, the middle of October, we are experiencing quite a second summer. We have warm nights and bright sunny days, the hedgerows and trees are still full of leaf, insects hum in the air, and creeping things are plentiful. Had the Warblers known it, they might have stayed another month at least in their English home. The House Martins are among the last to leave us, and the majority have gone; but a few stragglers may be seen sunning themselves in the early morning upon the tiled roofs of the cottages, and flying in company in the daytime, no doubt prepared to go when winter sets in, in earnest. Wild birds have quickly recovered from the moult; and we daily hear the silvery music of the Lark; not in fitful snatches of song. He has passed the recording stage, but is boldly mounting on wing and singing a long continuous strain with almost the fervour of the early spring; and with such a commencement he should gladden us with his carolling right through the winter, whenever the sun shines or there is a cessation of frost and snow. It is amusing to listen to the vocal efforts of the larger birds of the year; we hear them in the elms day after day; at first very babyish, but gradually acquiring volume and distinctness of phrasing, until some of them have almost the proficiency of the adult birds. The young Thrushes have completely out-distanced the others, and the Starlings still gurgle and wheeze in anything but a musical manner, but this is not surprising, for their elders are not always past masters in the art of song. The woods are almost as leafy as in the month of June, and one almost expects to hear the melody of the "King of Songsters," or see some graceful Warbler flit across the glade. How we miss them! The country seems almost deserted now they have gone. Thousands upon thousands have left us, leaving only the hardy ones to brave our searching winters. And now these home birds are particularly welcome. We watch their doings with more than passing interest, for we feel we have somewhat neglected them, while our rarer and more delicate summer birds were daily passing before our eyes.

A Large Inland Bird.

The Capercailzie, a large bird measuring some three feet in length, was at one time common in Great Britain. But in about 1750 it was quite exterminated. A century afterwards it was re-introduced, and has not only increased but has very much extended its range. It can now be found in several parts of Scotland. It is very tenacious of life, and we have heard some extraordinary tales respecting this.

Sitting Woodcock.

The plumage of many birds, especially those that nest upon the ground, is beautifully adapted for concealment. Of them all, the Woodcock is possibly the most difficult to detect. His mottled brown feathers, so closely harmonise with the dead leaves and discoloured herbage of the copse, that his nest is frequently passed unnoticed even by those who are observant and clever at nest finding. The large, beady eye of the Woodcock more often leads to his undoing than any particular colouring of the plumage. Evidently the bird is well aware of this protective colouration, for I have passed within a few feet of a sitting hen several times during the day without her once leaving the nest.

Sparrow Clubs Indicted.

The "Manchester Guardian" prints the following warning:—The question of the danger to other small birds from the activities of "Sparrow clubs" is a very serious one. Where Sparrow heads are worth money, men go out in the autumn evenings with long sticks and nets, and thresh all the eaves, ricks, hedges, and bushes, and every bird that becomes enmeshed in the net will be destroyed or caged. Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and Brown Linnets especially will suffer. Indeed, there are parts of central England where all these three varieties, especially the Goldfinch, have been almost exterminated by the activities of Sparrow-head hunters. All birds are fair game that blunder into their nets, and if they spare the Robin and the Wren—often only an exception—it is merely because they are influenced by the superstition which all country children are taught about these birds and their sacred friendships.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

IT IS NOT WHAT WE SAY

but what OTHERS say which should convince bird-keepers that by spending sixpence on "Cage Birds Annual" they are making the best investment of their lifetime.

Be convinced: look on page 269 of this week's issue and see what some of the leading fanciers of the day have to say about this Marvellous Compendium of knowledge on all Birdy Matters.

Coloured Plate.

Calendar.

A monthly calendar and diary, with novel table for ascertaining when eggs are due to hatch.

"Work of the Year."

A splendidly useful article, in which is set out the work amongst your birds for each month of the year. Perusal of it will enable the bird-keeper to anticipate his future wants, and be always ready to do whatever is needful and beneficial for his stock. Full of practical hints.

"Washing and Preparing Birds for Exhibition."

"The Breeding and Rearing of Canaries."

A very practical and thorough contribution from the pen of an old fancier, who gives many excellent "tips" as to the best ways to proceed. An article that will teach you something.

"Pairs Matched for Breeding."

"The Breeding of Hybrids."

An article on the fascinating pursuit of Hybrid breeding, by one who has made it a considerable study, and devoted much time to it. There are hints and advice in this contribution which may bring you profit and fame.

"The Keeping of British Birds."

A concise and practical article dealing with the mistakes of fanciers, and the keeping of birds in show condition, and giving valuable "tips" on feeding.

"Some Easily Obtainable Foreign Birds."

"Review of the Exhibition Year."

Every breed of Canary, together with Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, has its progress on the show-bench during 1907 dealt with by leading judges, specialists, and experts, and the names of the principal winning exhibitors are given.

"The Diseases of Cage-Birds."

A feature in itself worth the whole cost of the volume. Diseases and accidents are described, and the best medicines and methods of treatment stated in simple language, and very fully and completely. It will save you many valuable birds.

"Glossary of Terms."

The curious terms used by fanciers are fully explained. Reference to the alphabetically-arranged columns will at once tell you the meaning of such expressions as jonque, leafy feather, mooning, rowing, and the like.

In addition to these features will be found a

Directory to Cage-Bird Clubs, Associations and Societies, with particulars of subscriptions, etc., list of Officials and Secretary's name and address.
Directory to Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors of Cage-Birds.
Directory to Judges of Cage-Birds.
Standards and Scales of Points for Canaries and British Birds.

BIRD & LIVE STOCK STORES
9, GEORGE STREET, HULL, AND

(late Station-square, Harrogate). Under Royal patronage. I have pleasure in informing my numerous customers that I have taken over these businesses, and in order that the same may be under my personal supervision have closed the Harrogate Stores and transferred the entire stock to Hull. This change has necessitated my taking much larger premises at the above address, where I have separate show rooms and stock rooms for different kinds of live stock, which will be kept under the most satisfactory sanitary conditions. I trust my customers will still continue to favour me with their orders as heretofore for birds, animals, seeds, cages, and accessories. All Foreign birds are imported direct by me, and do not come through any establishment where disease may be contracted. See adverts under special headings.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

APPLIANCES.

"rumour" is again busy, the latest false rumour going the rounds is, that the testimonials I publish week by week are not genuine. To prove that this statement is false, I have sent the whole of the letters printed this week, together with scores of others that have never been published; to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for his perusal, and I publicly offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever solicited a testimonial, or published one that was not genuine. I believe in giving every customer sound, honest value at a reasonable price, and when a man does that, he can get plenty of trade and testimonials, too. If you want anything in the bird-catching line, patronise me just once, you will see I do not want extortionate profits. Clap nets made from genuine thread netting, ¾ mesh, 3 yards long 4/- pair, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds, 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds, 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair, all guaranteed fully 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All fitted complete with brass-mounted stave poles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate setting. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet poles 5/6, ditto 19 feet poles 6/6 each. Loose netting, made from 60's genuine thread, ¾ mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free. This netting is guaranteed finest procurable, and must not be confused with the American cotton fishing netting now being sold as bird netting. Self-acting spring net traps, by far the largest and most simple traps on the market, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 inches long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra. Single trap cages 6d. each; double ditto, 10d. and 1/-; Treble ditto, 1/3 each, all have seperate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Reg. No. 23927) guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Real Japanese birdlime, absolutely strongest made, does not run in sun, and guaranteed to hold a Hawk, 6d. ¼ lb., 10d. ½ lb., 1/6 1 lb; sample 3d., all post free. Round or square topped call-cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen, 27/- gross. Linnet or Goldfinch cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen. Lark runner cages, 3/6, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- dozen. Every description of cages in stock. Dealers should send stamp for wholesale cage list, prices and quality will surprise them. Everything required by catchers kept in stock; send stamp for full catchers' list. See following letters, all recently received:—"Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, October 10th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I had a pair last year from another firm, and found them to be made of twine, which is a failure and a fraud. Yours, T. Smith." "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbro,' October 5th. Sir, —Please send another tin birdlime. It is best I ever tried. You boast of it being able to hold a Hawk, and, strange to say, a Hawk was first bird over our twigs, and the lime held it on. Yours, V. Moody." "10, Steps-road, Stenhousemuir. October 5th. Sir,—We tried birdlime on Saturday, and found it a great success. Yours, C. Godfrey." "Woodford Grange, Thrapston. October 1st. Sir,—Please send me pair Sparrow nets for a friend who saw the clap nets you supplied to me and was quite delighted with them. Yours, W. Meacock." "46, Portland-row, Selston. Sir,—Please send following. The netting I got from you last year is best in the world. I had a hare in it, and it never broke a mesh. Yours, A. Fielding." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Sir,—Netting I had from you last year is as good as ever, and has done good service. Yours, P. Braidwood." "Grange-road, Kettering. Sir.—Very pleased with loose netting you sent. Yours, T. Green." "10, Byke Nook, Frizington. Sir,—Please send two call cages. My uncle has his, and is very pleased with them. Yours, J. Jenkison." "65, Low Town-street, Worksop. Sir,—Please send 4 yards netting. I had some from another firm last year, and it did not last the season out. Yours, J. Richards." "Bright View, Old Rathay, by Blairgowrie. Sir,—Please send 1 lb. birdlime. I have had it this three seasons, and it is best and cheapest I ever got, and first-class stuff. Yours, W. Hovelsroud" "10, Alpine Cottage, Beeston. Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from one firm more like garden netting than anything else. Yours, W. Worthington." "13, Finsbury-terrace, Finsbury Park, London. Sir,—Please send another pull line, I was highly pleased with last, as it is better quality than I can get in London. Yours, G. Barfoot." "Turnhill-terrace, Nantyglo. Sir,—Please send ½ lime. I had some last year, and cannot get better. Yours, J. Wise." "94 Whitworth-road, Rochdale. Sir,—I am quite pleased with trap cage. Please send following. Yours, E. Dean." "7, Birkland-street, Mansfield. Sir,—Please send following. I had very good results with your lime last year, also with nets you sent. Yours, G. Barson." "East Haddon. Sir,—Received nets, and am quite satisfied with them. Yours, R. Pudney" Thousands of similar letters open to inspection any time but these are sufficient to show that my goods are by far the cheapest and best on the market. Why pay exhorbitant prices when you can get better value for half the money? Remember everything is sent on approval; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully and promptly returned if every satisfaction not given. See British Bird column for further advertisement.

THE SUCCESS

I have achieved has not been due to empty paper bounce, but has been achieved by sending out the best birds it is possible to get at the lowest possible price. Just read what a few of my delighted customers say about them:—"Wellington Villa, Llandiudrod, Sir,—I received the cock Goldfinch all right. It is a beauty; it started singing as soon as I put it in the cage. I am sending for more."—"W. Evans, 32, Fisher-street, Swansea, Sir,—The six Goldies you have sent me has given me the fullest satisfaction; so much that I am placing another order with you, you give grand value and quick dispatch."—"S. H. George, . . Glasgow,—Goldies duly received in good condition; a fine pair; you will hear from me later, yours, J.R." I could publish more like these, as all my customers speak well of the quality of the birds. I can give you the same satisfaction if you will place an order with me. Grand cock Goldfinch, in perfect health and good coloured birds, 1/9 each, 3 for 4/6, 6 for 8/-; a few extra good birds, 2/-, 2/6, 3/- each, every bird warranted a cock; hens, 1/- each, 8/- dozen; splendid cock Bullfinches, like paintings, 2/-, 2/6 each; hens the right sort for muling, 1/-, 1/6 each. Cock Linnets, 1/- each, 3 for 2/-; a few beautifully pencilled birds, grand size, fit for show bench, 2/-, not fresh caught rubbish, but birds that have been caged for weeks. A trial order will fully convince you of the quality of my birds, and notice I send all on 3days' approval, at my risk.—J. W. Ward, Carr Vale, Bolsover, Chesterfield.

NO, I WON'T!

If others have disappointed you, I won't. I have during the past supplied customers with birds that has given every satisfaction, and I still have a few hundreds of birds in stock that have been moulted in my aviaries. It is foolish of you to purchase fresh-caught sickly rubbish when at the same price you can have picked birds, well on seed, singing their pure wild song. It is no brag, or empty bounce, but a well-known fact that I have the best collection of sound, healthy birds it has ever been your privilege to see. I have not to wait until they are caught. I have them in stock waiting your order. 1908 English Goldfinches, cocks 1/6, 2/- each, three for 4/-; extra large picked birds, muling, singing, showing, 2/3, 2/6, 2/9 each; Goldfinch hens, 9d., 1/2 each, three for 2/-; extra large Lincolnshire cock Linnets, clean moulted, red-breasted, cock birds, commenced singing, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6, six 2/3, twelve 4/-, twenty-five 7/6; specially selected birds for muling, showing, etc, 1/6, 2/- each, three 3/-; Greenfinches, 6d. each, 9d., 1/- pair; Redpolls, 8d. each, 1/- pair; Bullfinches, cocks, 1/6, 1/9, 2/-; hens, 1/-, 1/6 each; large cock Larks, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6; all birds sent on approval at my risk; neat travelling cages, 2d., 3d. each; send stamp for full illustrated list and prices of Canaries, British and Foreign birds. I have thousands of unsolicited testimonials open for inspection. "High-st., Guildford, 23rd October, 1908.—Many thanks for nice Goldfinch. Safely received. I certainly must compliment you. Each bird and cage I have had from you have arrived in perfect condition.—W. R. Charman to Miss Storey." "30, Wilton-rd., Ilford, 22/10/08.—Please send me three Goldfinches. The bird I had of you seven months ago is still singing splendidly.—W. Gooch to Miss Storey."—"3, Commercial-st., Nelson, 23/10/08.—Please send me three selected Linnets. The last you sent me I sold for seven times the price I paid you.—E. Bowen to Miss Storey." "2, Cumbrian-place, Llanelly, 24/10/08—Bird arrived Friday night in the pink of condition. Singing well. Perfectly satisfied. Very good bird for the money.—S. Mathias to Miss Storey." "18, Charles-st., Swinton, 24/10/08.—Goldfinches to hand. I am pleased to inform you I am well satisfied, and will patronise you in future.—E. Hawson to Miss Storey." The above with thousands of similar letters in original envelopes open for inspection. Make a note of it. I send all birds on aproval and guarantee satisfaction.—Miss E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

NOTHING PLEASES ME

better than for a customer to tell his friend exactly how he has been treated by me. In fact, I rely upon personal recommendations for the bulk of my trade. I believe in serving everybody so well that he is bound to advise his friends to deal with me, and so become a walking talking advert for my stock. I have largest collection of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches in the world, all in pink of health and condition, and well on hard seed, at 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 7/6, twelve 13/-, specially selected larger cocks, to moult, for show or muling, and guaranteed now in song, 2/- each; three 5/-, six 9/-, twelve 16/-; few clean moulted cocks, in superb condition, 2/6 and 3/- each, extra special clean moulted cocks, fit to win, immediately, 4/- and 5/- each; Cheveral cock Goldfinch 5/-, Peathroat ditto 3/6; hen Goldfinches 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; grand lot cock brown Linnets, everyone guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; specially selected larger cocks for show, muling, or Contest singing, and warranted now in song, 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 6/6; few fit to win now 1/6 and 2/- each. Don't pay exhorbitant prices for Linnets, but send to the man who has sold cup winners at 4d. each. (See recent testimonials). Cock Bullfinches, in full colour, 1/6 and 2/- each; Exhibition specimens 3/- each, Hew Bullfinches 1/- each, few extra large rich-coloured hens for show or Hybridising 1/6 each, cock Greenfinches 6d. each, three 1/-, six 1/6; Yellow Exhibition specimens 1/- each, cock Chaffinches 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; cock Bramblefinches 8d. each, three 1/6; Exhibition specimens 1/6 each; hand-reared cock Blackbird, magnificent singer and fit to win, 5/-; hand-reared cock Larks, contest singers, winners of two and three contests each 20/-, 30/-, and 40/-; wild-caught cock Larks, steady and in song, 1/-, 1/6, and 2/- each, Redpolls 6d. each, three 1/3. In response to numerous inquirics I beg to say that first consignment of Siberian Goldfinches reaches me on November 15th next. I am the only direct importer in the provinces of the genuine Siberian Goldfinches, and these will be absolutely first lot to arrive since last season. I am now booking orders for exhibition specimens at 7/6 and 10/- each. Intending purchasers will do well to place their orders with me at once, as all will be executed strictly in rotation, and everyone knows that the real deck sweepers are not as plentiful as blackberries. No man in England is allowed to select one of these birds until actually on my premises, so send to fountain head for the "Simon Pure." See following few letters, which are not old as Adam, but all recently received and never before published:—"Strathspey, Heythorp Street, Southfields, London, October 13th.—Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safe, and I thank you very much for sending such a beauty, as I wished. I am delighted with it.—Yours, A. Polley." "Attwood Terrace, Tudhoe, Spennymoor, October 19th.—Sir,—I am well pleased with the Goldfinch. I am certain no one would have sent a bird half so good for the money, and I shall certainly deal with you again. If all dealers in British would try to please customers like you, they would not need such catching adverts. I am now sure that I have found an honest dealer.—Yours, H. C." "Croft Buildings, Markinch, Fife, October 17th.—Sir,—I won first and special at Kelty with the Goldfinch I had from you.—Yours, J. Mackie." (This Finch was one of my 5/- birds and was supplied only a few days before show.—W.G.) "12, King Street, Thornhill Road, Falkirk, October 19th.—Sir,—Please quote price for the following birds. I had six of your picked Linnets three weeks ago, and they were grand birds at the price which shows you to be an honest man to deal with.—Yours, T. Dougall." "11, Townfoot, Old Cummock, October 20th.—Sir,—Many thanks for splendid cock Goldfinch and Linnet you sent me. I am more than pleased with them, and can assure you that you will have many more orders from here.—Yours, M. Semple." "Sandy, Beds, October 21st.—Sir,—Received Linnets and cages safe, and am well pleased with them.—Yours, A. Brown." "Poolstock, Wigan, October 22nd.—Sir,—Received birds quite safe, and am well pleased.—Yours, W. Ridge." "Hutton, Rudby, October 23rd.—Sir,—Received birds safe and am well pleased with them.—Yours, G. Eden." "Bridge Street, Helmsley, S.O., October 26th,—Sir,—Please send following. The Goldfinches I got from you have turned out good birds.—Yours, A. Hoggart." See previous issues of "Cage Birds" for some of the most convincing testimonials ever published. I guarantee every bird to have been properly netted in County of Worcester, and all are well caged steady and properly on hard seed before being sent out. All are sent on approval solely at my risk, either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and unless birds prove in every way satisfactory, all you have to do is to return it, and I promptly and cheerfully refund every penny of your money. No undermentioned conditions or trickery about my method of trading. You return birds and I return money; simple, isn't it? I claim to have more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together, and also to be originator of approval system in connection with wild birds. (Will copiers of my advertisement kindly copy last two statements of fact.) One trial solicited. See Roller Canaries; also appliance columns for further advertisement.

Fox and Thomson first at the Peterborough show, 2nd at Bolton show, this is the class of birds I sell. My A1 specials can beat the world for steadiness, size, colour, and markings. All one price, 2/6. Gentlemen who are desirous of coming to the front must try my specials, which are in the reach of all comers. Linnets, in full song, with a beautiful polished cage, and my book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/-. This is a real bargain. Fierce singing cock Linnets, with blood-red breasts, and extra loud voices, with new cage and my book of secrets, right for catching or contest-singing, only 2/-. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same value for the money. Deposit your money with the editor of this paper, for honest stuff, all on seven days' approval. Hundreds of these special birds in stock; no waiting. Linnets taught by the world's champion, will sing anywhere, only 1/6 each; these special birds are real bargains. Goldfinches, real peartree cock Goldfinch, full colour, the largest in England, with deep square-cut blaze, beautifully buttoned and mooned, and well tanned on breast; these prizewinners are 4/6 each; other fine Goldfinches, same size, full colour, right for muling, 3/6; Greypates, large, big birds, beautiful wing bars, well-buttoned, showing splendid colour, will make winners, 2/6. Keep your eyes open, my Roller Canaries will be fit shortly. Cock Canaries, singing fine, 6/- and 7/6 each; the best value in the market. Beautiful red-breasted Redpolls, the largest I have seen this season, right for muling, 1/6 and 2/-; other birds, 9d. Beautiful cock Larks, singing grand, 1/- and 1/6: these are as steady as rocks. Best Linnet whistles in England, 6d. each. Please read what others say: D. Thomas to H. Allen,—Dear Friend,—The birds arrived here safe, and in the best of condition. They were singing and calling all the way home. Thanking you kindly for the prompt attention you have given me, I remain, D. Thomas, Cwmbach, Aberdare. G. Craig, Eccleshill, to H. Allen. Sir,—I received bird quite safe, and am highly satisfied with it. Cannot be beaten at the price.—J. T. Caddy, 12, Castle-st., Fryston, near Castleford, to H. Allen. Dear Sir,—I am very pleased with the Goldfinches and Linnets I got from you, and I can honestly say that you can supply the best Goldfinches and Linnets in the world, so I shall always remain one of your customers. Caddy to H. Allen. Hundreds of testimonials open for inspection. Those who want good value for their money, write to Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

East Greenwich, supply their noted Hartz Mountain Roller cocks, bred for song alone, 5/- each; seven days' approval; our special No. III. birds, 10/- each, as charged 15/- for elsewhere, with a different name; notice, no better procurable; exchanges entertained.

DAVID FOSTER,

BREEDER, EXPERT, AND JUDGE of the Roller Canary, intends to give free to all readers of CAGE BIRDS his secrets of success on the Roller Canary, or any other information required; correspondence a pleasure; stamped addressed envelope for reply.

My Hartz Mountain and St. Andreasburg Rollers have just arrived. They are in grand form, rolling from daylight till dusk; specially trained, from 5/- to 20/-. Read following testimonial:—Victoria-st., St. Alban's, Herts. October 25th, 1908. Roller arrived safe and sound. I am more than satisfied. He sings beautiful. B. O'dell to Joe Thomas. All varieties of loud, free song cocks from 4/6 upwards. Send for my illustrated price list, post free, for every variety Canary or Mule.—Joe Thomas, Ambler Thorn, near Halifax.

Pretty Dick! Pretty Dick!

There can be no loneliness where you are. My birds are pure bred St. Andreasberg Rollers, and there are, honestly, no sweeter songsters at the price. I will send on approval, for seven days' trial, a delicate toned bird, one suitable for an invalid or a "ceiling lifter," which will make himself heard above any workaday din; prices from 6/6.—R. J. Adams, 2, Granville terrace, Wallasey, Cheshire.

DON'T ORDER ROLLERS

for a few weeks yet, as the best quality will not arrive till then. Our celebrated contest Rollers will arrive in November, and our breeders assure us they are better than ever. So reserve your order if you want satisfaction. We have now got some good St. Andreasburg Rollers in song; these are advertised by others as the very best, our price for these is 7/6 and 8/6 each. Hartz Mountain cock Canaries in song, our price 4/6 and 5/6 each; these are worth double.—Northern Aviaries, Preston.

CHAMPION ROLLERS.

Notice.—I have a splendid consignment of those extremely musical St. Andreasberg Rollers; these are splendid day and gaslight songsters; they are delightful, with their deep bass rolls, hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, bell, sharp, and gong notes, etc.; these are splendid quality; and are certain to please you; all on 6 days' approval, on receipt of P.O., or you can deposit the amount with the Editor, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, hens to match 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, inspection invited.—William Shaw and Son, 97, Essex-road, Islington, London, N.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN

Roller cock Canaries, direct from Hartz, beautiful birds, only 3/9 each; 21/- a stick. Try one.—Varney, Stratford."—"Tho Elms, 18, Whitebouse Loan, Edinburgh. — Hummell arrived safely, and sings lovely; it is a pretty bird, and gives satisfaction. — N. Turnbull." — Birds arrived —are singing well.—R. M. Lee, 79, Mill Street, Crewe."—"Broom, Newton Mears, Glasgow.—The birds arrived in good condition; I am very well pleased with such value.—J. Broom." 32, Easson Road, Darlington.—Bird to hand. I like the song wonderfully well, and thank you for your prompt delivery and attention to my instructions.—H. Hutchison." Send all orders to Varney, Stratford, London

ATTENTION PLEASE!

This is what you have been waiting for. I have just received my first consignment for this season of the world-famed- "Leipzig" Roller Canaries. (Cocks, no hens yet.) These cocks are in magnificent condition and full song, with long, hollow, and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble, runs soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trills, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and are guaranteed entirely free from harsh or objectionable notes whatever. Price 6/6 and 7/6 each. These birds are imported by me direct from Leipzig, and are same strain as have won innumerable contests both in Germany, and also England. Every bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole agent, no other dealer can get so much as one feather of this strain unless purchased from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, and are sent on full week's approval, solely at my risk during the whole time, either on receipt of cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS, and every penny of your money is refunded if bird fails to realise every expectation, and prove fully satisfactory. See British Bird and Appliance Columns for further advertisements.

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourablo trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill.—Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh, so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it.—Miss F. Blockett. Southfelt, Peynton, Cheshire.—Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song.—W. Glover to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers.—J. Leyland, January 16th, Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland. Oulton Lodge, Aylsham, Warwick, Sept. 20th, 1908.—Mr. Bagha wishes another Hummel Schoolmaster as supplied by Mr. Varney a few months ago. 24th.—Mr. Bapha has received the Hummel, which is again quite satisfactory. 22nd, 1908, 20, Bailey-street, Barnsley.—Hummel arrived safe. I am more than delighted with such superior song. 7, Brossington, 22nd, 1908, Snow Hill, Skellon, Staffordshire.—The Rollers to hand all safe and satisfactory.—Geo. Gratton. 20th, 1908, 20, Gladstone-street, Kilworth. Hummel to hand; what a beautiful song; so superior to all other Rollers imported in this district.—W. Pebury. 20th, 1908, 5, Millfield-road, Blengome.—I enclose 20/- for another Hummel. I am so delighted with the last one; it is one of the best birds ever heard in this district, and I have seen a few.—The Hon. A. Stevenson. 22nd, 1908.—Canaries to hand in pink of condition. I have had birds from all over the kingdom, but never received such value.—J. Smith. List free: sole importer and proprietor of these Rollers.—Varney, the Great Hummel Importer, Stratford, London. 23rd year of advertising.

DYKES' YORKSHIRES.

See report of Potteries and Cambridge Shows in this issue; and for further proof read this testimonial from—21, Cape Street, Belfast. Oct. 26, 1908. To L. Dykes.—Sir,—Am pleased to tell you the pair of Yorkshires arrived safe, and far surpassed my expectations. They are a grand pair of birds, and well worth the money; and I shall not hesitate to place all future orders in your hands, as I have never got such value from any English dealer before, although dealing in birds of all classes for the last 15 years. Please state your price for 1 clear yellow cock and 1 clear buff hen (Yorkshires), and 2 clear buff hens, all fit to win and in the same condition as the pair received. Reply at once and oblige.—Conn. Tansey. Another from 6, Nelson Place, Pendleton. Oct. 25, 1908.—Sir,—I received the birds quite safe, and I think they are the best I have seen for the money. I shall recommend you to my friends. —Thomas Leech. Another from 2, Hetton Square, Hetton-le-Hole.—Sir,—I received the birds safe, and they are up to the mark, and I am well satisfied. I had all the bird-men in to see them and they all say they are extra good birds.—C. Cowell. I have received hundreds of similar testimonials this last few weeks, all bearing dates, Oct., 1908, not 190—, which are open for inspection at any time. The show season is now in full swing, and if you want to win, or stock birds to breed your own winners, then send direct to the old reliable breeder, who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best satisfaction. I have a grand lot now ready in clear ticks, green marked, and cinnamon marked, and all correct type; standard length, and feathered to perfection: with that touch of breed so much admired on the show bench; all guaranteed healthy and co'd room bred and kept. Colour-fed to perfection or natural colour.

Grand typical yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; buff cocks at 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, all on full song and seven inches long; pairs properly matched by practical experience to breed winners (NOT WEEDS) at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; nice racy tight feathered yell. hens at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8,6, 10/6 each; buff hens at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each.

Exhibition cocks or hens ready for immediate exhibition; some real gems that can win in the keenest competition, and some that can win at local shows, very reasonable; state wants and before deciding to purchase elsewhere, send for my illustrated new price list post free.

ALL ON SEVEN DAYS APPROVAL

at my risk and safe delivery guaranteed any distance. Travelling cages 3d. extra; have bred and sold some more noted winners this season already; see last week's "Cage Birds." Please note old address:—

CHITTENDEN'S YORKSHIRES.

With 12 birds exhibited at Horton, Darlington, Derby, Sandy-lane and Queensbury, I won 3 firsts, 2 thirds, vhc., and c., in the keenest competition; any one, or all, for sale; I can supply winners in Clears, Tick, Unevenly Marked, Green or Cinnamon marks, cocks or hens; for price and particulars apply 108, Bolton Hall-road, Bolton Woods, Bradford.

OGDEN BROS,

up-to-date winners are now ready. Having proved to the Fancy to have the best, winning the world's championship in the C.M.Y.C.C., 1907 and 1908, also second place for Shackleton's 30-guineas trophy, competed for at all Yorkshire Union shows, also prize winners in the Y.C.C. competitions, finishing up first at Crystal Palace 1908. Having bred over 200 we have for sale real good birds, bred direct from these champions; cocks from 9/-; hens from 6/-; can be seen any day; inspection invited; all sent on aproval; cash or deposit; if not highly satisfied your money returned prompt. (See show reports).—15, Ashwood-st., Dudley-hill, Bradford.

AMBLER'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES

have been known throughout the Fancy for over 20 years. Winning at all the leading shows, including Crystal Palace. Our last season's champion yellow was acknowledged the best yellow seen for years, finishing up 1st Palace, also winning CAGE BIRDS £5 special—thus proving our strain one of the best in the Fancy. As we are not able to exhibit much we offer for sale absolutely the choicest stock of exhibition Yorkshires in the world; perfect type, fine length, showing plenty of leg, teeming with quality, and showing that breed that always catches the judge's eye. All grandly fed, and can win in the keenest company. One exhibitor alone last season who bought a team of birds from us won 26 first, 21 seconds, and 14 third prizes, besides 3 cups and specials. This is no empty bounce, but solid facts. If you want to win or breed winners send to Amblers. Stock birds, wonderful length, full of style and quality, just the sort to breed champions, pairs from 15/- to 60/-; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed; all birds sent on approval; stamp particulars.—Messrs. Amblers (late of Bradford), 138, Westminster-road, Morecambe.

"Length, Quality, Position, and Feather"

Read this testimonial from—145, Jamieson Street, Govanhill, Glasgow. Oct. 25th, 1908.—Cock arrived safe, but I was too late to enter him at City Show. He would have been a certain winner among the champions, I am sure. For four years you have supplied me with stock and exhibition birds, and your prices are only about one-half of what other breeders charge, and far better quality. I cannot see anything to beat your birds, and you will have my future orders, and recommendations.—F. Nicholson to J. Taylor. Typical yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each. Buff cocks at 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each. All on full song, and seven inches long: Clears, ticked, green marked, cinnamon marked, and clear pink-eyed: — Properly matched pairs (cock and hen), 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair. Fine racy yellow or buff hens at 3/6, 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6 each; worth double in a few weeks time; exhibition cocks and hens, ready for the keen competition, and properly trained to show cages; very reasonable. Few recent winners cheap. Particulars on application. All cold room kept, healthy, and feathered like wax. Inspection invited at any time. Illustrated price list, with winning testimonials, post free. Travelling cages, 3d. extra. Terms: Seven days' approval at my risk to any part of the world.

NORWICH AND CRESTS,

Also my Easy Payment System.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my booklet entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four week's trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us, and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

We took the opportunity on October 24th at Rochdale Town Hall show of calling a meeting, and it was well attended, every district being well represented. Mr. J. Oldham (Middleton Junction), was elected chairman, and we at once went into the "Cage question," as several members have club cages bearing the name of Messrs. Reeves' who formerly made these cages before we adopted the standard cage. It was decided that in future we also recognise Messrs. Reeves' cages. It was further decided that should any of our members desire to give one of our society medals they have the privilege of same through the society. It was also decided to order the society's medals, and if possible have them on view at Rochdale Good Intent and Littleborough shows, with the view of strengthening our membership. Our next meeting will be held on November 7th at Rochdale Good Intent Show. Points gained at Rochdale O.C. Show, October 23rd and 24th:—Champion Section—W. Adams 20, J. Garner 17, H. Laycock 16, E. Lowe 10, and J. Oldham 9; Novice Section—J. R. Crossley 19, J. Brookes 7, and C. Whitehead 4.—W. ADAMS, Sec.

SINGING CONTESTS.

NEWTOWN (Leed .)

Usual contest held on Oct. 25th, when 23 birds sang. 1, Wood; 2 and 3, Sissons. Judge, Mr. R. Jackson; timekeeper, Mr. D. Madden.—W. DEAN, Secretary.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at the "King's Head," Shannon Street, on October 25th, when 26 birds sang. Judges, Messrs. Summers, and Cooper:—1, 4, Stead; 2, Hardcastle.—WILSON NAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

PENTONVILLE (London, N.).

At the "Beehive," Cynthia Street, Pentonville Road, during the week, handicaps were held for Linnets and Chaffinches. There was a large meeting of bird fanciers, and some very good singing was heard. Charley Meacock's Chaffinch won two handicaps, and also divided stakes with "Tubby" in a third. Jack Watts made a good race as runner-up. Week-end Linnet handicap was won by W. Morrison; Tommy Burns' "Sweep" and others competed. The Beehive is open for challenge (through CAGE BIRDS only), home and home, race, Linnets or Chaffinches.—W. MORRISON, Timekeeper.

THE SHOWS.

GLOUCESTER.

The third annual show of the Gloucester C.B.S. was held in the Northgate Assembly Room on October 28th and 29th. The entries came up well, there being an increase of 130 over last year, which must be considered a most satisfactory result. The birds provided Mr. Battye, who judged, with a good day's work. He had the advantage of an early start and a good light. The exhibits were nicely staged, and had the best of attention from a good band of experienced fanciers. The Norwich Plainheads, as usual at Gloucester, were a good lot for quality, and the competition was keen and close. The special for best went to Mr. G. Gwilliam, with a grand ticked buff, a true Norwich in all points. The two natural colour classes were filled well, which no doubt was a source of great satisfaction to Dr. Anerum, the generous donor of the five pounds which provided the prize money, and a sovereign special. The lucky winner of the latter, Mr. Winter's bird, came all the way from Edinburgh. Several in these classes had to pay the penalty attaching to a little indulgence in the "forbidden fruit." Yorkshires made a grand display, many high class exhibits putting in an appearance. The British birds were very good in quality, the challenge bowl for most points in this section falling to Mr. S. W. Birchley, his exhibits being staged in superb style. The challenge bowl for Norwich Plainheads resulted in a tie between Mr. Gwilliam and Mr. Wasley, both scoring the same number of points, and the same amount of prize money, which provides the society with a nice knotty problem to solve. Mr. Gwilliam having won it twice before, an outright win on this occasion would land the bowl on his sideboard. Mr. J. Houghton secured Sandiford's special with a red-hot marked yellow, and has now secured a cup and four medals, a tribute to this fancier's skill as a colour-feeder. The challenge bowl for the best Any Other Variety Canary went to Mr. T. J. King, this making his second win. Messrs. Winfield's cup for birds fed on their seeds was won outright by Mr. Gwilliam. The secretarial ribbons were again in the hands of Mr. J. Houghton, and they could not have been in better, as he worked like a Trojan, his tact being only equalled by his courtesy. Amongst the committee we must not forget to mention the name of that old fancier Mr. G. Closs, who worked his hardest, and as he has left the Fancy his efforts can be the better appreciated. Mr. A. Thomas, the well-known taxidermist, had a grand display of stuffed specimens, which were greatly admired.

MIDDLESBROUGH.

The Middlesbrough and Tees-side C.B.S. held their third annual show in the Oddfellows' Hall on Oct. 24. This was one of the finest shows ever held in Middlesbrough, close on 600 birds being benched. The Yorks. were a fine lot, Messrs. Cuthbertson, Rhodes, Stewart, and Dawson staging some grand birds. The Norwich turned up well both in numbers and quality. The Britishers were also a fine lot, looking in the pink of condition, and were admired by a great number of fanciers. The following won the extra specials: Yorks., Mr. Jas. Stewart; Nor., Mrs. Hope; classes 12 to 20, Mr. A. Bentley; British, Messrs. Nicholson and Son, who also won Challenge Bowl presented by Mr. Geo. Harkers for most points in the show (open classes). The Rev. Bernard Wilton was runner up. The members' specials were won by:—I, Rev. B. Wilton; 2 (most points), Messrs. Milburn and Hayes; and Messrs. T. Gibson and Hanson and Lancaster divided for the 3rd (most points). Mr. Arthur Wake, the hon. secretary, had the birds well staged, and was very attentive to the comforts and wants of the exhibits and the exhibitors. He was ably backed up by a hard working committee comprised of the following:—Messrs. Carr, Gardener, T. and W. Wells, Butterfield, Oliver, Hanson, Salmon, Bottomley, Hughes, Barterley, Mellons, etc. Mr. W. Mundell judged the Canaries and selling classes, and Mr. Maddison the British and foreign.

DUNSTABLE.

This Show, open to the counties of Beds, Bucks, Herts, and Middlesex, was held in the Town Hall, on October 22, in glorious weather, and was fairly well supported. Quality was of a high order, many most excellent specimens being on view. Under the able direction of Mr. W. C. Wood, the chairman, the whole of the arrangements were ably carried out by the committee, whilst Mr. E. F. Ball made a most energetic and courteous secretary. The stewards of the section were Messrs. E. Bloomfield, W. Sapwell, J. Ward, and F. J. Webb, and at their hands the exhibition fared extremely well. Mr. C. A. House judged.

NOR. (9): 1, 4, Webb, fine big yellow, capital shape, very sound and even in colour, nice quality; 2, Litchfield and Son, very showy, fine feathered buff, hardly so cobby, rich colour; 3, c, Pedder, another nice coloured, well mealed buff, good body, bit rough on head; vhc, Bloomfield and Rose; hc, Gentle. CREST OR C.B. (5): 1, 2, 3, vhc, spl, hc, best in show, Bloomfield and Rose, neatly centred, well drooped, dense long crest; 2, almost green C.B., rare shape, plenty of feather of good quality; 3, green C.B., nice shape, loses in feather; 4, Ball, very pretty, but rather short feathered C.B. YORKS. (11): 1, 2, c, Sapwell, very close, silky, feathered buff, grand shape and style; 2, long shapely, fine feathered yellow, stands well; 3, Rhodes, very smart, well drawn, racy buff, hardly so fine in head; 4, Stokes, long, stylish racy yellow, not tightened up yet; vhc, hc, Webb, Absent ball. BRIT. (7): 1, Owen, grand shaped, rich coloured Goldfinch, splendid bars and buttons; 2, Sergeant, very nicely marked, good shaped, steady Skylark; 3, vhc, Bloomfield and Rose, nice coloured well marked Chaffinch, in nice fettle; 4, Webb, large, bright coloured, well feathered Greenfinch; hc, Priest; c, Burch. SELL. (15/-) (6): 1, Litchfield and Son; 2, Tring; 3, Gentle; 4, Ball; vhc, Pedder; hc, Bloomfield and Rose. LOCAL CAN. CUP CLASS (4): 1, 2, 3, 4, Webb, very nice team and deserved competition, 1, chubby, nice feathered buff Norwich; 2, Cinnamon-marked buff Yorkshire, grand shape and quality of feather; 3, Cinnamon-marked yellow Yorkshire, also good quality and colour; 4, neat, ticked headed, yellow Norwich.

In your report of Eastbourne Show, British Goldfinch, Field-moulted, Hobden is credited with 1st and special and second. Mr. Goldfinch was 2nd and not h.c. (Hobden being h.c.). The mistake is entirely due to the printer placing Hobden opposite No. 10 and myself opposite No. 9 in the catalogue, whereas it should have been the reverse. The printer must have had a "side slip," it being a wet day. H. E. HEDGES (Eastbourne).

CAMBRIDGE.

An illustration of the vagaries of Dame Fortune was furnished by the seventh annual show of the Cambridge and Cambridgeshire C.B.S., held in the Corn Exchange, on October 22nd and 23rd. At the time for closing entries, there was not an average of two per class, but the "whip up" was issued, and fanciers responded handsomely to the appeal, until at the finish there was a grand total of 680, or about 50 more than last year. This rush at the last moment entailed a vast strain upon the energies of the secretaries and the committee, indeed upon all concerned, but the way always responds to the energetic will, and in this respect few secretaries or assistants can outstrip Messrs. T. S. Moore and J. Gifford. The room is a splendid one for space, the light excellent, and there is a decided absence of draughtiness. The staging was excellently arranged at a convenient height for comfortably inspecting the specimens, and the whole of the arrangements were efficiently carried out. The show was held under the patronage of several specialist clubs, and this, of course, helped the entry. The young bird cup, open to Cambridgeshire was won by Mr. A. E. Brooks, with a grand clear body dark Crest. The sales were very fair, including two Canaries at £7 and £6 respectively, a Greenfinch at 30s., Chaffinch £3, and a Brambling £2 2s. Mr. F. Doggett, taxidermist, Cambridge, helped to enhance the interest of the show by the aid of a natural history collection, including a live Cassowary from New Guinea. The attendance during the two days was very satisfactory. The following were the officers, etc.:—President, Mr. W. H. Heal; chairman, Mr. A. E. Brooks; vice-chairman, Mr. F. Doggett; auditors, Messrs. A. Edwards and J. Rogers; hon. auctioneer, Mr. G. Love; committee, Messrs. W. Linsey, C. Gawthorp, H. Young, W. R. P. Styles, A. Bye, F. King, J. Dean, A. Macquarrie, and R. C. Bateman; hon. sec. and treas., Mr. T. S. Moore; hon. assist. sec., Mr. J. Gifford. Mr. J. Robson judged Canaries, and Mr. R. J. Howe, Hybrids, British, etc. Some of the exhibits arrived very late, which prohibited Mr. Robson from finishing his task until far into the evening. Of the birds themselves, we can speak very highly. Norwich were a grand and level lot; Yorkshires, too, came up grandly in point of quality, the winning birds of Messrs. Pattrick, Crisp, and Bishop being greatly admired. Crests and Crest-breds were well represented. Borders made a fine show, and the quality of these dainty little types of bird-life elicited marked admiration. Mr. Brownlie and Messrs. Duncan and Logan were well to the fore. Cinnamons came up well, Mr. Riding playing the "ace of trumps." Of the collection of Britishers, both open and local, also of the Hybrids. It is impossible to speak too highly. There were both numbers and quality, and some of the specimens only need a little more time to make things hum in the British bird world. On the whole the show was the best the society has ever held, and one and all must be congratulated upon the result.

Mr. Robson's Classes.

NOR. CL. YELL. CK. (12): 1, spl, Morris, very deep colour, glossy feather, thick-set body, will improve yet more; 2, Outten, nice colour and quality, shown in beautiful nick, good shape, level in Norwich points; 3, Marley, typical, good colour, a bonny bird, whose jacket will fit him closer when up to concert pitch; 4, Rackham, grand quality and colour, fine body, trifle weak in neck; vhc, Outten; hc, Irons; c, Pamphilon. BUFF (14): 1, 2, Morris, 1st typical, rich under-colour, fine tone of feather, fine beaded bird, 2nd scarcely so stout or good at chest, but rich of quality 3, Walton and Noakes, similar in build to first, hardly so rich in under-colour; 4, Muscutt, a bouncer, grand bloomy feather, bristling with under-colour, takes its perches with a bang, claimed by a veteran, we hear, at catalogue price, £7; vhc, Coodman; hc, Rackham c, Irons. TKD., ETC. (9): 1, spl, Morris, yellow, ticked on eyes, blaze of colour, good type, fine quality of feather, looked like Mr. M.'s old winner; 2, Outten, yellow, beautiful, level rich colour, shapely, good neck and head, very smart; 3, Irons, yellow, lovely quality and colour, hardly so nice on head; 4, Brooks, buff, marked on wing, feather fitted him closely, and teemed with under-colour, on a grand shaped body; vhc, spl, Walton and Noakes hc, Rackham. NOR. HEN (13): 1, Rippon, buff, very sweet, well mealed on good under-colour, shapely, fine feather, shapely, lovely colour, scarcely fined down yet; 3, Walton and Noakes, good shape, ticked on eye and marked one wing, rich colour, will be better yet; 4, Irons, topping hen, yell., grand shape and colour vhc, Allen; hc, Munday; c, Calver and Sons. UNFLIG. YELL. (11): 1, Belcher, nice shape and quality, shines like glass, full of colour, short legs, neck and beak; 2, Smith, possesses shape and quality, but was hardly so well braced up as first, yet a bonny bird; 3, Jordan, good body shape, quality all right, just a shade failing in head and neck; 4, Morris, topper for quality, like wax for a yellow, nice colour, short wings and tail; vhc, Marshall; hc, Barber; c, Rippon. BUFF (17): 1, spl, Popple, fine, full-fronted, clean-chested bird has plenty of colour and quality, a good one; 2, Morris, grizzled on head, teems with under-colour, nice shape and quality; 3, Irons, good all through, wants some pegging back; 4, Rippon, bonny type, seemed to tip its wings across now and again, which handicaps it; vhc, Barber, Payne and Son; hc, Jordan, Brooks; c, Goodman, Muscutt. YORKS. CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (14): 1, spl, Pattrick, stands like a guardsman, alert, quick in action, "plays" beautifully to the dulcet notes of the charmer, has a silky dress, graceful outline and finish, good one; 2, Hudspeth, another gem, quite as good in many respects, scarcely so tall, and might be a trifle weak in neck; 3, Bishop, ticked on neck, very sweet, if not so long, full of quality, but scarcely so good behind the legs; 4, Crisp, great length, beautiful feather and colour, not quite so finely drawn as leader, stands splendidly; vhc, Harris; hc, Easterling; c, Dykes. BUFF (13): 1, 4, Bishop, both full of quality, grand position, the latter somewhat stouter in build than former; 2, Dykes, very smart, moves well, scarcely the quality of winner; 3, Pattrick, very stylish, finely drawn, goes up well; vhc, Rennie; hc, Easterling; c, French. MKD., ETC. CK. (10): 1, spl, Crisp, beautiful quality buff, ticked on both eyes, delightful carriage and nerve, a gem; 2, Rennie, another finely-drawn buff, good showers, trifle open at chest; 3, Bishop, fine quality and style, just a wee bit stouter at shoulders; 4, Hudspeth, also stylish; vhc, Edmondson; hc, Pattrick, charming yellow; c, Linsey. UNFLIG. CK. (16): 1, Dykes, fine colour, full of mettle; 2, Rennie, very pretty, full of quality, hardly so much behind leg; 3, Crisp, ticked buff, pleased much, finely-drawn, lovely texture of feather, rattling mover; 4, Hudspeth, ticked yellow, teeming with Yorkie quality; vhc, Bishop; hc Harris; c, Edmondson. HENS. YELL. (12): 1, Hudspeth, a gem, well cleaned off, fine waist and tail, full of life; 2, Crisp, neat head, well braced wings, quick, perhaps a bit strong across shoulders; 3, Bishop, vgtd., possesses style and quality; 4, Rennie, very sweet bird, travels in true Yorkie fashion, grand quality; vbc, Easterling; hc, Pattrick; c, Gifford. BUFF (19), a hot lot to sort: 1, spl, 3, Bishop, two good ones, leader has feather like wax, darts up like a rocket, and nicely finished behind leg; 2, Rennie, ticked, correct stand and quality, scarcely so nicely finished as winner, good one; 4, Edmondson, we fancied greatly, fine style and quality; vhc, Bishop; hc, Hudspeth; c, Sears. CREST CK. (9): 1, spl, Brand, massive Crest of right feather, good at frontal, indeed all round; 2, 3, Shearman, former had a Crest of nice formation, just a wee bit shorter than winner; 4, Gaze, wing marked, nice frontal, leafy feather, big body, crest feathers a bit one side; vhc, Piper; hc, Horton; c, Crow. C.B. CK. (9): 1, spl, Harrison, lightly vgtd., large body, noble head, wide at entrance, beautiful quality feather all through, long and dense in skull feather, grand bird, and a frequent winner; 2, Mills, nearly green, well-shaped and cushioned skull, nice rib to head feather, which is wide and long; 3, Gaze, similar in colour to 2nd, wider head perhaps, but falls in length of turn-back; 4, Shearman, smart bird; vhc, Shearman; hc, Crow; c, King. HEN (5): 1, Crow, cap and saddle marked, fine shaped head, good length of feather, nice body; 2, Mills, nearly green, head rises nicely from beak, not so good at entrance or length in turn back; 3, Shearman, hardly the width of skull; 4, King, great length of head feather, but narrow on skull beside the leaders; vhc, Piper. CRESTS, 1908 (12): 1, cup, spl, best members' exhibit, Brooks, clear body, dark Crest, nice frontal, good droop, grand bird; 2, Gaze, marked one wing, beautiful vein to crest, not so large perhaps; 3, Mills, variegated, good, but a different class of crest feather to leaders; 4, Brooks, well placed; vhc, Piper; hc, Broad; 3, Calver and Son. C.B. (13): 1, Mills, nearly green, noble headed, nice feather, dense and long; 2, Evins Bros., fine body, loses on head points; 3, Radford, variegated, nice head; 4, Crow; vhc, Piper; hc, Brooks; c, Calver and Sons. CREST, NOVICE (5): 1, Rice, neat, nice frontal and droop; 2, Braund, good frontal again, fails centre; 3, 4, Maybew, neat, but smaller; vbc, Clifton. C.B. (7): 1, spl, Brownlie, often noted, well knuwn; 2, O'Connell, quite a gay little fellow, hardly so clever in his attire as leader; 3, Hammacott and Card, very sweet, not quite the same stamp as 2nd, but full of swing; 4, Bowes, sweetly pretty little fellow, jaunty and gay; vhc, Linsey; hc, Roberts; c, Jenkins. HEN (8): 1, O'Connell, charming little lady, jaunty, beautifully clean-cut, and waxy in feather; 2, Brownlie, quite up to this exhibitor's usual standard; 3, Roberts, most superb feather, jaunty and shapely; 4, Taylor, ticked, grand quality of feather; vhc, Bowes; hc, Hammacott and Card; c, Williams. BUFF. CK. (11): 1, Simpson, simply lovely, jaunty gait, feather of that waxy, bloomy kind which so captivates, rich under-colour; 2, Duncan and Logan, very sweet again, ticked, feather like wax, a gem; 3, Brownlie, finely shaped, ticked, good carriage, not quite so well finished; 4, Linsey, another ticked, close, fine style, good carriage; vhc, O'Connell; hc, Bowes; c, Richards. HEN (12): 1, Taylor, well attired, and showed her attire to the best advantage; 2, Hammacott and Card, good, though hardly so elegantly finished; 3, Roberts, very pretty; 4, Duncan and Logan, ticked, full of the true characteristics; vhc, c, Bowes; hc, Brownlie. EVLY. MKD. (6): 1, spl, Duncan and Logan, yellow, nicely-balanced markings; 2, Brownlie, yellow, scarcely so perfect in markings, but a nice wee one; 3, Robson, buff, good markings, hardly so typical; 4, Hocking; vhc, Rowlands; hc, Hocking. UNEVLY. MKD. (13): 1, 3, Duncan and Logan, winner topping yellow, full of Bord. points; 2, Simpson, yellow, very pleasing, jaunty carriage; 4, Brownlie, very nice; vhc, O'Connell; hc, Hammacott and Card; c, Williams. GREEN OR OINN. Mr. R. J. Howe's Classes.

CAN. HYBRID LIGHT (5): 1, spl, 2, Lees, well-known light Coldie-Canary and Linnet-Canary, in the order named, grand birds; 3, Lamb, very sweet, 6-pointed yellow Goldie-Canary; 4, Goodman, a nice Mule; vhc, Mascall. DARK (9): 1, Mascall, good size, colour and quality; 2, Marshall, well-known Goldie-Canary, fine exhibit; 3, Morton, very good Linnet-Canary; 4, Marshall, smart Creenfinch-Canary; vhc, Lamb; hc, Morton; c, James. HYBRID A.O.V. (7): 1, Lamb, Linnet-Bullie, very fine size, shape and colour, but looked a bit open in feather, possibly from the journey; 2, Wickbam, Redpoll-Greenfinch, rich in colour, and nice in feather; 3, Lees, Linnet-Bullie, not so good quite in colours as leader, but a most creditable specimen; 4, Askew; vhc, Mays; hc, Cocks; c, Lamb. GOLDFINCH (13): 1, spl, Hurst, very full and rich in chestnut, carried well up in breast, good bars, buttons and face, not yet quite at concert pitch; 2, Wickham, another topper, wide in blaze, rich colour, hardly so much breast chestnut as winner, but a close race; 3, Marley, good again all-round, fine clean-cut blaze; 4, Jordan, well flushed, will improve with time; vhc, spl, Mitchell; hc, Mays; c, Lowne. BULL (12): 1, spl, Walsh, possesses fine breast, colour and lustrous poll; 2, Hurst, close-feathered, bold bird, clean-cut in its markings, and lustrous in head, not quite so rich in breast colour as winner; 3, Mays, another good one, nice shape and style; 4, spl, Ford and Son, pretty Bullie that pleased us much, thick-set and shapely; vhc, Askew, hc, Withers; c, Hunt. GREEN (15), warm lot: 1, Sharp, good colour, close feather, nice size and shape, steady; 2, James, also very steady, and a rich and lustrous colour; 3, Mays, fine Finch for shape, not quite so lustrous yet; 4, Rouse, good one, needs time; vhc, Poole; hc, Lowne; c, Davis and Gerry. HAWFINCH (7): 1, spl, Hurst, like wax in feather, clean colour, good bib; 2, Ford and Son, larger, but not quite the richness or lustre; 3, Hunt, when fully polished a gem; 4, Carter; vhc, hc, Watson; c, Withers. CHAFF. (15): 1, Hunt, beauty, markings on wings well defined and pure, lovely sheen, close and compact in feather; 2, Hurst, yet another fine Finch, barely so lustrous, but difficult to put back; 3, Davis and Gerry, nice size, finely cut; 4, Quantrell, well marked, very lustrous and waxy in feather; vhc, Wickham; hc, Lowne; c, James. This lot took some sorting. BRAMBLE (9): 1, spl, Sharp, fine bird, grand markings and size; 2, Ford and Son, also a good one, even richer in colour; 3, Carter, gem for colour and markings, we liked much; 4, Hunt, not so big as some, but very rich in colour and sheen; vhc, Hurst; hc, Askew; c, Bingley. LINNET (6): 1, spl, Hurst, a clinker, big, very rich and nutty in colour, beautifully bright, grand lacing; 2, Walsh, very sweet bird, good size, well marked; 3, Hunt, another grand shaped bird, not yet at its best; 4, Wickham, fine shape, colour and markings, very steady; vhc, Marshall; hc, Marley. SISKIN, ETC. (6): 1, Hunt, well marked, coloured and bibbed Siskin; 2, Quantrell, Twite, nice in colour and markings; 3, Jenkins, lovely little Redpoll; 4, Donnell and Saunders; vhc, Marshall; hc, Watson. FINCH HEN A.V. (10): 1, Sharp, Bullie, very waxy and rich, and clear in colour; 2, Rowles, Hawfinch, very fine hen; 3, Hunt; 4, Cocks, two excellent exhibits; vhc, Withers; hc, Jeeves; c, Lowne. THRUSH, ETC. (8): 1, spl, Mays, a smart Thrush, fine size and shape, well marked, nice bloom; 2, Edwards, also a very smart bird, not far behind; 3, we missed; 4, Watts; vhc, hc, Linsey; c, Fowell. SMALL (12): 1, spl, Mays, sweetly pretty and well shown Gold Crest Wren; 2, Walsh, Black Redstart, a very good one; 3, Lowne, fine Bearded Tit, in grand form; 4, Ford and Son, vhc, Mays; hc, Lowne; c, Baker. LARGE (3): 1, Linsey, Magpie, simply grand all round; 2, Poole, Ring Ouzel, very nice specimen; 3, Mays beautiful Redwing, grandly shown. FOREIGN (4): 1, spl, Smith and Son, Toucan, very attractive, in fine bloom; 2, 3, Watts, two nice exhibits, well staged

LOCAL CLASSES.—In these classes were some birds of superb quality. The Canaries were of high merit, and as for the British and Foreign, they were quite as good, if not better, than anything to be found in the open, and the classes were even more keenly contested. As is usual, the Novices came up very strong in their section. NOR. DOVER.

Although the show held by the Dover Society in the Market Hall, on October 27th and 28th, was under the patronage of the Kent C.C.B.A., the entries were not so numerous as was expected, still, what was lacking in this direction was more than made up by the excellent quality of many of the exhibits. The Challenge Bowl for the best bird in the show was won by Mr. Taylor's eye and wing-marked yellow Mule. The same gentleman secured the A.O.V Canary Challenge Bowl, with his 1908 Buff Norwich; whilst Mr. Austen took that for the Yorkshires with his winning yellow. All the details of management were carried out in a most effective manner by the committee, under the direction of Mr. E. Birch, the esteemed chairman, and Mr. A. S. Horrex, one of the most obliging and tactful of hon. secs. The stewards of the Cage Bird Section were Messrs. Abbott, Austen, Campany, and Leaver, and they attended to their duties in the most exemplary manner. Mr. J. Robson judged

I find that your paper is a first-class medium for the sale of birds, writes Mr. D. Foster (Leeds).

Mr. J. Lambert writes that he has changed his address to 45, Heath Street, Leeds Road, Bradford.

Send at once for schedule of Portsmouth. It will repay you. J. Woodhouse, 123, High Street.—(ADVT.)

Entries close at Bo'ness, October 31st. Send along at once. F. McGillivray, Gauze Road, Chance, Boness.—(ADVT.)

At Morpeth Show, "Harwood," as winner of 3rd prize in Yellow Cinnamons, should have read J. T. Hargreaves.

Fanciers should send at once for schedule of Blaydon Show. Secretary, G. Havver, 1, Theresa Street.—(ADVT.)

Entries close at Weybridge, Nov. 2, 1st post. Fanciers should send along at once. H. E. Parrott, Grove Road.—(ADVT.)

Will Mr. Smith, of Cambridge, forward me his postal address, writes Mr. H. Pitts (Bedminster), as I have mislaid the same.

Kindly state that I have removed from Waterloo Street to 31, Fountain Street, Old Gardens, Macclesfield, writes Mr. H. Hall.

Hurry up with your entries for the Dulwich and Peckham Great Show. Very short; will accept until first post Monday next. See advertisement.

In Rochdale Show report, class 37, 4th and c., class 40, 2nd and 3rd prizes, the name should be Davie, not Davis, writes Mr. John Davie (Liverpool).

Just as we go to press we hear from Mr. F. Howes, the secretary of the Wolverhampton C.B.S., that they have received over 400 entries for their show.

Class 89 in the schedule of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show should read: "Bullfinch hen, foreigners debarred," writes Mr. R. A. Brown, the secretary.

I cannot thank you too much for the grand report you gave of our show, writes Mr. John Ford, secretary Kelty and Blairadam C.B.A. All prizemoney has been paid.

The schedule of the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S. provides 38 open classes, specialist judges, good prize money, with hosts of specials. One of the best managed of shows.—(ADVT.)

Three exceptional honours at the Franco-British Exhibition were awarded to Spratt's Patent, Ltd., who received the Grand Prix, Diploma of Honour, and also a Gold Medal.

In the Edinburgh Society's section of the recently-held Edinburgh Combined Show, the winner of 2nd prize in Yellow Pied cocks should have been G. C. T. Hope, and not Thornton.

Kindly notify exhibitors that schedules of Swansea Open Show, November 11th and 12th, have been sent out, writes Mr. Alf. Hitchings, the secretary. Will anyone overlooked kindly apply.

We have decided to hold our next show under C.B.U. rules, writes Mr. H. W. Jones, secretary of the Carnarvon C.B.F.A., and the date has been fixed as before, viz., Easter Monday.

The committee of the Crook and Dis. C.B.S., writes Mr. W. Rutherford, the secretary, wish to thank all the cage-bird fanciers for the loyal support they gave them to make their show a success.

We are very short of entries for our show, writes Mr. Vernon Hall, joint secretary of the Darley Dale and Dis. F.S., and we have been obliged to extend till Monday morning's post, November 2nd.

Kelty and Blairadam report credits Wm. Reid with 1st and 2nd prizes in Crest Hens, whereas I won second prize, and received prize-money and ticket for same.—WM WATT (Dunfermline).

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, hon. secretary of the Cheltenham Show, that entries do not total 100, and we are compelled to extend till Sunday's post, November 1st.

In the report of Kelty and Blairadam Show, in the Yorkshire Buff class the awards read: 1, Patterson, and 2, MacRobbie, writes Mr. Geo. MacRobbie (Partick), but I was 1st in Yellow and 1st in Buff.

At the recent Bideford Show, Mr. Western had on view, not for exhibition, a pure white Jackdaw, which he took from the nest on the cliffs at Westward-Ho. It is a grand bird, and had a host of admirers.

I have changed my address from Holhorn Street to Cairn's View, Sligo, writes Mr. C. J. Mulligan, hon. secretary of the Sligo O.A. We have decided to hold our Annual Show on November 18th and 19th.

We are compelled to extend entries until last post, October 31st, writes Mr. P. H. Morris, hon. secretary of the Caerau B.F.A. The entries are only two a class, and the open to Glamorgan classes are not one a class.

Cracks from Yorkshire to Land's End are showing at the "Metropolitan" Show, Strathblaine Hall, St. John's Hill, Clapham Junction. See their exhibits this Friday, and don't fail, for it's a sight seldom available.—(ADVT.)

We have received from Messrs. B. Bowering, Ltd., of Bristol, several things to be offered as specials at our show, which are not set out in the schedule, writes Mr. A. W. D. Cridland, hon. secretary of the Glastonbury F. A.

The townspeople at Plymouth take a great interest in the W.C.O.S. Show. The local paper published a good account with photographs of judges, secretaries, and chairman, the next morning—a piece of smart work.

The two parts of the "British Bird Manual," by Mr. Norman, and also CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, arrived this morning. I am very pleased with them, and think they are all very interesting and instructive books.—J. SHADDOCK (Coventry).

Our entries are coming in very slowly, and I have wondered if fanciers have forgotten us or have laid the schedule on one side. I will keep entries' date open till Monday, November 2nd.—J. H. IRELAND, secretary of the Morecambe C.B.S.

An old-time fancier, Mr. F. E. Herbert, of Pokesdown, visited the Bristol C.B.S. Show. It is a long time since we were charmed with his Nightingales, and a sight of probably the best White Blackbird ever staged, which was three times first at the Crystal Palace.

In your "Guide to the Shows," writes Mr. Matt. Mason, I notice you have my name as secretary for West Stanley P.P.R. and Cage Bird Society. This is not so, as the secretary is Mr. J. H. Leighton, Causey, Swalwell, S.O. The societies that I am secretary of are Dipton and West Stanley Cage Bird (Members') Societies only.

Kindly notify fanciers that class 26 in our show schedule, writes Mr. J. W. Marsden, hon. secretary, of the Blackburn and Dis. C.B.S., should read: Self Cinnamon, Yellow, or Buff; class 27, Unflighted ditto; and class 56 includes bird only. We are hoping to have a good show.

A carved Meerschaum pipe, presented by W. Hales, Esq., for most points in the amateur Norwich classes at Liverpool Open Show, has been omitted by the printers from our schedule, write Messrs Metcalfe and Hillmen, secretaries. Will exhibitors kindly note we are sending all railway birds away early?

Fanciers showing at Luton on November 4th, writes Mr. E. Cherry, the hon. secretary, can have their birds sent off early for Dulwich and Peckham Show, November 5th. Special arrangements will be made for getting these exhibits off early, and fanciers are requested to notify the secretary.

Kindly remind our "novice" and "amateur" members through the medium of your valuable paper, to please observe the rules re "novice and amateur competitions," and be careful to mark their entry forms, or they will be considered not competing.—O. MITCHELL, hon. secretary, Open Norwich Plainhead Club.

I have by mistake sent a few schedules out, writes Mr. C. Draper, secretary of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. Show, without the C.B.U. rules. Also I have made arrangements for exhibitors to receive birds the same night as close of show if they will state on entry form the time they will meet them.

Am sorry to say I shall be compelled to extend the date of receiving entries, writes Mr. Fred King, secretary of the Carmarthenshire C.B.S. Show. If they are posted any time on Saturday, October 31st, I will accept same. Cage-bird fanciers have every inducement to enter—decent prize money for low entry fees and plenty of specials.

OBITUARY

Mr. W. H. BAMSEY (Derby).

It is with much regret, writes Mr. J. C. Barnes (Derby), that I have to announce the death of Mr. Walter Harry Bamsey, which took place on October 25th, at the age of 51 years. The deceased gentleman had been suffering for some time from a painful and incurable internal malady, borne with the utmost patience. He underwent an operation about nine months ago, which gave him some relief, but his strength gradually failed, and the end came as stated. Mr. Bamsey was an enthusiastic breeder and fancier, and a true lover of birds, and he has been a frequent and successful exhibitor at numerous local shows. For 15 years he acted as honorary secretary to the Derby C.B.S. (only recently resigning on account of his health), for which he was an ardent and willing worker. He was ever ready to help forward with valuable and practical advice anyone interested in the delightful hobby of bird-keeping, while he was a frequent contributor to the Fancy journals. He leaves a widow and five sons to mourn their loss, and to them the sympathy of all will, we are sure, be extended. In private life he was highly respected by reason of his quiet and unassuming manner and kindly nature. The funeral will take place this Friday, October 30th, at which the Rev. Lawton Platt (a well-known Crest breeder) will officiate. It is a melancholy coincidence that Mr. Bamsey should pass away during the holding of the Annual Show, at Derby, in which he has for so many years been the prime mover.

Lewisham and Dis. C.B.S. Members' Annual Show is to be held on November 3rd, writes Mr. H. T. Lucas, the hon. secretary. All birds to be staged by 7 o'clock, judging at 8 p.m. All visitors welcome; admission free; venue, the "Roebuck Hotel," High Street, Lewisham. Members should note there are numerous valuable specials, also that entries close October 30th.

All prize money in connection with the Norwich, etc., sections of the City of Glasgow Show has been paid, writes Mr. J. Young, the secretary. I would take this opportunity of thanking all those who contributed to our success by their liberal entries, not forgetting donors of special prizes, etc. I have also to thank CAGE BIRDS for the grand report it gave of our show.

Intending exhibitors at the Border Fancy International Contest at Glasgow should note that we will give special attention to all exhibits at Carlisle Show, on November 11th and 12th, writes Mr. W. H. Wright, the secretary, and we guarantee to send same away to reach Glasgow on Thursday evening. We will also give the same attention to all exhibits intended for Preston Show. The Southern and Welsh fanciers often ask for Northern fanciers to support their shows, so will they please return the compliment to Carlisle?

For the forthcoming Dulwich and Peckham Show (November 5th and 6th), writes Mr. W. Hodson, the secretary, we are pleased to say arrangements have been made with the undermentioned Railway Companies for all exhibits to be brought from the London termini direct to Rotherhithe Town Hall, by special vans, and also for the companies' vans to be in readiness to receive the exhibits at close of show: Great Western, Great Central, London & North Western, Midland, and Great Northern Railways. Mr. Bonar Law, M.P., has very kindly sent a substantial cheque towards the show fund, and his worship the Mayor of Bermondsey, Alderman H. Harbord, Esq., supported by Dr. Freemantle, has kindly consented to open the show on the first day.

The columns of CAGE BIRDS have no doubt been of great assistance in building up our society, writes Mr. J. R. Mckikle, secretary Scottish Metropolitan (Open Derby) O.A. The splendid report you gave our recent annual show we also thank you for; it has oftentimes been favourably commented upon.

Palace Show.—The Jubilee Show of the National Cage Bird Shows will be held at the Crystal Palace, February 5th to 9th, 1909. The committee are anxious to make this, the Jubilee Show, a record success; and invite suggestions, subscriptions to special prize fund or special prizes in kind from all interested. The classification for this show has been extended. Secretaries of specialist clubs who have not yet sent me the matter for schedule, will much oblige by doing so at an early date. J. W. Ramsden, show manager, 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London, S.W.—(ANVT.)

Sheffield Society are giving extra good prizemonics and specials. The best schedule in fact sent out this season, and have not received a single entry at time of writing. We hope fanciers will send on and give a bumping entry. We give 10s., 6s., 4s., 2s., four point specials in each section. Extra specials in Crest section, and increased prize money for Foreign section; also 20s. in cash for best bird in show. If you have not received a schedule send for one, or enter from review of schedule in CAGE BIRDS, otherwise send full particulars of birds, and I will classify.—H. LINNSAY, 202, King James Street, Sheffield.—(ANVT.)

Under Cage Bird Union Rules.

I omitted the Leek C.B.S. Show, held November 12th, from my list of Union shows, and shall be glad if you will kindly announce that this is under C.B.U. rules. GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE, secretary.

Don't Forget Manchester Show.

We hear there is an excellent entry at that great provincial fixture, Manchester Show, held to-day and to-morrow (Friday and Saturday) in the Hulme Town Hall. We anticipate there will be a splendid attendance of visitors, who will find some grand birds on view.

Curious!

A correspondent tells us of a case where a fancier exhibited four birds at a recent members' show in the Midlands, and won three first prizes, yet was out of pocket at the finish, the entrance fee being 1s. per cage. We presume lack of competition must have been responsible for this curious state of affairs—unless, of course, the prize money was not forthcoming (perish the thought!).

Ten Years Ago.

At the recent Rochdale Show, Councillor Howarth in presenting the Mayor-elect with the customary bird and cage (the lot of all show openers at Rochdale), humourously bade him attend well to its wants, and expressed the hope that a decade hence he would be able to say as he (Councillor Howarth) could of the bird given to him by the club ten years before: "It is alive and well, and charms me still with its beautiful song."

A Controversial Award.

A curious story (which we give with all reserve) comes to hand respecting the gold medal award for best bird in the amateur section at Accrington Show. It is said that this decision aroused such opposition that the matter was brought before the meeting of the Norwich Plainhead Club (held during the course of the show), when it was carried that the secretary (Mr. Raynes) should interview the judge (Mr. Davis) on the matter, and hear his "explanation"!

English and Welsh B.F.C.C.

The annual general meeting will be held in connection with the Liverpool Show on November 7th, in St. Martin's Hall, Scotland Road, Liverpool. Time and place on winning Yellow Border's cage. Business: Notices of motion, by Mr. Blackshaw, "That plain seed only be used on show-cage bottoms"; by Mr. Wagstaff, "To discuss the Ticked question," and Is it advisable to give patronage to shows that have the patronage of the B.F.C.C.? Secretary's report and suspension of members by the C.B.U. The secretary hopes members will make an effort to attend.—S. HADWIN, secretary.

The Railway Company Again.

Fanciers will sympathise with Mr. P. Walsh (Hillshro, Sheffield), in the great loss that he has sustained (caused by delay on the railway) in the death of his three lovely specimens, Grey Wagtail, Redstart, and Spotted Flycatcher, all of them winners, and with a great future before them, writes Messrs. Lindsay and Bingham. They were about 20 hours travelling from Cambridge Show home, and almost the same time in going to the show. Two of them were dead when they arrived home, and the other one died directly afterwards. The matter will be brought before the notice of the Cage Bird Union.

"Hands Across the Sea."

Fanciers will be delighted to learn that I have heard from our old friend Mr. F. White, of Melbourne, who, with the best wishes of his brother fanciers out there, encloses £3 3s. from the Victorian Canary Society, to be given in special prizes at the Jubilee Palace Show of 1909, as follows:—

10s. 6d. for best Norwich in show.
10s. 6d. ,, ,, Crest in show.
10s. 6d. ,, ,, Crestbred in show.
10s. 6d. ,, ,, Norwich Cinnamon in show.
10s. 0d. ,, ,, Yorkshire in show.
10s. 6d. ,, ,, Lizard in show.

I am asked to acknowledge above in CAGE BIRDS, which I do with pleasure, and with the heartiest thanks of my committee and self.—J. W. RAMSDEN, show manager.

THE PORTRAYAL OF PRIZE WINNERS.

Do not forget that all London Shows are visited.

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER; The Show this week is Manchester, this Friday and Saturday, Oct. 30 and 31.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

Here is the list of shows referred to above:—
Novemher 11th and 12th.—Carlisle.
Novemher 13th.—Preston.
Novemher 14th.—Nottingham.
Novemher 25th.—Cardiff.
Novemher 27th.—Leeds.
Decemher 11th.—Gateshead.
Decemher 31st.—Edinhoro' (Scottish National).

A Few Opinions.

Allow me to congratulate you on the fine coloured plate in last week's CAGE BIRDS. It is splendid.—D. DUNCAN, JUNR. (Harrogate).

Your douhle numher was a great and pleasant surprise. The plate was simply grand—one almost expected to hear the hirds start singing, they were so lifelike.—H. PITTS (Bedminster).

Allow me to congratulate you on the grand plate of Norwich Canaries you have given us this week; also on the reports of the various shows, which are splendid. I wish you further success.—T. R. WALLACE (Falkirk).

I congratulate you on the excellent manner in which the two Norwich Canaries were reproduced on the plate last week. May we have the luck to hreed some as good!—W. R. EVERETT (London, W.C.)

I should like to thank you for the grand plate of Norwich Canaries in CAGE BIRDS of the 24th inst. It is just about the most beautiful and life-like plate that I have ever seen. I have them (making two pictures) framed, and they look very nice.—F. J. DAY (Croydon).

I am delighted with the charming coloured plate of Norwich Plainheads in this week's CAGE BIRDS. One is almost afraid of leaving them outside a cage for fear of losing them, they are so life-like. I wish both our hohhy and your enterprise continued success.—W. F. BUZZA (Leominster).

I must compliment you on your latest achievement, this week's wonderful coloured plate of Norwich Canaries, also for the excellent report of Plymouth Show. I took 3rd in the Unflighted Yorkshires, also v.h.c. in Yorks. hens, and your printers gave Jeffries and then Jeffrey, which should -he—T. G. JEFFERY JEFFERIS (Southall).

Just a line respecting the coloured plate of last week. What a surprise! I waited at the paper-shop for CAGE BIRDS to come (ahout a quarter to six a.m.), and on my way to work stopped under the street lamp and had a peep to see what the plate was. Behold, "underneath the gas light glitters" two lovely Bullfinch type Norwich which made my eyes sparkle, and set me longing to hold two such specimens in show-cages. It is simply grand, and a great credit to you.—C. H. COOPER (West Ham).

Last week's CAGE BIRDS and the plate were extra good. Report of Eastbourne Show very smart work; in print long before birds were home.—P. H. HAMMS (London, W.C.)

Your last double number beats all previous doubles, and is good value for six times the amount charged for it. As for the plate, it is an exquisite production; the birds depicted are quite lifelike.—H. REES (Clapham, S W.)

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement in last week's issue, re Goldie Mules, writes Mr. J. Lewis (Aughton), for they were too numerous for me to answer individually. CAGE BIRDS is the best advertising medium in the Fancy.

I wish to congratulate the Clapham and Dis. fanciers for the careful way in which they attended to and despatched my exhibits from their show. I think if every society were to work on the same lines, we should have very little grumbling.—F. A. FORSE (West Ham).

A watchman was in charge of the hall during the night at the recent Bristol Show, and being asked in the early morning if he had been watching the birds, replied: "No, I have been watching the beer." Evidently the refreshment department impressed him with its importance!

The committee of the Wimhledon Show have made special efforts for the novice classes, writes Mr. H. Smith, the secretary. We are giving two good specials in addition to a tea pot, valuo 21s., for the open Yorkshire novice classes, and a tea service and two specials for the open Norwich novice classes. In the champion section of the S.Y.C.C. classes full prizemoncy is guaranteed, also in the Hybrid classes.

Dulwich Show.—Truly a magnificent list of specials will hc offered at the forthcoming show at the Imperial Hall, on Novemher 24th and 25th. In addition to six valuahle silver rose bowls for hest hirds in Norwich, Yorks., Crest, Border, British, and Foreign Section, the National Art Society are presenting ten engravings of Rosa Bonheur's famous picture, "The Horse Fair," value £2 2s. 0d. each—a total gift of twenty-one pounds—for most points in each section. The Editor of "You and I" also gives a Novice Challenge Cup for open novice classes. Mr. J. Sandiford offers a cup, also Mr. A. E. Rogers. The members have a £15 15s. 0d. Solid Silver Cup, a Perpetual Cup, and Novice Cup. There is also a guinea casket of scent for best lady's exhibit. Silver cruet for hest Border from Wales; stylograph pen, hest English Border; silver watch, best Scottish Border. These are a few of the lengthy list, and in addition to gold and silver medals and cash prizes. Surely, exhihitors will patronise this event.—(ADVT.)

A Caution!

In the schedule of Darley Dale Show appears in all the glory of large type the following notice, which, taken on the face of it, sounds distinctly curious: "Exhihitors please note.—That police will he in attendance during the whole of tho day of the show." That will be good for the stock, no douht, if that is how we are to take it; and if it is a warning to naughty exhihitors, wo hope they will ho on their hest hehaviour, and not find work for "Robert" to do.

Echoes from Glasgow City Show.

That it was alround a record; that the entries throughout were satisfactory; that there was ahundance of excitement as to the cup winners; the Paterson cup was won hy Allan, of Edinhurgh, with a gem of a Yell. hen; that this is a new cup, a gift to President Jardine from T. Y. Paterson, Esq., Glasgow and Edinhurgh, along with a handsome gold medal; that the cup, a heauty, has to he won three times before the Association can lose it; that they will part with it some day, as other cups have "gone hefore"; that McClure's Yell. cock, 5 years old, was again to the front, looking well, quite a "young 'un" for movement; that the first Yell. Pied cock is a gem; that Charlie knows it; that his friends congratulate him on his success; that some said it was value for hest hird in the hall; that it takes time to show, requires quiet handling; that the judges have not time for this; that amongst the hirds claimed at catalogue price was the first-prize Hyhrid; that J. F. Renwick's winners in the pair class were also claimed at catalogue price, £20; that their new home is the "Emerald Isle; that Mr. Ronaldson (Belfast), claimed them; that it leaves an opening for other pairs; that President Jardine is a hard worker; that he is the right man; that ex-Presidcnt, Thomas Thomson, as keen as ever, was of great assistance to Mr. Jardine; that the latter appreciated it highly; that secretaries McDonald and Young did herculean service; that they were ahly assisted hy an efficient staff of hard workers; that to all of them much credit is due for the ahle arrangements made; that Edinhurgh fanciers had a good innings; that they carried off a goodly share of the honours; that "Mount Florida" had also a fair share of the good things; that one regrettable incident came under notice; that someone, in error, lifted a bird in the Belgian section and left the cage hehind; that it is to he hoped whoever made the mistake will have put themselves in touch with secretary McDonald before these lines are in print; that now that the hig event is past, winners here will be watched for future events with much interest; that Mr. Montgomery's Buff hen is a good one; that it was value for the cup at Paisley and good value for medal and badge which sho won; that the Alhion Thistle cup winner was Mr. Gray; that ho was happy; that his friends were as happy at his success.—SCOTCH FANCY.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence to pay postage expenses, &c., otherwise their letters will not receive attention.

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds." 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., A.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

A Female Toper.

H. T. H.—The hen is probably suffering from diarrhœa, which is the cause of her drinking so much. You do not say how you feed, so I can only suggest that you should cut off any linseed from the diet, and also hemp for the present, and feed as frequently advised here, minus hemp. For the first two days give twenty drops of whisky, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and the same quantity of chlorate of potash, in each two tablespoonfuls of water for drinking. After this give a piece of gum arabic the size of a pea, and as much carbonate of bismuth as will cover a sixpence, in the drinking water every second day, until the bowels are quite normal. Shake the latter mixture until the gum is dissolved, which it will do quicker in warm water.

A Slipped Claw.

"Disheartened."—Accidents will happen, but it is certainly disappointing that your first pair of really good stock should have gone wrong so soon. However, hope on, hope ever. The slipped claw will not debar you from entering the bird for exhibition, but it will certainly tell against it in competition. If a really good out-standing bird of typical qualities in a class of second-raters it may even win, but the chances are that so long as the deformity lasts, it will not get higher than a "codding" card. It would not affect its breeding, so it may still be useful in this respect. To attempt to remove the blemish, bathe the foot twice or three times a week in fairly hot water, dry on a soft rag, and rub in a few drops of warm olive oil. In addition to this give the bird a set of thin almost round perches, not thicker than an ordinary lead pencil. Watch the bird to see if, when it is settling down to rest for a few minutes, it works the slipped claw round the perch. If it does you may safely leave nature and these perches to work the cure. But if it rests with the claw on top of the perch, then return its ordinary perches, and put on a narrow ring of rubber tubing as described in our ANNUAL for a fortnight or so as a preparatory measure before putting in the thin perches.

Yorkshires Unwell.

E. G. Atkins.—The room in which the birds are kept is either affected by damp or has been too cold for these birds whilst they were here with moulting. If you can move them to a room with a nice, comfortable temperature, until the moult is quite finished, and the birds in good song and condition, do so. In any case see they are quite free from draught and damp, and are not troubled with red mite. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and every other day give each half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two or three drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and on the alternate days give a syrup of green food—watercress or chickweed—and discontinue giving apple. Twice a week give a few grains of hemp to each. Every second day for a week give the following concoction in the drinkers instead of plain water, viz.:—Place a small teaspoonful of linseed, not heaped, into a teacup, add a similar quantity of chlorate of potash, a piece of gum arabic, and Spanish liquorice each as large as a pea, fill cup with boiling water, stir it well to dissolve the gum, and cover it over to stand until cold. Then strain through muslin and give it instead of water. On the alternate days give five drops of tincture of steel. After the first week you may discontinue these, and substitute twenty drops of chemical food every other day for a fortnight.

A Convalescent Yorkshire.

Sinn Feinn.—You ought to have sent my former reply with your query, as I cannot remember the details of all I deal with, and do not happen to have the previous reply by me. It is very probable that these temporary lapses are slight recurrences of the old complaint, which manage to get in when there is a sudden snap of cold, or, perhaps, after a slight chill from a draught or a cold bath. If this is the case the medicine previously advised for a day or two, coupled with due care to remove the cause would be quite sufficient to remove the trouble. Or you may try the following medicine instead. In each two tablespoonfuls of water for drinking dissolve a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea, and add ten drops of glycerine, and five each of ipecacuanha wine and syrup of squills. Give this daily until the trouble has quite disappeared. Of course you must keep the bird free from draughts and chills, as in the other course of treatment.

Wasting Seed.

A. Fromings.—You are certainly mistaken in thinking the bird eats the husks because it leaves the kernel of Canary seed. You must certainly find the husk in or about the cage. Taste the seed and see if it is sweet and well flavoured; bad seed is sometimes the cause of the rejection. If the seed is quite sweet and good give the bird twelve drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in its water daily for three days. After that give twenty drops of whisky and six each of dandelion juice and tincture of gentian for a few days. You omit to say whether you give anything besides Canary seed. If not, add a teaspoonful of summer rape to its diet twice a week, a little soft food as often, and a spray of green food every second or third day. Of course you supply gritty sand.
General Queries

Diet and a Manuel.

J.R.B.B.—Yes, your surmise is correct. In all ordinary cases, given a healthy bird and a normal moult, very little, if any, change from the ordinary diet given for singing birds is really necessary. It is only when colour feeding has to be done that all birds alike must have a certain amount of soft food each day which acts as the vehicle for the colour agent, and this soft food must, of course, bring about a modification in the usual dietary. It the same with medicine in the drinking water. As long as a bird is doing tolerably well it is much better without anything of the kind. As regards sulphate of iron this certainly should not be given during the early stage of the moult. At the close, when the feathers have almost ceased dropping out, it is very useful to tone up the bird and tighten the plumage. "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., or House's "Canary Manual," 1/2, would doubtless suit you. Both are obtainable at or from this office.

Wants More Flesh.

Bill Bailey.—The rapid loss of flesh was the natural result of its illness. This defect may be easily remedied now by generous feeding on a flesh-forming diet. As a staple give a mixture of two parts Canary to one part rape, and in addition to this give half a teaspoonful of hemp one day; next day a piece of bread and milk about the size of a hazel nut; and the third day a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three or four drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it. Repeat this again and again for a fortnight. In the drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day, and twice a week when you are not giving chemical food, add a little Epsom salts to the water to prevent congestion. Be careful not to carry this fattening process (it is really nothing else) too far. As regards the time when it will resume its song depends a good deal upon its age. If it is quite a young bird it should begin to sing as soon as it is quite free from moulting, but if several years old it may not resume until the Spring is coming on.

Always Pecking at its Feathers.

F. Allgood.—The cage is practically certain to be badly infested with red mites which are the cause of the birds acting as you say they do. Before removing the birds to clean cages you should have given a bath each day for a few days to which you had added a little essence of quassia, and the cage should have been removed quite away from all the others at once. Even with these precautions you should keep a sharp look out about the cages that were adjoining it, as it is quite possible these cages may have been infected. To clean the old cage scrape it well inside, paint liberally all over inside and out with paraffin, working it well into all the joints and crevices, dry it in the sun, and repeat the operation two or three times at intervals of three days. Then paint the inside with sanitary distemper, enamel, or white-wash in which a little carbolic disinfectant has been mixed, paint and re-varnish the outside, and when dry it should be quite fit for use. Perform each part thoroughly, and leave no loophole for mites to survive the several operations. Give all the birds a quassia bath daily for a time before returning them to clean cages, and be sure you watch the cages well to prevent any of them becoming seriously affected. As soon as any mites are found in any of your other cages treat them the same as above at once.

Breeding for Profit.

Complete Novice.—You do not say what type of bird you wish to go in for in your proposed aviary—whether just a common type of singing birds or birds bred to standard requirements. If the latter you could not very well manage it with the birds flying loose. But you will probably succeed in your object much better by breeding the first-named class of bird, and allowing them to fly loose. At its fullest capacity the aviary would accommodate about sixty birds, so that allowing for the season's gradual increase a stock of twenty birds would be amply sufficient to start with. Five cocks and fifteen hens would do very well together, for which from twenty five to thirty nesting sites should be fitted up at the beginning of the breeding season. The price you would have to give for a stock pair depends solely upon the type of bird you go in for, and the condition of the market when buying. The man who told you about the prices was either pulling your leg, or did not know what he was talking about. You might get a fairly decent pair of Norwich, for example, for 30/-, but they would be decidedly less typical than a pair costing twice as much. For ordinary song birds as above-named you should get good stock for 15/- per pair. But a better plan would be to get good singing cocks at about 12/6 to 15/- each, and a trio of hens to each cock at, say, 10/6 for each trio.

A Mating Query.

E.S.—If I understand your query correctly you mated the two yellow hens in question, one to a yellow variegated cock and the other to a clear buff cock of distinct strains—that is, I assume, unrelated. You do not say whether the hens were marked or clear, but in any case being bred from two clear parents they would possess a large amount of clear blood. If this is correct the young would certainly do to pair together next season—not, of course, mating brothers and sisters, but the young cocks of No. 1 pair with the young hens of No. 2 pair, and vice versa. The young from the pair of double yellows should be mated with the largest and coarsest feathered buffs, and you must try to avoid putting together next season two clears that have been bred from the clears, as you already have a large amount of clear blood in them, and they may begin to lose in colour.

A Broken Wing.

"Upton."—You seem to have done all that was possible, and to have done it well, to "set" the broken wing. But do not on any account remove the straps for another fortnight at least. That is, leave them on for not less than a month from the time of the accident. Before removing place the perches rather low, and near enough to each other for the bird to hop about them quite easily without making any attempt to use its wings, and leave them in this position for two or three weeks after the straps are removed, or until you see the bird voluntarily using the injured wing. Take the strap off the bottom of the wings first, and do this a few days before removing the others, so that the bird will gradually become accustomed to its renewed freedom of movement.

Multum in Parvo.

W.J.S.—1. The young Norwich (1908) cock, which records freely should come out in full song as soon as he is well through the moult. This he will probably do very soon now, as the recording is a hopeful sign. 2. He will be quite fit for next season's breeding, and should be mated with a 1907 hen preferably. 3. To tell whether the eggs are fertile you must allow them to be sat upon five or six days—any shorter time would not be safe for a novice to judge from—then examine them by holding them up before a strong light, with the eye shaded, and looking at the light through the egg. If the egg is dark and becoming opaque it is fertile, or maybe addled; but if it is still clear and transparent it is unfertile, and will never be any good. The process is illustrated in our handbook "Canary Breeding for Beginners," price 7d., from this office. 4. At the end of next March, or early in April, will be quite early enough to pair him up.

Yorkshires in Shed.

C.J.P.—As regards the ventilation of your shed I hardly think that a couple of air bricks will be anything like sufficient to keep the place properly ventilated when you cannot have the door open at intervals, which, of course, will not be feasible in a few weeks hence. Therefore, if possible to manage it, get two more air bricks in each corner instead of in one corner only, and put in three more in the middle of two sides, or ends, low down near the floor, for the ingress of fresh air when the door is closed. These spaces should each be provided with a sliding shutter so that you may have full control of the ventilation, and regulate it to suit prevailing conditions of temperature. As long as the birds continue to do so well do not make any attempt to heat the shed. You could make your colour food just slightly damp—crumbly moist—by the addition of a drop or two of water, and stir it well in with a prong or table fork. If you have a good proportion of ticked birds there is no necessity for introducing fresh green blood next season. Mate up the heaviest marked ones with clears, and if there is a majority of ticked specimens reserve the most lightly ticked for mating together.

Two Wheezy Males.

No Name.—I am rather inclined to think that in your case the wheeziness is the result of an overfed condition of body. Feed them on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately a small teaspoonful of summer rape seed, and a half-teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake each twice a week. Give these extra on different days and alternate them each time. Every day give a spray of green food. Keep them in a comfortable, equable temperature, but do not overheat them. In the drinking water of No. 1 add ten drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and after this give four drops of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food, containing the latter for two or three weeks. For No. 2, in addition to keeping in a fairly warm temperature give him a vapour bath by standing his cage on a piece of wood placed across the top of a pail, put one or two quarts of hot water in the bottom of pail, and cover closely over with a thick woollen shawl or rug, and leave for ten or fifteen minutes. Keep the cage front covered for a day or so to avoid any chill. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, and a few shreds of bay saffron daily for three days. After this go on and treat the same as advised for No. 1, after discontinuing the buckthorn. A half teaspoonful of maw seed may also be given this bird every second day for a fortnight.

Large Insectivorous Birds.

Peter B.—A Lesser Whitethroat is not at all a bad softbill for anyone to start with. It is easy to keep (given correct treatment), and has a very pleasing and continuous song, which it utters practically all the year round (the moulting period excepted, of course). Curiously enough, I told at length my methods of keeping these and similar small insectivorous birds only a fortnight ago in these columns. Here you are again, however. Stock food: powdered Osborne biscuit, four parts; best ants' eggs, and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupæ, one part; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently and adding a little water (but only a few spots) if necessary. Personally I use one hard-boiled egg (minced fine) to about each dozen birds, and mix this among two or three table spoonfuls of crumbled home made sponge cake. Of this I use about one-third to two thirds of the above mentioned stock mixture, and find the most delicate species thrive splendidly on it. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, all the live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, small beetles, smooth caterpillars, greenfly, live ants' eggs, etc.), one can possibly obtain; mealworms given regularly are indispensable. To the above stock mixture occasionally add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, and, more occasionally still (practically only in the winter), a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Good cream cheese is a splendid food, too; give a little, finely chopped, and mixed, of course, with the above biscuit food, or just laid on top of it. In place of Osborne biscuits, for economy's sake, the "broken biscuits" (sweet), obtainable very cheaply from most grocers, may be used. Excellent ready-made foods, too, may be bought through our columns.

Identity of Bird.

Oblige.—The bird you have is the Great Tit (often termed the Ox-eye Tit and familiarly known to many as "Joe Bent"). It is quite a common British bird, especially so in the winter round suburban houses. The value is practically only a few pence. Curiously enough, I have had several enquiries lately from possessors of "Joe Bents," who seemed to think they had come to be owners of valuable birds. One thought he had a White-eared Bulbul. I hope they are not being sold to the unwary as something rare, and, consequently, of some worth. The bird is a softbill, but also likes a few seeds (sunflower, for instance).

Outdoors.

Mexican.—In an aviary which gets "all the sun," which has a privet hedge inside and a "big wooden hutch" (by which I presume you mean a shelter) such birds as Green, Chaff, and Goldfinches, Linnets, Robins, Thrushes, and Blackbirds ought to winter all right. It seems odd, however, to hear that you had a pair of Goldfinches "frozen to death" in such a place last winter. That looks as though it were not particularly snug, or else that you do not feed them correctly. In winter the hardbills want an unstinted supply of oily seeds (hemp, niger, linseed and sunflower, the latter lightly crushed, if necessary), while the softbills should have a little wholesome fat (beef or mutton) to eat, while a little unsalted beef or mutton dripping is excellent mixed amongst the soft food. As regards the foreign birds, see Mr. Page's column.

What kind of Lark?

J. Fursland.—It is really not possible for me to tell from your letter whether you have a Woodlark or a Skylark. They are both very similar in colour and markings. The Woodlark has a "crest," just the same as the Skylark; but all Larks do not erect their head feathers—the tamer the birds the more prone they are to do so. Still, for all this, the Woodlark is quite easy to distinguished from a Skylark. It is a much smaller bird, for one thing, and has an appreciably shorter tail—it looks, in fact, like a curiously small, shortened "dumpy" Skylark. It has some of the tail feathers tipped with white—in the Skylark the outer feathers are white—and there is a kind of grey collar round the back of the neck, and a distinct "streak" above the eyes, while the back "spur" is long and considerably curved. The hen Woodlark will utter a few notes; the hen Skylark, too, will often emit a few twittering notes.

Feeding a Robin.

A. Baston.—Breadcrumbs and crushed hemp are very poor food for a Robin. The Redbreast is just as much a dainty insectivorous bird as the Nightingale, though it is true he will thrive in captivity on a plainer, "coarser" diet. I feed my own Robin, which sings grandly, on the same lines as any other small softbills; see reply to "Peter B." this week. He, however, likes a few seeds—Canary mostly—now and again. You could buy a good stock-food, ready made up, from many advertisers using our columns (possibly at local bird-shops, or bird-food dealers), and add to it grated carrot (sufficient to just damp it), and now and again half a finely-minced hard-boiled egg. That would make a very fair dietary. You could add mealworms, small garden worms now and again, blackbeetles when you can get them, and other suitable live-foods. "Bobbie" likes a few ripe berries and a little fruit, too.

A Mixture.

Tim.—1. No; white feathers in the wing of a Blackbird do not necessarily point to either bad feeding or weakness in the bird's health. They are, I should say, the outcome of an innate tendency towards albinism. 2. If there is a kind of "blood-poisoning," then the Linnet will most likely lose its foot; it would be the result of your not cleansing the wound properly, or allowing dirt to get in. If it has really reached this stage, then I am afraid you can do no good; it is hardly likely to be curable. 3. Keep your Goldfinch in a warm corner of a heated room, and he should get through the moult alright. You could help him by putting a small teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food (from any good chemist) in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, using a pot or glass vessel only. 4. Both cock and hen Lesser Redpole are the same colour when house-moulted. The cock, however, is an indefatigable songster, when in condition.

Stock Cage and Food of Woodlark.

R.T.—A good stock cage can be made out of the usual type of Skylark cage (bow-fronted), one perch being placed in same. The bird likes a turf; and must also have a dust bath. Many of the makers of cages advertising in our columns stock a special Woodlark cage, and this you would be sure to find quite suitable. The cage I myself like best is one of the pattern known as the "Lark runner" (only longer, and wider from front to back) with doors at each end, and a canvas ("false") roof. A large turf fits in at one end, a perch over the other (the "dust-bath" end), and the food and water vessels hang on the front. In this you will have no trouble with their feet, given reasonable cleanliness. As regards food, you should try the stock-food recommended "Peter B." in this week's issue, which is, I think, as good as one need wish for, and certainly most successful in keeping these birds in the pink of condition, and on song. Finely-minced green food, etc., must not be forgotten. Woodlarks ought certainly to have a regular supply of live food—many droop for want of it, I am sure. There is certainly nourishment in ants' eggs, and good nourishing properties, too, in good quality eggs. Many real good insectivorous foods are advertised in CAGE BIRDS every week. A little seed (especially Canary) should be given now and again; while crushed groats and coarse oatmeal are relished.

Song Thrush in a "Pickle."

Spotted One.—I think you're quite right in assuming that the steam from the cooking, etc., operations in the kitchen are more or less responsible for the sad condition of the plumage of your Thrush. In such a situation, too, redmite flourish amazingly, and these pests, of course, would aggravate the trouble. Make sure there are none in the cage; if necessary, dress it with turpentine and parullin, as advised a querist last week. If, however, the trouble is due to the moult (plus the steam), I advise you to move the bird to a room (not an unheated one) which has a more equable temperature, and to mix as much flowers of sulphur (from a chemist) as will lie on a shilling, into the food supply, daily, for a fortnight or so. Putting "Oxo" in the bird's drinking water is distinctly novel. It inspires me to "poetry." How will this do when you want to send along a testimonial?

My Song Thrush gives the welkin socks-o,
He "busts" with song since drinking Oxo.

Brevities.

Trouble on the Head (Walsall).—The hole you mention is, I should say, in reality the nostril. Get a little boracic ointment from a chemist, and morning and evening rub a little gently but thoroughly on the "scaly place." Ten to 14 days' treatment should suffice to bring about an improvement.

Hybrid Breeding (P. T. Harvey).—I certainly should never have a cock Bullfinch within hearing of the hen Bullies I was myself trying to get Hybrids from. It only leads them to attack their proper (from your point of view) partners. It is an excellent plan to run the hen Bullie and her intended husband together through the winter.

Dog-Rose Berries (Bread St.).—Dog-rose berries (or dog hips, as they are called) are not much in favour with birds as food, so far as my own observations go. They are generally only commenced upon when severe weather renders other food scarce; and then Missel Thrushes and like large birds are about the only ones that tackle them. I tried one of my Waxwings with some, and he promptly proceeded to sample them; but, then, a Waxwing will sample almost anything.

A "Fan" Tail (S. Furnband).—A Goldfinch with a "fan" tail, eh! I cannot quite follow what you mean. I can say, however, that it is a well-known habit of the Goldfinch to spread his tail, and jerk it from side to side, especially when excited or pleased. To come to the point, I don't think you need pay any heed to the "fan" tail, providing the feathers are perfect: exhibit the bird, and good luck to it. You say he has a fine blaze and tanning and colour, and these are the main show points.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Grey Parrot Weak and Unwell.

W.M.—Am unfortunately compelled to speak doubtfully of your bird's recovery, but "while there's life there's hope." Continue to use the weak brandy and water as a stimulant, and continue the boiled maize, as the bird appears not to eat the mixture; mix a little of the dry mixture with the boiled maize, and also soak half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food into the daily portion of boiled maize for the next month. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in its drinking water, and give nothing else to drink for that day, save a few sips of the weak brandy and water, say, three times during the day. I should keep this bird warm, and leave something soft in one corner of its cage for it to lie on; its food vessels should be within easy reach. If paralysis does not set in there is still a chance for the bird. Report progress in a week's time.

An Indisposed Grey.

K.B.—Discontinue the bread and milk, and substitute a tablespoonful of boiled maize daily. After straining all the water from the maize, soak into it half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. Note, the boiled maize only keeps fresh one day; stray bits must not be left about, and the food vessel must be well cleaned daily. I take it that as well as the seed mixture and sponge cake, you are giving some ripe fruit and a little greenfood, such as fresh lettuce; if not, supply some so as to vary the diet. Keep the bird warm and quiet, and if it has a difficulty in perching, put a little hay or something soft in one corner of the cage, and place the food vessels within easy reach. For one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water repeating this as may be necessary to keep the bowels moving freely, but not watery loose. The bird should be out of the way of movements or noises that would be likely to scare it. Report progress a week hence, giving as full particulars as possible. Voidings should be promptly removed from the cage.

A Cure for Diarrhœa.

C.P.—Am much handicapped in replying, owing to your giving me no information as to how you have been treating the bird. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water; follow this by making the drinking water the colour of pale port wine, for the next month. Twice a day offer it in a spoon a little chilled brandy and water, say, four or five drops of brandy to a tablespoonful of water. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, nor any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: A seed mixture of two parts each canary seed and oats, and one part each wheat dari, hamp, and sunflower seeds; well mix and always keep a supply in the cage. Also give to vary the diet; ripe fruit, plain biscuits, nuts and a little greenfood; grit and cuttlefish should be continuously in the cage. Keep the bird quiet and warm. Its voidings should be removed as quickly as possible. If the bird has been accustomed to soft food of any kind, give it a little boiled maize (this only keeps fresh one day, and the food-vessel must be cleaned for each occasion); but as soon as it is eating heartily of the dry seed mixture, etc., discontinue the boiled maize. Grey Parrots are healthier and better without soft food, save a little ripe fruit. If you repeat query, and say how you have been dieting the bird, I may be able to help you further, but unless the bird has got too low, the above dietary and treatment should soon improve the bird's condition.

Breeding in Indoor Aviary.

Foreigners.—I should advise, under the circumstances, the Bishops being put in another cage. I do not think they will make any attempt to breed, and in the somewhat confined quarters of your aviary cage they would most probably interfere with the nesting arrangements of the others. Put up half a dozen nest boxes, as far apart as space will allow—small boxes about four inches square, and deep, with two-thirds of the front covered up, the open portion to be towards the top. Supply hay and long grass, and leave the birds to themselves. However, though I presume frost will be excluded in your living room, I cannot advise you to put nesting receptacles in till the spring, neither should I attempt to induce them to breed until then. If you wish for any prospect of breeding successes, do not keep more than the three pairs, and as soon as their progeny are able to feed themselves, either dispose of them, or remove them to flight cages. Some good, soft food mixture will need to be supplied when they have young to feed. Java Sparrows, I know, are often bred, and successfully reared during the winter months, but if any of the hens get chilled during an extra cold night, while breeding is going on, it generally means their loss.

A Grey's Excessive Thirst.

C. Parry.—Continue to treat as per previous reply. A little boiled maize will do no harm while the bird is undisposed, and I should soak half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food into the daily portion, but as soon as the bird is in fair condition again, discontinue the boiled maize. Get a box of honey and borax from your chemist, also a small camel-hair brush, and wipe out the bird's mouth with this, say twice daily, continuing till the furring disappears. Your dietary has been wholesome and safe, but the bird has certainly got hold of something unwholesome; but the effects of this will, I think, now gradually wear off. If you have any difficulty in wiping out the bird's mouth with the brush, watch your opportunity when it has its mouth open, and dab a little as high up on the tongue as you can manage, and after it has tasted it, the bird will rather like it than otherwise; at least, that is usually the case. You must cleanse the brush, and use a fresh portion of the honey and borax for each occasion. You are quite right in not leaving the water in the cage.

Blue-fronted Amazon Poorly.

Taggo.—Without seeing exact position of bole, it is not possible to express an opinion, but unless such should grow worse, and cause the beak to break across at any time, I should not imagine it would interfere with its feeding. Could you report query, and send be a rough sketch of the bird's mandible showing the hole you try to describe? Give about a tablespoonful of boiled maize every other day (this only keeps fresh one day, and the food-vessel must be well cleansed for each occasion); after draining away the water from the boiled maize, soak into it half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food, also make the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with the chemical food, and continue till the bird is in condition again. The bird's bowels should be kept moving freely, not watery loose; any time there appears any sign of constipation, one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water in lieu of the chemical food for one day will give relief. There is a certain amount of downward growth of a bird's upper mandible, hence the necessity for occasional trimming where birds cannot get at hard substances to grind away this growth. Many Parrots are not yet through the moult.

Waxbills, Zebra Finches, etc.

Mexican.—I really do not care to give you a definite answer till you let me know your county. However, as it is very probably their first winter in this country, I should advise you to take the orange-cheek Waxbills indoors at once; another year unless your locality is extreme north, they can be left out of doors. The Cutthroats, Zebra Finches, and grey Java Sparrows should be perfectly safe outside all the winter, unless the aviary is very exposed or your locality is quite in the north. I should suggest felting the wood back or wall of your aviary to ensure its being wind and rain proof; overhaul all walls and ends, and see there are no crevices, and also the roof does not leak; it is damp and draught that kills, not dry cold. You do not say of what variety your Javas are, but white Javas had better be taken indoors for the winter. The size of aviary has also much to do with the question, unless it is sufficiently large to give them a good fly, it is no good for keeping birds in out of doors during the winter.

Sexing Virginian Nightingales.

"Z."—The male Virginian Cardinal (Nightingale), is altogether brighter in colour than the female, rich crimson, while the female may be described as of a brownish-red colour, and only one or two washes of brightish red. You cannot go astray. If you are offered a pair of bright red birds as a pair, refuse them and equally so if you should be offered two dullish-red birds as a pair. It is all a matter of taste; the male has a few nice notes rapidly repeated, but I should call it neither varied nor sustained, and I have not heard it perform much in a cage. To hear it at its best I am of the opinion that a large garden aviary is the place, and I have had and heard several under such conditions. Whether it is atmosphere, environment or what not, under such circumstances the song is not fine, is rich and pleasing, to which such caged specimens I have had and heard bear no comparison.

A Sick Amazon.

A.M.—Only give bread and milk while the extreme inflamation lasts; boiled maize will be far more wholesome, if it will take sufficient of it, and I should put over the daily supply have a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. While the trouble lasts, let the first morning drink consist of a tablespoonful of chilled water, to which add two drops of aromatic sulphuric acid. Afterwards give at intervals a teaspoonful of chilled water containing one drop of laudunum. If the bird appears at all exhausted, give it a few sips of weak, warm brandy and water, say three drops of brandy to a tablespoonful of water. As the case was urgent, I sent you a post card, but it would assist me if you would send me full particulars as to how the bird has been dieted. Keep bird warm and quiet yet not in a vitiated atmosphere. The voidings should be promptly removed and destroyed (burned for preference) You can give a little sponge cake and plain biscuit. Report progress a week hence.

A Newly-imported Grey.

"Ship Typhus."—There is little doubt you have a newly-imported bird. The danger of latent infection cannot be said to have passed for at least eight weeks. Keep up the boiled maize at present, and after you have well drained away the water from it, soak into it daily half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. Keep a tin of the seed mixture in the cage, and when the bird takes to this, the boiled maize can be gradually discontinued. Note: The maize only keeps fresh one day, and the food-vessel must be well cleansed for each occasion. Supply also ripe fruit, a few nuts, and plain (dry) biscuits; keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage. On warm, sunny days, spray the clogged feathers with chilled water, keeping the bird carefully out of draught till it is dry. For one day give one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in a tablespoonful of water, let the bird take as much as it will, and then offer the remainder in about a couple of hours. I should permit the bird to take as much water as it wanted from a tablespoon, say, three times a day, letting the water be just chilled, and putting in same three drops of brandy till the bird is stronger. Do not at present leave water in cage, and do not give slops, table scraps, or animal food.

Feather-plucking Grey.

W.H.—It would have been much easier to have given you an answer if you had given me full details as to diet. However, for one day put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water; repeat this as necessary to keep the bowels freely moving, but not watery loose. When not giving magnesia, make drinking water colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food. Also spray the bird every other day with quassia solution, but carefully protect from draught till dry. Diet: Seed mixture, canary seed, oats, wheat, hemp, dari, and sunflower seeds; well mix and keep a supply continuously in the cage. Also give ripe fruit plain biscuit, nuts, and a leaf of fresh lettuce occasionally. Keep up a regular supply of grit, and also a piece of clean cuttlefish hanging in the cage. You must persevere with the treatment, as it is most difficult to cure a feather-plucking Parrot, and it would have been better if you had written several months ago. Do not give table scraps, tea, coffee, or milk slops, nor any kind of animal food. Should be glad to hear how the bird progresses in say three weeks' time.

Parrakeets Out of Doors.

Grimston.—A reply would have been easier if I could have had some idea of your locality. Providing you are not too far North, you would be perfectly safe in leaving out of doors: Rosellas, Redrumps, Cockateels, Quakers, and Ringnecks; also Pope and Grey Cardinals. But I should certainly advise taking indoors the Madagascar and red-faced Lovebirds. The white-eared Conures have safely wintered out of doors in more than one aviary, and in fairly northern localities, too, and I should leave them undisturbed; but I very much fear that if severe weather supervenes, the young will not be reared; I should not take the Conures in unless they appeared to suffer; you will soon ascertain this by their demeanour. If they are comfortable, they will be alert, taking plenty of exercise, and will not sit huddled up for long spells. The stove I believe to be one of the best, safest, and most economical of its kind; carry out the maker's directions, and it should give you but a minimum of trouble. It is the neglect of small details that usually causes so much trouble and dissatisfaction to the users of heating stoves.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Letter (T. R. Dargie).—Your letter has been duly forwarded.

Birds Wings (J. B.).—Your query will be found answered by our Mr. Finn.

Nom-de-plume (W. R. Everett).—Yes; we find the nom de-plume "Bird" was a misprint for "Bert."

An Address Wanted (T. B. Gray).—The name and address you want is Mr. E. Hathaway, 84, Clapham Park Road, Clapham, London, S.W.

Suggestion for Annual (A. Young).—Thanks for the suggestion. We may, however, very soon be publishing a book dealing with such matters. Your "bacon beetles" question will be found in the correspondence columns.

Cutting (W. Daish).—Very interesting. Accept our thanks.

Mansfield C.B.C. (J. H. Duckworth).—Your postcard respecting the club notice was addressed to "54 Fenchurch Street." In consequence it was not delivered to us until too late to be dealt with in last week's issue.

Notes (J. Barber).—Your further notes safely received. Accept our thanks for them.

Norwich Canaries (W. Braddick).—The law of libel stands in the way of the publication of letters such as the one you send. Both yourself and ourselves would be liable. If you will conform to rule 8, we shall be glad to write the party on your behalf.

Preservation of Birds' Wings.

J.B.—Your best method is to clean off all the fat possible and anoint the inside of the skin with arsenical soap, remembering that this must be used with care, as it is, of course, poisonous.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR PETERHEAD

SIR,—A Cage Bird Association (under the patronage of Provost Leask and the Town Council) has been formed. The first annual show will be held in the Music Hall, on December 18th and 19th. Many valuable prizes (including a cup from the Town Council) will be competed for. Competition will be open to all. Any information will be supplied by me. P. A. JACK, Secretary.

74, King Street, Peterhead.

HOW TO SEX SKYLARKS.

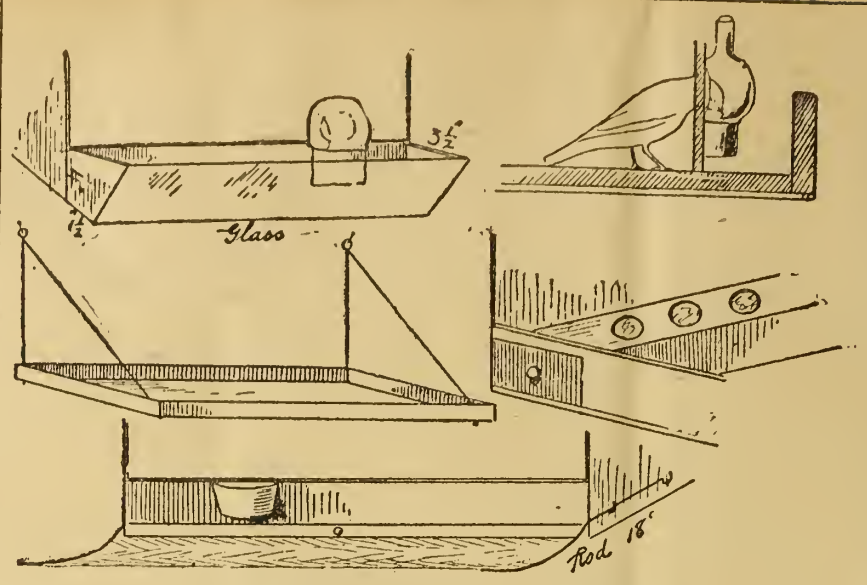
SIR,—Will one or other of your numerous readers kindly inform me the way to tell the sex of Skylarks, as I find it very hard myself, not having had any experience. In the book on "British Birds," by Dr. W. T. Greene, which I have, I find the following:—"The female is distinguished by her smaller size, lighter-coloured plumage, less conspicuous crest, and more particularly by the absence of the white line round the cheeks. The spots on head and breast are more numerous in her case." The bird I have is the first softbill I have ever kept. A. MINNS.

BACON BEETLES FOR SOFTBILLS

SIR,—I should be glad if any reader will give, for the information of novices who, like myself, keep one or two softbills (I am the proud possessor of a Blackcap and a Skylark) instructions for breeding mealworms, and any other live dainties possible. I read recently that bacon beetles were better and more digestible for small softbills than mealworms, but although I have made numerous enquiries at provision warehouses and grocers' establishments, nobody knows what bacon beetles are. I should like to know where they can be obtained, also whether it is possible to breed them, as I should like to introduce variety into the live diet of my feathered pets, if possible, and at present a few house flies and mealworms are all that I can get.

A. YOUNG.

[The breeding of mealworms is dealt with in "Correspondence" in last week's number and often in our Query pages.—EDITOR.]



THE S.Y.C.C. PATRONAGE.

SIR,—Owing to domestic bereavement, I was unable to take any part in the recent discussion which revolved around the refusal of the S.Y.C.C. to grant its patronage to Plymouth Show—said by some to be due to the fact that I passed certain Yorkies there the previous season for being over-length, but by the club officials to the face that I was "not a specialist judge." It is a pleasure to me to find that in the home of the Yorkshire Canary the views of the Southern Yorkshiremen are apparently not entertained, for the entry of Yorkshires at the recent Queensbury Show (average just under 21 per class) and Rochdale Show (average over 24 per class) seem to point to confidence in my action concerning over-length birds—further than that it would be unseemly for me to say. To thank my numerous friends, and those who wrote CAGE BIRDS on my behalf, must be my last word. C. A. HOUSE.

THE BREEDING OF AFRICAN FIRE-FINCHES.

SIR,—The following details about the pair of birds which you suggest may be African Firefinches may interest your readers. One day I was passing through Southampton and saw a pair of birds in a shop window. They took my fancy, so I bought them. When I got home I let them into our aviary. They are by far the prettiest birds that we have. They had only been here about five weeks when they began to build. They are very sensible birds; for they built in a trehlo fork of a piece of privet exactly under the cover of a piece of linoleum, which had blown on to the top of the aviary. They are always ready and able to defend themselves. They made the foundation of their nest with twigs and small sticks, which happened to be lying about the aviary. Then they went on with pine-needles, which they were especially fond of. After this they lined both top and bottom with moss, which we put in for their use. The first egg was laid on September 10, and one was laid every day before breakfast for four days. At first there were two entrances to the spherical nest. Through one we used to look into the nest; so they closed it up. The birds were hatched on September 24. During the day the little birds kept up a kind of squeaky noise. Both birds sat during the night and part of the day. The little birds have black beaks, instead of red ones, as their parents have, and also whitish wings, which will develop into red. Their vests are a grey and white colour. They took their first flight a few days ago but were back in the nest before dinner. We have been bringing them up on the yoke of hard-boiled eggs, which they seem to relish a great deal.

TO DEAL WITH HUSKS AND WASTE SEED.

SIR,—In reply to your correspondent on the above subject, perhaps a little plan I had when keeping birds on the wall of a living-room may, if adopted, be of some use to him. I got a shelf 18 inches wide, made of three lengths of 6 inches tongued and grooved timber. Round this I made a ridging about 2 inches high, and suspended this loose shelf from two nails so that it hung under the cages, and I found that it prevented a lot of the seed, sand, etc., from getting on to the floor. It is very difficult, however, to prevent a little "chaff" from flying about. The wood must be fairly heavy, so that it will hang well. The length of the shelf will, of course, depend upon the number of cages it has to cover. Either brass chains or cord can be used to suspend the cage with; I used the former. I enclose a sketch, which will, I think, explain itself. W. S. BREWSTER.

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent "T. C. B.," I forward you a sketch to show the sort of cages my father always uses. All husks and waste seed are caught, and the rooms are kept very clean. The cage is made the same as an ordinary one, only the bottom is cut 1½ inches wider. Then you cut two pieces 4 by 1½ inches, as seen in sketch, and glue them on, but first cutting a channel in the small pieces so that you can run the glass in. The glass should be 4 inches deep and as long as the front of the cage.

CHARLES DONALD.

SIR,—Seeing one of your readers is troubled with his birds throwing husks and waste seed over the floor, perhaps he uses outside seed-boxes. I was troubled the same once, but now I use cages with seed drawers having covers over them, as seen in the illustration. If the birds still throw husks and seeds out I procure a piece of glass that fits from the bottom rail up to the first wire cross-bar, fixing on small hooks to keep it in place. The cover to the seed-drawer fits from front to back of cage, and a few small nails serve to keep it in place. I find this a lot better than shelves, or anything in front of the cages, as these are liable to get knocked off when you are passing. J. B.

SIR,—I am sending you an idea as to how to catch waste seed and husks, as asked for by one of your readers. It consists of a trough fixed to the sand tray (forming part of it) as shown in my sketch. I am using one myself, and I hope it will be of some use to your readers. W. BUTLER.
